DIRECTORATE OF 5 READY TO SEIZE POWER IN GERMANY

Men Secretly Selected to Step In if the Republic Fails to Survive Chancellor Stresemann's Expected Public Order Ending Passive Resistance in Ruhr.

CABINET MEETING CALLED FOR TODAY

Members Will Be Told, It Is Reported, That Government Is About to Capitulate Unconditionally to France.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—A directorate of five men secretly selected by the German National and German Popular delegates to the Reichstag and Prussian landtag is preparing to "save Germany's honor," by seizing power if the republic fails to survive Chancellor Stresemann's capitulation in the Ruhr.

The Chancelor, believing his last days in office have come unless he takes energetic action, has called a Cabinet meeting for tomorrow to approve the following program which has already been agreed to:

First, Rhineland and Ruhr representatives will be told by the Cabinet Monday that the Government is about to capitulate. Tuesday there will be a meeting of German State Presidents, although it is doubtful if Premier Von Knilling of Bavaria will attend. They will be told the same thing.

Wednesday the Government will publicly withdraw the passive resistance orders issued under Chancellor Cuno.

The Reichstag meets that day and Herr Stresemann knows he risks everything in lifting passive resistance without Premier Poincare agreeing to free Germans condemned for passive resistance or expelled.

The fate of the republic hangs on whether the Chancellor can hold his support anyway. The Nationalists think not and are preparing their directorate to assume power.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—Chancellor Stresemann is to decide in the course of the next four days whether to strike his colors in the Ruhr or urge the populace to continue their passive resistance to the Franco-Belgian forces of occupation. The momentous decision will not be reached until the Cabinet has conferred with the Premiers of the Federated States and those Reichstag leaders qualified to speak for the parties making up the present coalition.

Pending such final deliberations the Chancellor also will convass the situation with the Reichstag deputies from the occupied area and with officials, industrialists and labor leaders authorized to speak for the population of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

Object of Conferences.

Upon the outcome of these conferences, which will begin next Monday, depends the nature of the Government's declaration which Dr. Stresemann will communicate to the Reichstag next Wednesday.

Meanwhile, official quarters make categorial denial of all rumors concerning fresh reparation offers of the dispatch of formal notes to France and Belgium containing proposals for calling off the passive resistance.

At the foreign office it was declared that a new reparation offer was impossible in the present situation, if only for the reason that Germany's proposal of June 7 is still awaiting consideration by the creditor powers.

Germany's new unit of currency is to be the "Boden mark," worth .238 grammes fine gold and equal to 100 "Boden pfennigs," it became known today through publication of the measure providing for establishment of the new currency bank. The bank is to be established by the representatives of agriculture, industry,

ZR-1 FLIES OVER WASHINGTON AND IS ORDERED TO ST. LOUIS

Denby Authorizes Trip for Air Races After Giant Dirigible Entertains Crowds in Rain at Washington.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.— On the completion of the trip to Washington and return to Lakehurst of the ZR-1, Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of naval aviation, announced that Secretary Denby had authorized sending the dirigible to St. Louis for the airplane races early next month," passing over as many intervening cities as practicable going and returning, provided the trip does not interfere with further trials now in progress."

The ZR-1, sailing low over the White House, Pennsylvania avenue, Arlington Cemetery, the Lincoln Memorial, Mount Vernon and similar historic points, jarred the capital to amazed interest today.

Pelting rain coursed into uplifted faces and curtailed the open air audience but it did not keep Bolling Field from being overrun with automobiles and crowds intent on seeing the navy's biggest rigid airship land there. It was 1:25, standard time, when the great gray ship nosed her way out of the gloomy mists and idled up Pennsylvania avenue safe from traffic signs. She moved so silently that only the roaring of her escort of airplanes drew attention to her.

President and Mrs. Coolidge left their luncheon to get a view of the passage of the monster.

This being the first visit to the capital of the airship that Admiral Moffett hopes to send to the North Pole, her welcome was made the occasion for an aerial demonstration at Bolling Field in which all varieties of planes did their special tricks or as many as the persistent hostility of the weather would permit.

The trip here from Lakehurst was without special incident and the ZR-1, having looked over the seat of her management, headed back there, apparently less inconvenienced by the torrents from the skies than the multitudes who watched her.

In fact, Admiral Moffett insisted that this indicates that the ZR-1 is more than a mere fair weather ship. The Admiral has endured sundry jibes over his North Pole ambitions and the fact that a little windiness the other day so incapacitated the ZR-1 that her flight here had to be postponed. The point, he has been at pains to explain, was that she couldn't be safely got out of her hangar with high winds blowing. Once out, as instanced today, weather means next to nothing to her, the Admiral remarked with satisfaction tonight.

Giant Dirigible Makes Return to Lakehurst Safely.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Sept. 22.— The navy dirigible ZR-1 arrived at her hangar at 4:54 p. m. eastern standard time tonight, after making a successful flight to Washington and return.

WOULD END MAILING OF PISTOLS

Police Chiefs, in Convention, Discuss Plans.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Efforts to check transmission of pistols and weapons through the mails will be pressed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

W. P. Rutledge, president of the organization, who yesterday attended the conference of law enforcement officials with Attorney-General Daugherty on establishment of a central criminal identification bureau, today said that if it was found impossible to bar deadly weapons from the mails through an order issued by the Post-master-General, an appeal would be made to Congress to enact legislation conferring such authority.

A Real Estate Sale With Profit to Both Parties

Changing conditions in a man's affairs often make a sale of real estate an economic necessity. When this is so, there is no need to sacrifice his holdings.

Other men are looking for advantageous real estate purchases. They probably want the very thing you have to offer. There are two ways of finding these men.

One way is to follow closely and carefully the "Real Estate columns in the Classified Section of the Post-Dispatch where the best of such wants are listed. The other way is to write an ad telling what you have for sale, then assurance is made doubly sure.

MISSOURI U. STUDENTS PLAN TO OPEN OWN BANK

Action Follows That of Town Banks in Making Service Charge.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 22. — It has been announced in Mulife, the official organ of the students of the University of Missouri, that a student bank would be started here. This action follows that of the six Columbia banks which require all students with a checking account of less than $100 at all times, to use pre-certified checks issued by the banks or to pay a service fee of 50 cents per month and in cases where checks on out-of-town banks are presented, a service charge of ten cents.

Six members of the faculty and several students have offered to buy stock in a student bank.

OLD NAVIGATOR TESTIFIES BEFORE NAVAL COURT

Veteran Sea Captain Says No Abnormal Currents Were Noticeable Day After 7 Destroyers Were Lost.

13 DEFENDANTS TO TAKE STAND MONDAY

Capt. Cousins Tells Investigators Taking of Soundings Is Always Necessary Off Point Arguello.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 22.—No abnormal currents affecting navigation were noticeable off Point Arguello, Sept. 9, the day after seven desrtoyers plowed into the rocks near there, according to Capt. N. E. Cousins, master of the Pacific Steamship Co.'s liner Ruth Alexander, who was called to the stand when the Naval Court of Inquiry investigating the disaster resumed its sessions here today.

All of the 13 defendants in the inquiry will take the stand beginning Monday to tell all about the wreck, it was announced after the defendants, led by Capt. Edward H. Watson, chief of the destroyed squadron, had requested the court that they be allowed to testify.

Took Frequent Soundings.

Capt. Cousins said that in 30 years of experience traveling coast routes he had found the best means of checking his course was to take frequent soundings, especially in foggy weather.

"We always sound off Point Arguello before changing course there and if the water is at all shallow we keep on going until we are safe outside. If it is not, it is our policy to go inside 30 fathoms.

"The currents encountered there are always erratic—you cannot count on them one way or the other, and if you try to allow for them in advance you usually allow in the wrong direction. They were no more erratic than usual Sept. 9. The only safe procedure, we have found is to take frequent soundings."

Asked if he usually took radio compass bearings from Point Arguello to aid him in navigating in that vicinity, the Captain said: "We usually take them every half hour or so in a fog, but we do not reply upon them. They are wrong as often as they are right."

"How, then, do you check your course," Capt. Cousins was asked. "Well," said the veteran skipper, with a quizzical glance over the top of his tortoise shell spectacles, "when we can't see, we always feel. We take soundings."

"Worthy of Navy Traditions."

Admiral William V. Pratt, presiding member of the court, responded to the request of the defendants that they be called as witnesses by saying their action was "worthy of the best traditions of the navy."

The Admiral then announced that court would adjourn until Monday to give the several naval officers named as "interested parties in the status of defendants" time to prepare to testify.

Meanwhile, commanding officers, executive officers and navigators of the seven wrecked vessels will not be permitted to resume active duty until the navy court ends its session, according to orders received from the Secretary of the Navy by Rear Admiral Sumner Kittle, chief of the destroyer force.

The defendants who signified their desire to testify were: Capt. Edward H. Watson, commander of the Eleventh destroyer squadron; Capt. Robert Morris, commander of destroyer squadron division 33; Commander William S. Pye, commander of Division 31; Commander Louis P. Davis, commanding officer U. S. S. Woodbury; Commander William P. Gaddis, commanding officer U. S. S. Somers; Commander William L. Calhoun, commanding officer U. S. S. Young, Commander William H. Toaz, commanding officer U. S. S.; S. P. Lee and Lieutenant-Commanders John F. McClain, Donald T. Hunter, Walter D. Zed, Herbert O. Roesch and Richard H. Booth, commanding officers of the destroyers Farragut, Delphy, Fuller, Nicholas and Chauncy, respectively.

MEXICO, MO., CADET ADMITS ROBBING KANSAS CITY BANK

Paul Burgett, 22, Tells How He Entered Institution Alone, Held Up 5 Employes and Took $4410.

STUDENT AT MISSOURI MILITARY ACADEMY

Also Identified by Moberly Theater Cashier as Man Who Robbed Her—Suspected of Other Holdups.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., Sept. 22.—Paul Burgett, 22 years old, model cadet of the Missouri Military Academy, of this city, who was arrested last night charged with the robbery of the Quindaro State Bank of Kansas City, Kan., Sept. 17, confessed to the crime today, according to the police.

When his automobile was searched today, two rifles, a shotgun and a revolver, all loaded, were found. There was besides plenty of extra ammunition.

Miss Lillian Watson, cashier of the Grand Theater, Moberly, who was held up on the night of August 30 and robbed of $147, identified him as the man who robbed her, but he denied any guilt in this case.

The Quindaro Bank robbery, the City, Kan., Sept. 13, confessed to one. The robber entered the bank alone and robbed it while he held at bay five employes of the institution.

Burgett spent this summer here. He was retiring, made no friends, and had few acquaintances. Always well dressed and with plenty of money, he seemed to prefer to ride about in his car, accompanied by his collie dog, rather than associate with other young people.

He appeared to have no bad habits, and spent little money, and always was well dressed and was known as the son of a wealthy man who preferred to live simply and in this city. Burgett is suspected by the police of several other holdups and upon his arrival in Kansas City the police will make an effort to have him identified by the treasurer of the Newman Theater and several other victims of robberies there during the past few months. He is tall and slender, with a dark olive complexion and brown curly hair.

Burgett's Confession.

Burgett's confession, as given out by the officers here, follows:

"Paul F. Burgett, first being duly sworn, says: 'My name is Paul Fred Burgett. I am 22 years old. Am in sound mind and am making this confession voluntarily. On Sept. 13, 1923, about 8:45 a. m. I knocked at the door of the Quindaro State Bank in Kansas City, Kansas. I was admitted into the bank and told the men who let me in I had a package from the bankers' supply. He said he had not ordered anything, but took the package. I then shoved a revolver at his stomach and forced him and a lady who was behind the cage to put up their hands.

"'I had the man fill a Boston bag with the currency and silver that was on the counter and in the drawer. Of this sum the currency was used for a $1000 certificate deposit, $600 was deposited to my credit in the First National Bank of Mexico, Mo., and the bag of silver was left in my trunk.

"'I then forced these persons to enter the vault and on securing the vault door I left the bank through the front door and made my escape. I made three trips to Kansas City, Kansas, to do this job but my conscience failed me. I have been blackmailed by two men who threatened exposure of a former trouble I got into in Oklahoma and they were to have met me with a car after the holdup but never came. The above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief. Paul F. Burgett.' Witnessed: John Dyke, Chal Elum, Sam Wallace, William Reed."

It has been understood here that Burgett's grandmother supplied funds for his expenses as a student.

Says He Robbed Bank 2 Years Ago.

The Burns operatives who brought about his arrest state that about two years ago Burgett appeared in Quay, Ok., took an automobile out of a show window at a garage, filled the tank with gasoline and drove to a local bank, where he locked all the officials in the vault and robbed the institution.

MISSING SCHOOL GIRL FOUND MURDERED

Body, Badly Beaten, Discovered Six Miles From Millville, N. J., Her Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILLVILLE, N. J., Sept. 22.—The body of a 15-year-old school girl, terribly beaten, found in a clump of trees off the main road six miles from here, bears mute testimony to a murder. Forty feet from the body of Emma Dickson, of Bricksboro, near Port Elizabeth, was found a six-foot plank and the hub cap of an automobile. Cumberland County officials investigation so far has been without results.

Missing since the evening of Sept. 13, when she went to visit a girl friend near her home, the body was located this morning by David Grennon, a farmer boy. The body was identified by the father, Thomas Dickson.

A Coroner's jury, after viewing the body, adjourned until next Friday. Late tonight an autopsy was held at the county seat, Bridgeton, by Coroner Kenneth B. Carroll, Frank J. Lore, chief county detective assumed charge of the case.

According to the father, Emma, who was in her first year at the Millville High School, left home about 6 o'clock on Sept. 13 to purchase some milk and to visit a school companion, Irma Henderson. She carried with her a sewing cap which she desired to show to Irma for a pattern. She went to a store, purchased a quart of milk, paid for it, received a piece of cake wrapped up in paper and mentioned that she was on her way to the Hendersons. The cake was found, still wrapped in paper, near the body while the cap was found about 100 feet from the store.

GOULD SUES FORMER WIFE

Action to Stop Use of Name on Stage in Paris.

(Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, Sept. 22.—Despite Frank Jay Gould's threat of a suit at law to restrain her, his divorced wife, Edith Kelly, wore the family name of Gould on a music hall stage here last night and declared she would continue indefinitely to call herself a Gould. So early today a formal complaint was entered and a Paris court will be asked, next Tuesday, to cut the Gould from Edith Kelly's name.

Meantime, the Alhambra was sold out at her debut, last night.

Miss Kelly's appearance was introduced by Mayol, a songster who chanted a racy French explanation. "Why Gould could not hold his wife." Then she appeared, did three character dances and ended with an eccentric one-step.

COOLIDGE CLUBS WELCOME, LETTER OF PRESIDENT SAYS

Co-operation in Tasks of His Office Most Desirable Thing at Present, However, He Writes.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Acting under what he interprets as authorization of President Coolidge, A. Lincoln Seide, an auctioneer, secretary of the Republican organization of the Fifteenth Assembly District, has undertaken the organization of Coolidge clubs to further the nomination of the President.

Sept. 10 Seide wrote the President asking for authority to form the clubs. Mr. Coolidge's reply, as made public today, read:

"I have received your letter and value highly the friendly feelings which prompted you to propose the organization of Coolidge clubs. I am naturally desirous of securing the support of my friends everywhere for my administration and their able assistance in carrying out its policies, and to this end I should welcome the organization of Coolidge clubs.

"I am, however, giving thought only to the duties of my office and have discouraged any activity on the part of my friends in other directions. If I ask your support in the task I am doing, rather than in the furtherance of any plans for the future, I know you will understand it indicates no lack of gratitude and that I am none the less appreciative of your kind thoughts."

Seide announced that in view of the President's reply he would begin immediately the organization of clubs in all parts of the city. He took part four years ago in the formation of Harding clubs in the colleges.

Leaders in Legislative Group Announce They Will Not Offer Forcible Resistance to Effort to Prevent Their Meeting Wednesday to Draw Articles for Impeachment of Governor.

WILL ATTEMPT TO OBTAIN COURT TEST

Executive Issues Additional Statement Attacking Klan and Appealing for $100,000 to Continue His Fight Against Mob Rule.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 22. —Prospects of a clash between units of the Oklahoma National Guard and the members of the House of Representatives when the attempt is made Wednesday to convene the House to draw articles for the impeachment of Gov. Walton were somewhat dimmed tonight. Leaders in the legislative group announced they would not offer forcible resistance to an effort to prevent their session.

Their statement, issued late this afternoon, resulted from a conference of representatives, McBee, their leader, and a dozen or more representatives. As a result, the present indications are that on Wednesday the question of the right of the House to convene will be submitted to the courts for decision and that there will be no immediate session.

Likely to Avoid Arrests.

The Governor refused to say tonight the method he expected to employ to prevent the session. House members are expecting him to arrest several of them, and that those arrests will take the matter to court. It is doubtful that the Governor wants to do that. So far he has avoided doing anything on which there could be a court test of his powers. If he can disperse the House members without arresting them, undoubtedly he will follow that plan.

Orders for the mobilization of additional units for service in Oklahoma City and in other places in the State will be issued tomorrow, the Governor said. He could not state, he said, how many additional units would be called into service.

To Extend Military Rule.

"We are going to have enough men to handle any situation that may arise in Oklahoma City this week," the Governor asserted. "Unless we can get quick action from local officials in a number of other places where there has been whippings, we will place these places under severe military rule, establish military courts and proceed to enforce the law ourselves."

Newspaper correspondents obtained from him a statement that undoubtedly there were a large number of members of the Ku Klux Klan within the National Guard. He turned to Adjutant-General Markham and asked him if he wished to give any estimate of the number.

"I do not," Gen. Markham replied, "but I can state positively that the National Guard will obey orders, no matter what organization any of its members may affiliate with."

Not Concerned With Details.

The Governor said the method to be employed by the Guard in preventing the session of the Legislature was entirely in the hands of Gen. Markham. "I have issued orders that the session is not to be held," the Governor said. "Gen. Markham knows his business and I am not concerned with the details."

In an additional statement attacking the Klan and appealing for funds, the Governor said he needed $100,000 for the fight on the Klan, and asked that contributions be sent to Mrs. Aldrich Blake, wife of his executive counsellor in Oklahoma City.

"If I am whipped in this fight it

STORY OF ANOTHER TULSA FLOGGING MADE PUBLIC

Case That of Merchant Seized by Masked Men at Night as He Walked Home From Church.

NAMES OF SOME OF ASSAILANTS OBTAINED

Victim Had Been Leader in Movement to Have Several Teachers in County Schools Investigated.

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Sept. 22.—A story of a merchant whipped with the lash on a Sunday night following his seizure by masked men as he walked home from church with his wife, was told in a record of the military commission of Tulsa County made public tonight through the Associated Press.

Assertions that county civil officers ignored the identification of whippers by those who suffered were heard today by the military court.

The Anderson pasture on the Jenks road between Tulsa and Broken Arrow was mentioned as the scene of many floggings.

When the military commission adjourned for dinner tonight, a total of 121 cases of personal violence had been bared since its investigation began here Aug. 14, following Gov. J. C. Walton's declaration of military rule throughout the county.

Story of Whipping of Merchant.

The testimony of B. E. McLendon, a former school superintendent of Alsuma, relating the story of the Sunday night whipping of J. S. Lawhorn, a Jenks merchant, on June 4, 1922, told of the whipping ground, mentioned the gate which frequently was guarded, and described the whip which was carried in the machine known to have often led the way to the secluded spot.

"This strap," the witness said in describing the whip applied to Lawhorn, "was about four inches wide, about three feet long, and has a bolt in the handle, wrapped with tape—regular car tape—with about seven or eight or ten slits about five or six inches long in the end."

Several women who have appeared before the military commission in the past two days told of personal experiences with floggers. One young married woman who was accompanied to the military headquarters by her husband without summons, told of how she had been given "more than twenty lashes" by a masked band, none of whom she could name.

Cause of the Flogging.

Lawhorn, who was a leader in a movement in Jenks to have several teachers in the county schools investigated as to their fitness and training, was said by McLendon to have withdrawn his name from a public petition seeking that end after his experience in the darkness of the June Sabbath.

M. T. Moore and W. W. Wilcox of Tulsa were named by McLendon as two men connected with the Lawhorn case.

McLendon set forth in his statement that he had been invited to participate in the whipping party, but was prevented by an unexplained cause.

"The nearest I remember one Friday night before the whipping happened on Sunday, June 4, I was asked by M. T. Moore if I wished to go out on a party and the next time I was asked to attend this party was on Sunday," he said.

"I didn't go and know nothing of the whipping that night. However, the next morning I was at Hans Anderson's, a neighbor, and he was talking of the whipping that some fellow had gotten that lived at Jenks. On Monday night of the same week I was at a meeting where Mr. Moore and W. W. Wilcox had a conversation about the whipping of Lawhorn from Jenks.

"Mr. Wilcox said that he located Mr. Lawhorn and wife in church and showed the men of the party that lived out of Jenks Mr. Lawhorn and his wife; and after Mr. Lawhorn left the church, Mr. Wilcox again pointed him out from behind a partition back in the dark where he was hid.

"After the men of the party had gotton Mr. Lawhorn, Mr. Wilcox said he went back to his home, changed his suit and hat in three minutes, and was back on the street investigating as to why all the disturbance.

Mixed With Crowd First.

"Mr. Wilcox said that after he had gone through the crowd and let them see that he was still in town and not one of the party that had Mr. Lawhorn, he went to Charlie Easterday's Ford coupe where Charlie Easterday was waiting and they proceeded to the party."

will be an unsafe State for any man to live in who is an anti-Klansman," the Governor said. "I must have $100,000 at once to get the truth to the people, and I call upon all people who are with me in this fight to respond and to respond by wire if possible."

Threatens to Start Paper.

Much of the Governor's evening statement was an attack upon the Oklahoma City newspapers, which, he charges, have closed their news columns to anti-klan matter. He threatened to start a temporary publication to disseminate locally his anti-klan statements.

"I have the utmost respect for the Legislature," the Governor said, "as at no time have I ever taken any steps to interfere with its powers and prerogatives, and I wish further to say that I never shall in any way interfere with the rights of the Legislature to peaceably assemble at the Capitol of the State.

"I have shown that the civil authorities at Tulsa and Oklahoma City are under the domination of the invisible empire, many of them actually being subject to that empire. Many of the members of the Legislature are subjects of this supergovernment and they are now conspiring to meet together and claim that they are the Legislature. This cannot be permitted. The Constitution and the laws of this State provide how the Legislature may convene in regular and in special session.

"I cannot allow the klan members of the Legislature to assemble and call themselves the Legislature of the State and proceed to act as such. If I allowed such action as this it would simply be turning the power of the State government over to the supergovernment, whose headquarters are at Atlanta, Ga.

"Two governments cannot exist in this State at the same time. A visible government of which I am the chief executive and an invisible government with orders issuing from the Grand Dragon of this State under the direction of the super-government issuing orders from the city of Atlanta."

In the afternoon Representative McBee and his associates issued this statement:

"It is the unanimous sentiment of the members of the House of Representatives now in the city that they will not resort to physical force in any way whatsoever in assembling next Wednesday, nor do they expect to resort to physical force to repeal any effort to disperse them, should such be attempted; but they do expect to assemble, and in case an effort is made to prevent them from so doing, to resort to the courts for vindication of their rights.

Seek Ruling by Courts.

"The members of the House, while convinced of their rights to convene and of their duty to do so under existing conditions, would welcome an opportunity to secure an opinion of the courts on the question and will cheerfully abide by its decision.

"None of the talk of 'riding through rivers of blood up to the bridle,' or 'walking through slaughter houses to an open grave,' has emanated from any member of the House of Representatives."

Earlier in the day the Governor issued a statement setting forth that owing to the fact that many members of the Legislature were klansmen (he placed the number of klan members in the House at 68) he could not have a fair hearing on an impeachment trial, and that for that reason he would prevent the House from assembling. He said it had been proved throughout the State that law was not enforced in matters in which the klan had an interest and in places where the klan was strong, and that when he began an investigation of whipping outrages the klan threatened witnesses and it was impossible to obtain their testimony.

Acted to Protect Witnesses.

"It became necessary to extend military rule to the entire State," he said, "so as to reach every witness needed and to throw the necessary protection around those who were willing to testify. Only under the protection of bayonets could whipped and cowed victims be induced to testify against the invisible monster that warned them that death would be the penalty for testifying against the klan."

The Governor denied that military rule had interfered with business and said he had suspended the writ of habeas corpus only in cases where it was necessary in "uncovering the crimes of the klan."

He charged that N. C. Jewett, grand dragon, had "marshaled his forces in the Legislature and they were threatening to convene and impeach me."

"Here is a proposal," he said, "to convene a Legislature made up mostly of klansmen, for the express purpose of impeaching me and removing me from office because I have uncovered the crimes of the Ku Klux Klan."

Probable Action Intimated.

The Governor intimated that if a serious attempt was made to convene the Legislature, he might close all highways leading into the city, close the State fair and place the city under even more severe orders.

"From the expressions of some members of the Legislature and their open defiance of lawful authority," the Governor said, "they evidently intend to 'ride through blood up to the bridle,' and any who oppose them will be 'wading through a slaughter house into an open grave.' These defys cannot be overlooked by me."

The situation appeared to be considerably cleared tonight by the statement of the legislators. Until today their whole attitude had been one of fighting for the right to meet without a call from the Governor. At their headquarters, many members had declared without qualification that if any attempt was made to interfere with them that there undoubtedly would be bloodshed.

Not to Resort to Arms.

Today they said they expected to meet peaceably and that if interfered with they would go to the courts to enforce their rights. It would thus appear probable that the question will be decided by the judiciary and not by arms.

The preliminary hearing of Grand Dragon Jewett of the Oklahoma klan, held under $1000 bond on an information charging him with having participated in the whipping of a man named Merriman in Oklahoma City last March is set for Tuesday, but according to County Attorney Wright, probably will not be held until about a week later. He said the military court desired to apprehend several other persons said to have participated in the same whipping.

The military courts in Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Shawnee continue to take testimony in alleged klan whipping outrages, and the plans are for the establishment of courts in other cities.

GRAND JURY RESTRAINED FROM FORCING CONVICTS TO TESTIFY

Supreme Court Action Follows Move to Compel Them to Take Stand in Prison Camp Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 22.—Alternative writ of prohibition restraining the Jefferson County, Alabama, grand jury from compelling the testimony of State convicts was issued late this afternoon by Associate Justice Lucien D. Gardner of the Alabama Supreme Court. The action follows the move by the Jefferson jury to have convicts testify in connection with investigation into conditions in Alabama prison camps.

L. A. Boyd, chairman of the State Board of Convict Supervisors, through his attorney, Parwell G. Davis, Attorney-General, entered the request for the writ of prohibition following the announcement from Birmingham that Solicitor James G. Davis intended to go through with the investigation and expected the subpenaed convicts to appear Monday.

WILSON LETTER SCORES SENATOR SHIELDS

Calls Him "One of the Least Trustworthy of My Professed Supporters."

By the Associated Press.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 22.—United States Senator John K. Shields of Tennessee is described as "one of the least trustworthy of my professed supporters," by Woodrow Wilson, in a letter to W. A. S. Furlow of Bristol, Tenn., replying to an inquiry of the latter as to the Tennessee Senator's record during Mr. Wilson's presidency.

The letter of the former President was made public by Gen. Lawrence D. Tyson of Knoxville in connection with a recent interview answering Senator Shields' remarks regarding Mr. Wilson.

Gen. Tyson, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the senatorship next year against Senator Shields, as is also Judge Nathan D. Bachman of Chattanooga, reiterated his previous charges against Senator Shields.

The letter from Mr. Wilson, made public by Gen. Tyson, reads as follows:

"2340 S Street, N. W.
"Woodrow Wilson,
"Washington, D. C.
"August 28, 1923.

"My Dear Mr. Furlow—In reply to your letter of Aug. 25, I do not feel at liberty to say more than this: That I regarded Mr. Shields during my administration as one of the least trustworthy of my professed supporters.

"Thanking you for the friendship so generously evidenced by your letter,

"Cordially and sincerely yours.
(Signed) "WOODROW WILSON."

WOMAN PHYSICIAN ARRESTED

Charged With Using Mails to Defraud.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JONESBORO, Ark., Sept. 22.—Dr. Mary Lecocq of Walnut Ridge was arrested yesterday at her home on a warrant charging her with using the mails to defraud. At a preliminary hearing Dr. Lecocq pleaded not guilty but was held to await action of the Federal grand jury. The bond was fixed at $5000, which she gave.

It is alleged by the Government that Dr. Lecocq has made fraudulent diagnoses of cases. She claims to diagnose a case from one drop of the patient's blood and prescribes treatment, it is said. On one occasion recently it is alleged that a drop of chicken blood was submitted to her and in her reply by mail she stated that the patient had cancer of the brain.

Woman Held on Murder Charge.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 22.—On a charge of murder growing out of the alleged poisoning of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Leslie Tipton, bride of four weeks, at the Tipton home in Anderson County, Mrs. William Tipton, 55, has been lodged in county jail without bond. A warrant for the arrest was sworn to by J. T. Brewer, father of the victim. Analysis of the dead woman's stomach is being made by a chemist at the Kentucky experiment station. The accused woman stoutly denies any guilt and is herself still suffering from effects of poison in ice cream which killed her son's bride.

PATROL TO HUNT FOR EXPLORERS ON COLORADO RIVER

Sheriff to Lead Search for Charting Party, in Isolated Section, with Stream Swollen.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY IS NOT WORRIED

Uncertainty Brought About by Report of Overturned Boat Floating Down Colorado River.

By the Associated Press.

KINGMAN, Ariz., Sept. 22.—A patrol will enter the Canyon of the Colorado River tomorrow to search for the Government exploration party chartering the Colorado River, whose unknown plight has cast a wave of alarm over Arizona. A boat marked as belonging to the U. S. Geological Survey was seen floating down the river yesterday many miles from the point where the survey party was thought to be. The patrol party, headed by Sheriff W. P. Mahoney of Mohave County, who will be aided by three Sheriffs, will attempt to take off in the river rapids tomorrow morning but doubt was expressed by the Sheriff whether they could set out with the river in its present swollen condition.

By the Associated Press.

KINGMAN, Ariz., Sept. 22. — R. W. Birdseye, of the United States Geological Survey, said here tonight he had determined that a boat similar to the one sighted floating upside down in the rapids of the Colorado River near Katherine Mine last Thursday, had broken from its moorings in the Grand Canyon last Wednesday. Birdseye, who is a cousin of Col. C. M. Birdseye, commander of the expedition, expressed the opinion that it was this boat which floated down the stream and which previously was believed to belong to the exploring party now charting the Colorado River.

Somewhere in the rocky precipitous canyons of Arizona's unhabited northern region several hundred miles from a sign of civilization, 10 men, traveling in strong, wave proof boats, are struggling against the turbulent flood waters of the Colorado River. The men are members of an exploration party of the United States Geological Survey charting the Colorado River.

Isolated completely from the outside world and walled in the river channel with rugged peaks at places reaching perpendicularly 5000 feet into the sky on either side of them, the men, members of a survey party, coursing the uncharted river, are traveling a most dangerous region. For a hundred miles or more below Bright Angel, which the explorers passed three weeks ago, this canyon must be traveled.

River at Flood Stage.

The river is at flood stage, having in four days risen 29 feet and sent its water over its bank at many places.

The mute, meager evidence of a battered boat, bearing the insignia "U. S. G. S.," reported to have been seen at an isolated spot on the river 200 miles from where the party is now supposed to be, may have held a story that none but the explorers themselves know.

Upside down, and bearing marks of its plunging course through the rapids, the boat was sighted by R. L. Bimmick, superintendent of the mine, who arrived in Kingman with his story yesterday. An attempt to recover the boat was unsuccessful, but the superintendent said he was positive the boat bore the survey's insignia.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.— The suggestion of Acting Gov. R. E. McGillan of Arizona that aviators search the canyon through which the Colorado River flows for the Colorado exploration party which has been working ther for months, was received at the Geological Survey from Phoenix tonight, where it was said no action would be taken. Reports have been received regularly from the party, it was explained, the last one being but a few days ago, and the party is not regarded as lost, missing or in danger.

DEMOCRATS TO TRY TO ELECT A PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE

Key Pittman of Nevada, Manager of Party Campaign in West in 1920, Probable Nominee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi announced today that the Democrats will try to elect one of their own number president of the Senate. He believes their chances are good because of a row within the regular Republican ranks over the post. Key Pittman of Nevada, who managed the Democratic campaign in the West in 1920, will undoubtedly be the Democratic nominee. If Pittman declines, Walsh of Montana, Owen of Oklahoma and Robinson of Arkansas are possibilities.

"The President and the Republicans," Harrison declared, "have got to come up to the 'tick log' and let the people know their position on a lot of questions—a definite stand on President Harding's world league court pronouncement. They must go on record upon everything from the bonus down to railroad transportation.

The Senate Democrats believe they can put over their own man or so tie up the Republicans that they will be forced to put in a compromise Progressive.

German Communists Seek Aid of Bolsheviki in Case of Revolt.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 22.—The German communists leaders, Heinrich Brandler and Herr Talmeyer, have arrived in Moscow and informed the Russians that the time for a revolution in Germany is ripe. They express themselves confident of their ability to obtain control within the German state, but need the help of the international proletarist against outside capitalistic enemies.

The German communists are so certain of their ground, according to Herr Brandler's speech to the Executive Committee of the bolshevik trade unions, that many observers here feel that the peace of Europe may be said to rest upon the conferences in Moscow in which the Germans are now taking part. From this viewpoint the issue revolves around the question whether the Russian communists deem their proetariat state sufficiently strong to overcome the capitalistic forces of the world combined against them and proletarian Germany.

Herr Brandler said the communist movement in Germany was growing rapidly, and that there were so many candidates for places that only one out of every 10 could be accepted. He declared the Royalist movement was declining leaders like Von Hindenburg and Ludendorff now thinking it best to let the communists overthrow the present Government and then deal later with the communistic victors.

GREECE LIKELY TO BE EXONERATED OF ITALIAN KILLINGS

International Mission Said to Have Decided the Assassins Apparently Acted From Vengeance.

POLITICAL MOTIVE THEORY DISCARDED

Greeks, However, Are to Be Declared Guilty of Negligence in Seeking Out the Murderers.

By the Associated Press.

PREVEZA, Albania, Sept. 22.—Members of the international mission investigating the assassination of Gen. Tellini and his suite, are understood to be convinced that the Greeks are innocent of the crime imputed to them by Italy.

The report of their investigation will be forwarded to the Inter-Allied Council of Ambassadors. The mission is also understood to have decided that the Greeks, while innocent of the assassination, are guilty of negligence in seeking out those who committed the murders.

The Japanese, French and British delegates, it is said, conclude that the assassins acted from vengeance rather than from political motives. It is stated, however, that the Italian members of the inquiry commission are filing a minority report substantiating their original charges.

Man Said to Have Confessed He Was in Murder Gang.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 22.—It is reported from Argyrokastron, Southern Albania, that the police there have arrested an Epirote named Jarelli, who has confessed that he was one of a band of seven who ambushed and killed Gen. SUBSTITUTE IN HYLAN'S OFFICE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Murray Hulbert, president of the Board of Aldermen, automatically will become acting Mayor of New York tomorrow at noon, by virtue of a provision in the city charter which vests the head of the aldermanic body with full authority where the Mayor has been absent for 30 consecutive days. Mayor Hylan, now recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia at Saratoga Springs, left the city a month ago.

Hulbert, who is a close friend of the Mayor and in sympathy with his administration, departed tonight for Saratoga Springs to visit Hylan. If possible, he will discuss administrative affairs with him and return to city hall Monday.

LEAGUE URGES ALL PEOPLES TO JOIN COVENANT QUICKLY

Appeal for Settlement of Reparations Problem Also Sent Out From Delegates at Geneva.

MEMBERS WARNED TO OBEY MANDATES

Indian Prince, Referring to Italy's Repudiation of Body's Authority, Points to Risk of Ruin.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Sept. 22.—Execute the league covenant and settle the reparation problem quickly—these are the two messages of moment which go out to all Governments and peoples from the League of Nations. They are contained in no formal resolutions and backed by no formal vote taking, but they emerge clearly as the will of the majority of world delegates assembled in Geneva, if plaudits have any meaning and enthusiastic ovation any significance. This expression of what the public opinion demands found its voice particularly today when several delegates, representing India, South Africa, and Sweden, insisted upon the gravity of world conditions and demanded that the Governments obey the new order of things as represented by the league.

Referring to Italy's repudiation of the league authority in the Greek affair, the Maharajah of Navangar declared his conviction that the league is perfectly competent to insist on peaceful settlement of disputes arising between members and he issued the warning that if any one member fails to live up to the principles of the covenant the league fails to be its true self and risks ruin.

"The Citadel of Small Nations."

"Under the old order, and before this family of nations came into being," said the Indian Prince, "the right of reprisal no doubt held good, but under the new order, which all have accepted, we hope this is all changed. The League of Nations is the citadel of the new age, and especially the citadel and refuge of the small nations.

"India accepts the covenent without reservations. Unless the strong nations set an example of forbearance; unless they show willingness to sacrifice their pride of power then the League of Nations will be a sham, the light on the horizon will die and the familiar accusing darkness will return."

The speaker praised the forbearance of the council in the Italian case, and voiced conviction that all the Powers would bow to the interpretation of the covenant to be handed down by a selected group of eminent jurists or by the permanent court of international justice. The Maharajah was loudly applauded as he took his seat and received congratulations from many of the other delegates.

South Africa's Appeal.

It was South Africa, another of the countries in the British Empire, from which came the ringing appeal for a quick solution of the reparation problem. Prof. George Murray was the spokesman, and he delivered what was hailed as the most remarkable discourse given before the present assembly. He needed no apologies, he said, for speaking on reparations before the assembly, because the league was the forum for expression of world opinion on any great question. He believed his Prime Minister would support every word he was going to say, and that the vast majority of the thinking people of the world were behind him.

He then launched into an eloquent appeal, which he emphasized, has been approved by the International Federation of Trade Unions, with a membership of 1,000,000 workmen, that the interested powers, especially Great Britain and France, either settle the reparation question "which poisons the air of Europe," or lay it before the League of Nations for settlement.

Prof. Murray remarked that it was no longer necessary to talk of the fact that France and Belgium must have ample reparation, and France security for the future. He did not wish to blame or attack anybody, for men of lofty aims were directing the affairs of England and France, but he believed the league could say to both Governments: "You have failed after four years to settle this hideous problem, while the world is filled with dread for the future."

"What Shall It Profit Us?"

"In these four years," he continued, "the league has grappled with the scourges that devastate mankind, has released hundreds of thousands of war prisoners, stopped epidemics, saved refugees, fed famine stricken multitudes, and checked the traffic in white slaves. But to what profit is all this if this single unsolved problem hangs over us, leading Europe toward calamity and despair?"

Applause followed this peroration, after declaring that the reparation question had produced a situation in which two nations found it necessary to increase their forces because of mutual anxiety, Prof. Murray said he could not but think of the danger of war was real.

"I know," he went on, "that in history there has been no surer mode of sowing the seeds of war than through the occupation of the territory of any nation by a foreign Power."

The speaker said that all hated German imperialism and the ruin it had wrought, but if Germany went the way of Russia, if a German famine was followed by a famine in England and other nations, and the great war proved but a prelude for another and ghastly war, he hardly knew what could save the credit of the League of Nations or the Governments composing it before the bar of history and the judgment of God. He closed his address by again exhorting the great Powers to solve the problem swiftly or hand it over to the league.

The League Council met privately this evening and discussed ways and means of reaching the judicial interpretation of the league covenant which has been decided upon in consequence of the Italian action during the Greco-Italian crisis.

Committee to Formulate Questions.

Prompt progress in its self-allotted task of obtaining juridical interpretations of the covenant of the League of Nations was made by the League Council when it appointed a committee of legal experts to formulate precise questions which will later be submitted either to the permanent court of international justice at The Hague or some other body of eminent jurists.

This action is the first step growing out of Italy's refusal to recognize and accept the competency of the League of Nations in the Greco-Italian dispute. The experts designated include M. Rolin-Jacquemyne of Belgium, Senor Botella of Spain, Dr. A. D. De La Praddelle of France, Vittoria Scialoa of Italy, Madachi of Japan, Sir Cecil Hurst, Great Britain and Dr. J. A. Vanhamel, Holland, director of the league's juridical bureau.

Among the questions to be considered are the kind of disputes which come within the purview of the covenant, the rights of states to seize territory as guarantees and the responsibilities of states for political crimes committed within their frontiers.

Quake Refugees Reach Canada.

By the Associated Press.
VICTORIA, British Columbia, Sept. 22.—The Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of Asia, second vessel to reach continental American shores with survivors of the Japanese earthquake, docked here today. Among the 491 passengers aboard the vessel were 26 refugees picked up at Kobe, among them a number of Americans, including O. H. Chalkley and 3-year-old daughter, Dr. Judson Daland, Harold Francis and George Warren Ellis.

LONG FLIGHTS TO ST. LOUIS PLANNED

Non-Stop Trip From Houston, Tex., to Be Attempted This Week.

A nonstop flight from Houston, Tex., to St. Louis, and a dawn-to-dusk flight from Philadelphia here are to be attempted this week, by flyers coming for next week's international air races.

Richard W. Mackie is the aviator who will try Tuesday to fly here from Ellington Field, Houston, without making a landing between the two places. He will carry 100 gallons of gasoline. Mackie recently made an endurance flight above Houston, in which he estimated his aerial mileage, in circles, to be as great as the distance between here and the Texas city.

The dawn-to-dusk flight from Philadelphia will be attempted Wednesday by Charles Townsend Ludington of Ardmore, in a 60-horsepower Farmer sport plane, said to be the smallest two-seater in use. Robert Hewitt will act as his pilot, the two flying as entrants in the "On-to-St. Louis" race. Stops are planned at Moundsville, W. Va.; Dayton, O.; Indianapolis and possibly Effingham, Ill.

Ludington, a Yale graduate, was in charge of the school for Navy aviation quartermasters at San Diego, Cal., during the World War. Hewitt is a professional pilot.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce has offered a silver cup for the longest flight to St. Louis for the air meet.

ON QUOTING THE PRESIDENT

Callers at White House Not Authorized to Give His Views.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—President Coolidge cannot be responsible for expressions of his supposed views which may be given publicly by his callers, it was said officially today at the White House. Nor can he undertake to correct or enlarge upon them, for if he did he probably could find time for little else.

It was explained that visitors call to lay before the executive their views on subjects in which they are interested and that naturally the President desires to obtain all the information that may be helpful. When callers depart they are free to make such representation regarding the purpose of their visit as they desire, but the President does not feel that they are at liberty to quote him.

ALLEGED BRIBERY PROPOSAL HELD TO BE MISDEMEANOR

Statute of Limitations Would Prevent Prosecution in Busch Line Case, Prosecutor Says.

The alleged bribery proposal made to the Manufacturers' Railway (Busch Line) through Alphonsus L. Browne, its general agent, early in 1922, now being investigated by the grand jury, is held by Albert L. Schweitzer, Prosecuting Attorney, to constitute a misdemeanor, which cannot be prosecuted at this time, because of the statute of limitaions. That statute bars the instituting of prosecutions in misdemeanor cases more than a year after commission of an offense. The Prosecuting Attorney handles misdemeanor cases, while the Circuit Attorney has charge of the grand jury.

Schweitzer said last night that the Missouri statutes on bribery place in the class of a felony only those offenses in which money, or some valuable consideration, has actually been tendered or received. He said that from the facts made known as to the proposal made to the Manufacturers' Railway, there could be no more serious charge than solicitation of a bribe. This offense, he said, under common law, constitutes a misdemeanor, and as such would not be subject to prosecution at this time.

Circuit Attorney Sidener, who has been conducting the inquiry before the grand jury, last night declined to comment on the question whether the bribery proposal constituted a misdemeanor, or whether the statute of limitation would bar prosecution.

Effort to Block Inquiry.

An effort to block the grand jury investigation is expected to be made in the Supreme Court at Jefferson City tomorrow by A. Samuel Bender, attorney for Browne. Bender expects to appear before the Supreme Court and present an application for a writ of prohibition to stop the investigation and relieve Browne from further appearance before the grand jury as a witness.

The question as to the statute of limitations was raised by Bender, and will be pleaded by him in the application to the Supreme Court. Bender also plans to argue that the alleged offense, being a misdemeanor, does not come within the inquisitorial powers of the grand jury.

The statutes specify certain misdemeanors which may be investigated by a grand jury, Bender said. He added that solicitation of a bribe is not one of the offenses so listed, and that therefore the grand jury is without jurisdiction.

Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer differs from Bender on that point. He holds that the grand jury has the power to investigate and return indictments in any criminal case, whether a felony or a misdemeanor.

"Solicitation of a Bribe."

Bender said that the question Browne refused to answer before the grand jury, was substantially: "Did anyone solicit of you in 1922 a sum of money, namely $15,000, to pass a certain bill?" Bender contends that this question takes the alleged offense out of the category of an attempt to bribe, or bribery, both of which are felonies, and that the offense is merely solicitation of a bribe.

Granting of a writ of prohibition by the Supreme Court would not only prevent further questioning of Browne, but would have the effect of preventing the grand jury from questioning any witnesses regarding the alleged bribery proposal, Bender believes.

The proposal was alleged to have been made while a bill for a franchise for an extension of the Manufacturers' Railway on Second street, from Plum street to Walnut street, and for waiving of a city claim for about $95,000 alleged to be due for nonperformance of provisions of the original franchise, was pending before the Board of Aldermen early last year.

Browne's refusal Friday to answer a question concerning the alleged bribery proposal, while a witness before the grand jury, developed a series of close legal questions and caused him to be committed to jail. His release on bond was granted yesterday upon his promise to appear before the grand jury Tuesday, when the investigation is scheduled to be resumed.

WASHINGTON Sept. 22.—Official denial was made at the White House today of reports that Secretary of the Navy Denby is to resign and to be succeeded by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

CAMPAIGN FOR SALE OF 150,000 TICKETS TO AIR RACES TO OPEN TOMORROW

Teams Will Be Organized to Solicit at All Business Houses, Hotels and Theaters to Insure Success of Enterprise.

With all other arrangements virtually completed for the international air races, to be held here beginning a week from tomorrow, the St. Louis Air Board will put on tomorrow a campaign for the sale of 150,000 tickets, in order to insure an attendance sufficiently large to meet the heavy financial obligations undertaken by a comparatively few men. Members of the Air Board adopted this plan as a means of giving additional thousands of citizens opportunity to share in promotion of the interests of St. Louis, it being held that the city will be permanently benefited by the air terminal that is being established through the medium of the races.

The ticket distribution drive will be under the direction of John C. Ecoff and Miss Sarah Wolff, who will organize teams to solicit at all business houses, factories, hotels and theaters, and in other public places.

"Enterprise for Everyone."

"St. Louis has undertaken one of the biggest and most important enterprises in its history," said W. Frank Carter, in announcing the ticket drive, "and we hope to have the support of every civic organization and business house, as well as the citizens generally, so as to make the event a success all down the line. It is an enterprise for everyone to share in.

"There has been a large advance sale of tickets, but in order to meet the heavy overhead expense, which includes the purchase and equipment of one of the finest flying fields in the world, St. Louis should turn out a capacity attendance on each of the three days of the races. The races are an assured success fro every other angle, and it is now squarely up to the people of St. Louis and neighboring towns to support this great enterprise."

Response From North St. Louis.

The North St. Louis Business Men's Association was one of the first organizations to respond in this respect, engaging three sections of 96 seats each, or a total of 288 seats. The Belleville Board of Trade engaged 300 seats.

An important phase of the meet will be the National Aero Congress, which will be held at the Chase Hotel Sept. 30 to and including Oct. 3. This will be the third such congress and will include the annual convention of the National Aeronautic Association, and a banquet and smoker.

The purposes of the National Aeronautic Association are largely to form a channel through which aeronautic enthusiasts, experts and friends of aviation can co-ordinate their desires into concrete form, and particularly to present them effectively in support of needed legislation.

This association believes that something similar to the Winslow Bill, which failed to pass the House last year in the Ship Subsidy filibuster, after having passed the Senate, should be enacted by the coming Congress. Such a bill would set up in the Department of Commerce a bureau of civil aeronautics to regulate flying of both military and civilian aviators and eliminate reckless and stunt flying.

In addition to needed legislation, many other important subjects are expected to come before the aero congress.

Flying Club to Meet Tomorrow.

The pre-race meeting of the Flying Club of St. Louis will be held tomorrow evening at the Statler Hotel starting with a dinner at 7 o'clock.

The club will have as its guests all visiting pilots and representatives of the Army and Navy who have arrived for the races. Officials of the Air Board will also attend.

Immediately following the dinner, one or two items of club affairs will be discussed, the principal item being a plan for the club acquiring several planes for the use of club members. Following this the pilots and other guests will be presented, after which an entertainment will be provided.

On account of the necessity for getting St. Louis Field in shape for the races the public will not be admitted there today. The heavy rains of the past week softened the new ground to such an extent that it was considered necessary to allow it to dry out before it is used further. Most of the Army and Navy flyers who arrive are directed to Scott Field, where they will remain until St. Louis Field is in shape for use.

U. S. COAL COMMISSION PASSES OUT OF EXISTENCE

Body Designated to Find Out What Allied Coal Industry Submits Final Report to President.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Under the statute creating it, the United States Coal Commission, the body designated by Congress to find out what was wrong with the coal mining industry, passed out of existence tonight. The commission members called on President Coolidge and submitted their report and recommendations, which later may be embodied in legislation. The report will be released for publication Monday morning.

"The President paid a special compliment," said Chairman Hammond, "to the commission's technical staff, saying that he believed no more capable, public-spirited and unselfish body of workers had ever been recruited for Government service."

Thomas R. Marshall, former Vice President, remarked jokingly that "it was a sorry crowd," which called on Mr. Coolidge. "Dr. George Otis Smith has been reappointed to a regular job, but we are losing ours," he added. "The President did call attention to the fact there is a vacancy in the vice presidency right now, but said he had no authority to fill it by appointment."

The coal commission issued a statement praising Chairman Hammond for his devotion to his duties.

The coal commission was created as a fact finding body after the mine strikes of 1922, to determine whether Federal action should be taken to prevent recurring suspension of work.

SWEDISH INVENTOR HAS NEW OIL LIGHT

Claims Whiter and Much Cheaper Light Than Electric or Gas.

Edison enabled us to enjoy the benefits of electric light, Count Welsbach's mantle made it possible to have the incandescent gas light, but it remained for a Swedish engineer named Johnson, now living in Chicago, to devise a lamp that would burn ordinary, everyday kerosene oil and produce a light said by the many scientists who have seen it to be whiter than electric. The lamp is as simple to operate as the old style oil lamp, burns without odor, smoke or noise and is proving a sensation where oil light is needed.

Mr. Johnson offers to send a lamp on ten days' free trial and will even give one to the first user in each locality who will help introduce it. A letter addressed to L. D. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, will bring full particulars about this wonderful new lamp. He has an interesting agency offer, too.

A postal will bring one of the men or women seeking employment under situations wanted in today's Want pages.

INCREASE IN THE TARIFF DUTY ON WHEAT SUGGESTED

Minnesota Congressman Thinks It Would Result in Immediate Advance in Price and Assist Farmers.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—An increase in the tariff duty on wheat as a means of assisting western producers of that commodity was suggested today by Representative Anderson, Republican of Minnesota, who discussed the agricultural situation with President Coolidge at the White House. Anderson said he would lay his proposal before the tariff commission.

The Minnesota representative, who was chairman of the commission of agricultural inquiry, declared the present duty of 30 cents a bushel on wheat is absorbed by the differential in prices as between the United States and Canada and that an increase in duty would result in an immediate advance in the price in the Minneapolis market.

President Coolidge has authority under the tariff act to increase or decrease duties within a radius of 50 per cent but no change could be made until there had been an investigation into the difference in the cost of production in this and competing countries, which differences would form the basis for any change of tariff rates. Moreover the new rates could not become effective until thirty days after they had been proclaimed by the President.

MEXICO (MO.) CADET ADMITS ROBBING KANSAS CITY BANK

to the detectives, Burgett tried to escape in the car, but was captured by the Sheriff. "An uncle of Burgett squared it up," the detectives state, and the youth was released without prosecution.

It was supposed here that Oklahoma oil was the basis of the Burgett family's wealth. Burgett himself, so far as can be learned, never boasted here of being wealthy or well-to-do. His acquaintances ascribed this to his modesty. They emphasize the fact that he appealed to them as an unusually unassuming young man.

The home of Burgett is said to be in the southeastern part of Kansas, at the town of Independence.

It has been learned that Burgett left Mexico on Thursday, Sept. 15, for St. Louis, carrying a heavy suitcase.

Escaped With $4410 From Kansas City (Kan.) Bank.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 22.—A week ago, a daring robber held up five persons with a revolver, backed them into the vault of the Quindaro State Bank, Kansas City, Kan., and escaped with $4410. Yesterday, a 22-year-old cadet at a military academy in Mexico, Mo., was arrested on a Kansas warrant charging him with that holdup. The youth, Paul Burgett, was arrested by A. J. Reed, a Burns' agency operative, on a street of the Missouri city about which he had been riding in a luxurious motor car. Burgett signed a waver of extradition and will be taken to Kansas City, Kan.

An address on the cover of a magazine found in the package by which the robber gained entrance to the bank was the clue that led the operative to young Burgett. In a trunk believed to be Burgett's, found in the home of Sam Dyke, the operative declared he found $908.80 in silver coin. The cadet is said to have been a friend of Dyke's daughter, Miss Betty Dyke. The Burns men who found the magazine clew said that $1700 of the bank loot was in silver coin. The cadet is believed to have about $7000 in deposits in Mexico banks.

Suspected of Other Jobs.

The robber obtained entrance to the Quindaro bank by telling the cashier he had a package from a supply house. When he got inside, he dropped the package and produced a revolver. The package contained six copies of a magazine. Five of the copies had the covers torn off. The sixth was turned wrong side out giving the appearance of having no cover.

Thomas O'Leary, a Burns detective, turned the pags of the sixth copy and found the cover and the address of young Burgett's uncle, J. L. Burgett, 1952 Stewart avenue, Kansas City, Kan.

Burns operatives state that all five persons locked in the vault identified positively the picture of Burgett as that of the robber. Burns men are also attempting to link Burgett with the holdup on March 4, of the Newman Theater. They say also that Burgett's description tallies with the general description of a man who robbed the bank at Quay, Ok., last summer and lost his $3000 loot in escaping.

Seen Carrying Sack of Money.

The robber remained in the Quandaro bank 15 minutes after he had locked his victims in the vault, and answered three telephone calls for F. S. McGonigle, cashier. He explained that Mr. McGonigle "is terribly busy and cannot come to the telephone."

The delay was due to his thorough search for all the money in the place. He took not only all the paper currency in sight and the $1700 in silver money, but robbed the petty change till, dumping his loot into a flour sack. O'Leary said he traced him by persons who saw him carrying the sack six blocks away from the bank.

Instead of escaping in a motor car, as the police supposed, he calmly walked away with the money.

Burgett wore part of a military uniform. O'Leary learned that young Burgett had been home and that he had worn his uniform. He learned also that several persons had seen a man in a military uniform carrying a heavily laden flour sack.

Young Burgett lived part of the time with his uncle, who is a Federal meat inspector at the Cudahy packing plant. His mother is dead.

According to a housekeeper at the Burgett home, he left the house early the morning the bank was robbed, to return to Mexico for the fall term of school.

DEFENSE NOT TO CALL ON WARD TO TESTIFY

Affidavit Submitted at Trial Declares Son a Go-Between in Blackmail Plot Against Father.

By the Associated Press.
WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Walter S. Ward probably will not be called by the defense to tell his own story of the killing of Clarence Peters, when his trial for murder is resumed Monday, Isaac N. Mills, chief counsel for the defense, said today.

He added, however, "that, even if that is necessary, the secret of the blackmail which culminated in the shooting will not be revealed."

From other sources, considered reliable, it was learned that George S. Ward, wealthy baker and the prisoner's father, may end his self-imposed exile from the State to testify. An affidavit, submitted at the trial yesterday, declared the son a go-between in a blackmail plot against his father.

PRESSMEN'S UNION SEEKS WORKERS OUTSIDE NEW YORK

President of Parent Body Sends Appeal by Telegraph to Locals Throughout Country.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Continued refusal of all but a few members of the dissolved local pressmen's local to answer the call of George L. Berry, president of the International Union, to return to work and end the strike which has hampered publication of leading newspapers this week, today brought from Berry an urgent plea to all pressmen's unions outside the city to send men immediately to fill their places.

As Berry was dispatching telegrams to every pressmen's local in the country, the repudiated local arranged for a conference tonight of its executive and conciliatory boards and the chairman and vice chairman of the chapel local number 25.

It was announced there would be a discussion of the new contract made yesterday between Berry and the publishers' association, under which the international union would undertake to man the presses at improved wages and working conditions. It was said at union headquarters that the vote of the strikers on returning to work under the Berry agreement, to be taken at a meeting tomorrow, would be influenced to a great extent by the action of the committees and officials tonight.

Telegram to Local Unions.

Berry's telegram to local officials throughout the country said:

"The international union calls upon your local to send men to New York immediately. Draw upon local treasurer or take such means as necessary to get them here. Expenses and compensation for lost time are guaranteed by the international. Report by telegram number of men en route and when they are expected to arrive. There must be no delay in meeting the situation. Best contract ever executed in New York has been signed with all publishers. Many men engaged in illegal strike and who remain out are pursuing a course that is indefensible and in violation of every principle of American trades unionism.

"The Board of Directors is compelled to draft all available newspaper pressmen to respond to this call in order to uphold the integrity of our organization internationally, to conserve the newspaper business in New York and to accord simple justice to the public. No trade unionist can be ashamed of his conduct in responding to this call. It is clearly an obligation and the situation is deserving of an administration of courage that we cannot afford to disregard."

Statement for Union Directors.

Berry issued the following statement on behalf of the board of directors of that organization:

"The contract signed with owners of newspapers Friday night for newspaper web pressmen establishes the best conditions that have ever been operated in New York. Many of the members engaged in the illegal and now indefensible strike have refused to return to their employment, and therefore the issue as between force, that is in contravention to every American trades union principle and justice, is clearly drawn.

"The international union will make no concessions or compromises that are involved in the situation and, because of it, I am calling upon every loyal and true trades unionist, and especially every newspaper web pressman in America, to respond by reporting for service in the offices of the newspaper press rooms of New York City.

"This draft to uphold and maintain the integrity of contract, respect for law and the conservation of the newspaper industry of New York City and to accord to the public justice, must be met without one moment's delay."

Increase in Basic Wage.

Terms of the new contract include an understanding that the International Union henceforth will enter directly into relations with the publishers, provide for a reduction of working hours from 48 for night and day men to 41 and 45 hours, respectively; a $5 increase in the basic wages with time and a half and double time for certain hours. Settlement of points for conciliation is provided for and failing in that, by arbitration.

The agreement provides for an eight-hour day shift and a night shift of six and a half hours. It was stipulated, however, that the night shift must work eight hours two nights a week.

Provisions of Contract.

The contract contains the following provisions for wages:

Men in charge on day work, $54 per week.

Journeymen on day work, $48 per week.

Juniors on day work, $32 per week.

Men in charge on night work, $50 per week.

Journeymen on night work, $50 per week.

Juniors on night work, $35 per week.

SPENCER NOW FLIRTING WITH HYDE MACHINE

Senator, Dropped by Babler-Morse Combine, Calls on the Governor.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 22.—Senator Spencer was here today to confer with Gov. Hyde and to meet members of the Eighth District Republican Congressional Committee. The Senator planned to depart later for St. Louis. Hyde said he had not known Spencer was coming until he arrived.

Spencer is believed to be moving his checkers in an effort to obtain a working arrangement with the State administration for the next campaign. The Hyde men frankly are lining up the boys already, and intend to control the Missouri delegation to the Republican national convention.

Spencer, who has fallen under the displeasure also of the Babler-Morse wing of the party, according to Babler, can expect little welcome from that camp. And besides the State administration appears to have the upper hand, for the present at least. So his knock at the door has been expected for some time.

The Hyde men expect to run their leader for United States Senator against Spencer two years hence, however, so any move looking toward an alliance with Spencer that might prove embarrassing then will be frowned upon now. It is known also that Hyde himself does not court close relations with Spencer.

Just what the Senator has had in mind in his conferences with the Congressional committees, no one but himself knows. His talks to them have centered on discussions of the conditions under which Postmasters are appointed from the three candidates making highest grades at an examination, and warning the committeemen to see that their favorites make good grades.

Spencer declined to comment on Babler's published statement that Hyde, and not the Senator, would have to restore harmony in the ranks of Missouri Republicans.

EAST ST. LOUIS NEW SLOT MACHINE 'MINT'

St. Clair County Sheriff to Continue Seizures Despite Restraining Order.

Following issuance yesterday of a city court order restraining the police of East St. Louis and the Sheriff of St. Clair County from interference with slot machines within city and county, Sheriff Martin Schnipper refused to accept service, declaring he would continue to seize machines if operated.

He contended that in issuing such an order, City Judge Borders of East St. Louis went without his jurisdiction. A city court has no authority over a county officer, he declared.

"I consider slot machines gambling devices and illegal, and will act accordingly," he told Coroner Barker, who attempted to serve him with the order.

Companies distributing the machines, which have been obliged to cease operations in St. Louis since a temporary order restraining police interference was dissolved Sept. 10, apparently had transferred their activities to East St. Louis.

The fight on these devices, termed by their promoters "mint vending machines," had a long history in St. Louis, which probably will be repeated across the river. Opponents of the slot machines say the plan of the promoters is to descend on a city and "make hay" while judges deliberate upon the legality of police interference.

It will be recalled that a slot machine distributor secured a restraining order against the St. Louis police from Circuit Judge Landwehr March 1 last. Policemen had been seizing the mint-vending machines as gambling devices. The case was transferred to Circuit Judge Hartmann, who was disqualified, and then it went to Judge Hall. The latter held a public hearing May 11, and took the question under advisement.

He considered the matter almost four months, and on Sept. 10 he dissolved the restraining order. Meanwhile, during the school vacation season, the city hal been thoroughly covered by slot machines, which had children chiefly as customers. As soon as the order was dissolved, the company sent trucks around to collect its machines.

The contention of the slot-machine advocates as brought here was that as the machine delivers a package of mints for each coin inserted it is not a gambling device. Judge Hall, when he finally passed on the case, ruled that once played, the element of gambling did not enter, but that such machine had a tendency to encourage the customer to play again and again.

SERVICE FOR KLANSMAN-PASTOR

Joint Meeting in Honor of the Rev. Charles D. McGehee.

The Rev. Charles D. McGehee, pastor of the Haven Street Methodist Church, and some members of his congregation, will hold a joint service with the congregation of the Fourth Christian Church, Blair avenue and Penrose street, tonight, the service being held at the latter church, of which the Rev. C. C. Crawford is pastor.

The service is announced as in honor of the Rev. Mr. McGehee, whose bishop has announced that he will not be reappointed at next week's conference. Both pastors are identified with the Ku Klux Klan.

Negroes Caught in Stolen Auto.

Two negroes in an automobile, driving east over the Free Bridge, were halted by detectives last evening, and after questioning admitted having taken the machine, a Studebaker touring car, from the rear of the Advance Motor Co., 2929 Locust street. In the tonneau of the car a hamper of clothes was found. The clothes, two suits, a coat and other apparel, were identified by John W. Shouse as having been taken from his shoe-shine shop, 2410 South Broadway.

MRS. STOKES IDENTIFIES PICTURE HUSBAND USED AGAINST HER

Says Photograph Employed in Effort to Brand Her as Chicago Resort Inmate Was Made in Denver.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, who is suing her husband, W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy New Yorker, for divorce, today announced, according to Asisistant State's Attorney Wharton, that a picture of a young woman driving an ancient electric automobile, was a photograph of herself taken in Denver in 1906. This photograph, Mrs. Stokes has charged, was one used by agents of her husband in an effort to identify her as a former inmate of a Chicago resort known as the Everleigh Club.

The picture was shown to several former attaches of resorts by the Assistant State's Attorney in his investigation of Mrs. Stokes' charges that her husband had conspired to besmirch her reputation. His attorneys in New York have publicly stated that the charges of a conspiracy were unfounded.

KEWANEE
Stops smoke and saves fuel

In some places they won't let you smoke a cigarette on the street. But some of the big smoke-stacks go right on polluting the town and no one calls 'em down.

St. Louis has other ideas. It not only lets the people enjoy themselves, but devises ways and means to add to their enjoyment. Most of the new buildings are installing KEWANEE SMOKELESS DOWN-DRAFT FIREBOX BOILERS to kill the smoke evil, and some of these days you'll find here "a city beautiful," or one more beautiful than ever.

There are only two ways to stop smoke. Either put in a KEWANEE SMOKELESS DOWN-DRAFT FIREBOX BOILER or buy smokeless coal. Well, old dear, smokeless coal is hard to get and it costs three times as much as the other kind. The KEWANEE BOILER burns any kind of coal without smoke and the saving in fuel-cost is tremendous. So by Sherlock Holmes process of deduction, the KEWANEE BOILER is the real solution.

Demonstration is the life of salesmanship. Let us show you some of the new buildings that have been equipped with KEWANEE SMOKELESS BOILERS, and see with your own eyes how we burn cheap grades of coal without smoke. The down-draft feature is not a floating attachment. It is built into the boiler, and the whole boiler lasts a lifetime. Ask any high-class architect, any high-class heating contractor.

Write to the Old Man Behind the Boiler at Kewanee. Ask him what causes smoke. He will hand you the information in cold English without the technical festooning.

CARDS WIN AND TIE; MARSTON CAPTURES U. S. GOLF TITLE

Rickey Wins Duel of Wits From Mitchell

St. Louis Southpaw Hitters Bat Marquard for 4-1 Victory in First Contest — Second Game Called, Score 1-1.

Cardinals and Braves Play Two Games Today; Brooklyn Here Monday

THE tie game in yesterday's double-header between the Cardinals and Braves necessitated the playing of a double-header today, although only one game was scheduled originally. The first game will start at 1:30 o'clock.

Johnny Stuart, who won two games from Boston in one day early in the season, will pitch one of the games today. Bill Doak is likely to pitch the second. Oeschger and Genewich will pitch for Boston.

The Cardinals will also play a double-header Monday when the Brooklyn Dodgers open a four-game series here.

By Joseph F. Holland.

Branch Rickey and Fred Mitchell played two games of chess yesterday afternoon with baseball players as the pieces. It was a four-hour exhibition of strategic moves and carefully prepared pitfalls wherein the Cardinals won the first game and tied the second because Boston's heavy line of "inside stuff" collapsed of its own weight in the opening game and barely attained a tied score in the second, which was called in the ninth inning because of darkness. The scores were 4 to 1 and 1 to 1.

Mitchell, knowing Rickey's practice of removing left-hand batters when southpaw pitchers oppose his team, started Joe Oeschger, a right hander, in the opening game and allowed him to pitch to and retire Max Flack, the first Cardinal hitter. Then Mitchell sent Marquard in to pitch, with Rickey's left-handed hitting array in the lineup.

Southpaws Clout Marquard.

Rickey accepted the challenge and, after a tie battle of 1 to 1 had waged for seven innings, those same left-handed hitters that Mitchell had desired to face Marquard, turned upon the Boston southpaw and batted him out of the box in a three-run eighth inning rally.

Sherdel, Jack Smith, Bottomley and Mueller, four left-handed batters broke the tie with singles and tumbled the Boston ace, Marquard, from the table top.

Mitchell ignored strategy in the early stages of the second game and Jess Barnes and Jess Haines fought out a 1-1 tie until the ninth inning. Then the inevitable managerial mental processes began to rumble in the Boston dugout and Fred almost fell a victim of Rickey's carefully laid trap.

Stock opened the inning with a double to left. Bell hit to Barnes and Stock was engaged in a run-up. He finally returned safely only to find Bell on the bag. Bell was tagged out. Clemons was then purposely passed whereupon Sherdel, a southpaw hitter, went in to bat for Freigau. Mitchell took Barnes out, which made Barnes very angry, and put in Cooney, a southpaw pitcher. The next move was from Rickey and he allowed Blades, a right-handed hitter, to bat for Sherdel. Ray muffed his chance by striking out. Rickey then sent Hy Myers in to bat for Jess Haines but Cooney declined to take a chance on a right-handed hitter, at Mitchell's order, and passed him to fill the bases.

That finally brought the situation to a place where Mitchell desired it. He had his southpaw pitcher facing Max Flack, a left-handed batter. The first two pitches were balls but Cooney finally settled down and forced Flack to ground to Herman for the final out.

The world's series battery of the Braves, Barnes and Earl Smith, started the second game for Boston and Barnes would have won 1 to 0 but for Shortstop Dick Smith's error in the second inning which gave the Cardinals their only run. Barnes retired being taken out in the ninth and sailed his glove at the grandstand to show his disgust. However, he was just a victim of the "inside" maneuverings which won a pennant for Fred Mitchell with the 1918 Cubs. He didn't enjoy being a baseball "pawn."

5000 GREET DEMPSEY IN SALT LAKE CITY

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 22.—Five thousand "home folks" greeted Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, when he stepped off the train in his own city today. A parade was formed at the depot and the champion was escorted through the business section of the city where at least another 5000 had gathered to get a glimpse of the Salt Lake boy who had successfully defended his title against the "Wild Bull of the Pampas."

George Von Elm, the Salt Lake golfer, who made an enviable record at the Flossmoor meet, came in on the same train and was hailed as a fellow champion by the crowd.

LIEUT. JONES LEADING NATIONAL RIFLE MATCH

By the Associated Press.

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 22.—With a score of 288 out of a possible 300, Lieut. L. B. Jones of the 24th U. S. Infantry, Fort Benning, Ga., is leading tonight in the National individual rifle match in the National Rifle Association contests here.

Sergt. B. G. Betke, U. S. Marine Corps, with a score of 273 out of a possible 300, won the national individual pistol match over 304 competitors.

In the shot gun doubles match, Maj. W. D. Frazer, Coast Artillery Corps, Fort Monroe, Va., was high with 40 out of 50 birds. Charles E. Pray, Wallace Idaho, was second and Col. M. D. Smider, U. S. Ordnance Department, third.

The Palma team match and the international small bore match will be on a program of several events to be shot tomorrow.

Giants Win From Pirates, 4 to 3

Make Clean Sweep of Final Series—Bentley and Morrison in Hurling Duel.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 22.—Defeating Pittsburg this afternoon, 4 to 3, New York made a clean sweep of the final Giant series of the season here.

A battle between Bentley and Morrison was witnessed by 23,000 fans and was not decided until the last man was out.

Bentley had the best of the argument all the way through, and it was not until the fifth inning that Pittsburg recorded the first of their six hits.

Cuyler's three-base blow in the ninth revived Pirate hopes, but not for long, as after he scored the next two hitters failed to produce.

Doubles by Bancroft and Frisch followed by Young's single put the Giants out in front in the first inning, and they hammered one over each in the fourth and fifth innings.

East Defeats West; Tilden Is Victor Over Johnston, 8-6, 7-5

West Coast Team Wins Doubles Match When Johnston and Griffin Conquer Washburn and Williams—Kinsey Brothers Lose in Singles.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The East took the measure of the West in the annual team tennis matches today, making a sweep of the four singles contests and dropping the doubles only after a stirring three-set battle.

Vincent Richards, the youngest member of the Eastern team, took the opening singles match from Howard Kinsey, the youth from the West, 6—3, 6—2. R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia, counted the second point for the East, defeating Robert Kinsey in an extra set match, 6—4, 7—9, 6—3. William T. Tilden, national champion, won from the Western ace, Wm. M. Johnston, 8—6, 7—5, and Wallace F. Johnston, the chop stroke king, won from Clarence J. "Peck" Griffin, 7—5, 8—6.

Johnston and Griffin triumphed over Williams and Watson M. Washburn, 7—5, 3—6, 7—5 in the doubles a thrilling contest in which more than a dozen games went to deuce.

In his victory over Johnston, Tilden employed all the tricks of his powerful game. He fought a baseline battle in the first set, held the advantage from the very first game, and won in a series of thrilling rallies.

Williams carried the attack against the Westerners in the doubles, but the speed and trickiness of the pair from the West coast held sway. Washburn seemed invincible on overhead play, but was weak on half volleys.

The Eastern pair worked admirably in the second set and went well in the third until Johnston began smashing.

Richards had little trouble with the younger of the Kinsey brothers. Williams found Robert Kinsey a worthy opponent and was forced to brilliancy to defeat him. Wallace Johnson's bag of queer strokes wore down Griffin.

WASHINGTON GRIDIRON SQUAD SENT THROUGH SCRIMMAGE WORKOUT

Washington University's football squad had its first scrimmage practice of the season yesterday afternoon. The scrimmage lasted only thirty minutes, as Coach Wimberley didn't want to push the players too hard the first day of rough work, but beginning tomorrow the Pikers will have a regular session of plunging and tackling.

The squad still shows plenty of ragged edges in its work, but it is showing improvement steadily and by the time the Alumni battle takes place Saturday it should begin to take form as a football machine.

Preceding the scrimmage, Coach Wimberley put his linemen through a long workout, trying to perfect their form in blocking and rushing. Backfield Coach Davis and Don White, freshman coach, worked with the backfield men. Later, the squad was divided into two teams for a long signal practice and after the scrimmage the tackling dummy received a number of jolts to bring the day's program to a close.

VIRGINIA BAER DEFEATS ZETA DOYLE IN WOMEN'S MUNICIPAL NET TOURNEY

In the second round of the women's municipal tennis tournament at Forest Park, yesterday afternoon Virginia Baer defeated Zeta Doyle, 6—2 and 6—0, Laura M. Harris won from Bernie Johnson, 6—3 and 6—0, Norma Burgdorf defeated Frieda Wolff, 6—2 and 6—0, and Lottie Hagemeyer won from Tillit Dieteile, 6—1, 6—0.

Karl Kammann and Lottie Hagemeyer reached the semifinals of the mixed doubles when they defeated Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Allison, 6—1 and 6—0.

Third round matches of the women's tournament will be played today.

DOWNEY CALLS OFF HIS MATCH WITH H. GREB

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 22.—The 10-round bout between Harry Greb, middleweight champion, and Bryan Downey of Cleveland, scheduled at Pittsburg, Pa. Sept. 27, was called off by Downey today, due to the death of his infant daughter. Efforts are being made to have Marty Burke, light heavyweight, substitute for Downey.

Browns Play Two Games With Yanks

Double - Header Today Last 1923 Appearance of Austin's Team in New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Rain caused postponement of today's game between the Browns and the Yankees. The Browns will make their final appearance of the 1923 season at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow afternoon when the game postponed today will be played off as part of a double header.

Manager Austin plans to use Dave Danforth and Dixie Davis in the games tomorrow. Huggins said he would very likely use Shawkey and Bush.

Three Stymies Cause Downfall of Sweetser In Extra-Hole Contest

Former Champion Falters in Afternoon Round, After Leading in Morning; Squares Match, but Weakens on Hole 38.

By the Associated Press.

FLOSSMOOR, CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Setting a record for long final matches in the National amateur golf championship, Max Marston of Philadelphia, today won the title from Jess Sweetser of New York, defending champion, one up on the 38th hole, by the aid of steady golf and three stymies which he laid the former champion on the last four holes.

Neither man played sensational golf from the standpoint of medal scores, at any stage of the game. For the full 38 holes Sweetser took 162 strokes, six above par, and Marston took 164, eight above par.

Sweetser did not maintain the fast pace he had held, up to today, although he was steady and scored 75 this morning, but slipped four strokes over par on the third nine and let Marston get a lead of two up at the twenty-sixth hole after he had kept the Philadelphian down or square for 24 holes.

During the third nine Sweetser dubbed one drive, was not very good with a couple of others, popped short with two mashies, and shanked a couple in addition to missing some likely putts and from two up at the end of the morning round, he was two down turning into the home stretch.

Sweetser Squares It on 29th.

The retiring champion made a good struggle during most of the final nine, squaring the match at the twenty-ninth and even getting one up at the thirty-fourth, but then the combination of unbeatable golf and stymies, added to slips on the part of Sweetser allowed Marston to win.

At the thirty-fifth both were a trifle short in two and Sweetser, running up short, found himself not only playing against the low afternoon sun, but also against the almost impossible stymie that Marston laid him close to the hole.

Jess studied the situation motionless for fully two minutes while the enormous gallery stood dozens deep around the green like statues. Sweetser finally essayed to putt, but the English he gave the ball was not sufficient to putt it into the hole and the match was squared.

Again at the thirty-sixth, after Marston had run his third shot over the cup, Sweetser ran two feet beyond him and, to thundering applause, curved the ball into the cup for a birdie four.

Sweetser outdrove Marston on the first extra hole and tried to carry the deep sand trap directly in front of the flag on the 518-yard hole. He fell short in the pit and pitched out far short of the cup, but managed to halve in par, Marston having put his second into the rough.

The finish came on the second extra when Sweetser, after heeling his iron tee shot to the short rough at the near right hand corner of the green, ran up to within eight feet of the cup, only to have Marston's first putt stop four inches from the cup and directly on the line of his ball. The New Yorker tried the impossible, but his ball slipped by the hole and he was no longer champion.

Never before had the final round of the national championship gone so far, the longest previous match being 37 holes in 1911, when Harold Hilton of England defeated Fred Herreshoff of New York. It was, however, the second 38-hole match which Sweetser had lost this year, as he was defeated by Chick Evans at Mayfield on the second extra hole in the semifinals of the Western amateur championship, which Evans won the next day for the eighth time.

In addition to the three stymies which Sweetser faced on the last four holes, Marston laid one on the seventh hole of the morning round and Sweetser lost that hole, 126 yards, 4 to 3.

Marston Encounters No Stymies on the Green, but Trees and Fence Bother Him

Marston did not have to negotiate any stymies on the green and he putted well all the way, but he was stymied on the thirty-third hole by a tree when he hooked his drive. Marston also got tangled up with a fence on the sixth hole of the morning round and took a seven and in addition to the six he took on the thirty-third, he had one on the twenty-eighth on account of an almost unplayable lie, in some chocolate drop bunkers.

Sweetser accumulated six strokes on the seventeenth hole by slicing to a trap and on the nineteenth hole for the same reason. Outside of those holes, neither player went above five to any place and Marston shot five birdies out of the 38 holes played while Sweetser got only three.

Not only was the golf good throughout for the final round, but the contestants were so evenly matched that it was anybody's victory nearly all the way.

Sweetser Takes Early Lead.

Sweetser got a lead of one up at the fourth hole after halving the first three in par and increased it to his maximum advantage of the day on the sixth, where he won with a five, because Marston was too close to the boundary fence to shoot; dropped the advantage on the next two when his opponent first laid him a stymie on the seventh and then holed a long putt for a birdie on the eighth.

Jess recovered his two-hole advantage by winning the ninth and the thirteenth with a par four and a birdie two; and, after dropping the fourteenth, where Marston again holed a long putt for a birdie three, Jess again led by two holes, after the sixteenth and again at the end of the morning round, after having dropped the seventeenth.

The new champion, playing par 36 on the first half of the after-

Babe Ruth, Bad Boy of 1922, and A Dismal Failure in World Series, 'Comes Back' to Win A. L. Trophy

Bambino, After a Season of Suspensions and Tribulations, Apparently on the Down Grade, Unanimously Selected as the Most Valuable Player in His Circuit in 1923.

By Herman Wecke,

THE unanimous selection of George Herman (Babe) Ruth, the Yankee slugger, as the most valuable player in the American League for the season of 1923, is the story of a "man who came back." Ruth's choice this year was a greater victory than that of George Sisler last season. Ruth received 64 votes—a first place on the ballot of each of the eight sports writers—whereas in 1922 the Browns' first sacker received 59.

It will be remembered that following the 1921 campaign, Ruth ran into all sorts of trouble. First of all, he was a "bust" in the clashes with the Giants. Then against the wishes of the powers that be he went barnstorming. For this he was suspended until May 20, 1922, and in addition his world's series share of $3362 was held by Commissioner Landis.

After Ruth's suspension finally ended, he got back into the Yankee battle front. He lost his title as home-run king to Rogers Hornsby, and his batting mark fell from .378 in 1921 to .315. In addition, Ruth twice was suspended by Ban Johnson for run-ins with umpires. And again he was a failure in the world series. He was not named among the first eight in the trophy competition.

To all intents and purposes the man who in 1921 established a home-run record with 59 circuit smashes was slipping. He had had just about the worst season in his entire baseball career.

The Man Who Came Back.

But Ruth was not through. Far from it. Last spring he started early. He went to Hot Springs far in advance of the Yankee regulars. He was out to regain his lost prestige and his selection to the honor of the most valuable player in the American League indicates that he has made good—that he has really "come back."

Babe Ruth, the bad boy of 1922, was a good boy when the 1923 season opened. And Ruth has behaved all through the year. He has paid strict attention to the business of playing baseball. As a result he today has the highest batting average he has ever compiled in the majors. In fact his work this year indicates that he is at the very peak of his form. His fielding has been of high class and he has been a great team player for Miller Huggins, and as a result he was greatly responsible for the winning of the third straight pennant for the New York club.

Just how well Ruth has succeeded in his "come back" is found in the American League statistics for the season:

Batted .387 in first 141 games.

Scored 135 runs, an average of almost 1 a game.

Made 184 hits, including 36 doubles, 11 triples and 37 home runs.

Topped American League in home runs with 37 and was tied with Cy Williams for the major league lead.

Hits were good for 353 bases, an average of almost 2 bases a game.

All the above has been accomplished by Ruth in his ninth full campaign in the majors. And it followed just about as disappointing a season as ever a star went through. Probably only one person, Ruth himself, will ever know the real reason for this remarkable "come back." But the records are there and they prove that Ruth has done things this year that he never before accomplished.

Change in Batting Style Has Made Bambino More Dangerous Than Ever

The Bambino this season is still swinging for home runs. But nevertheless he has changed his batting style. As keen a judge as Urban Shock, the Browns' ace, admitted this recently. After missing two, Ruth choked his bat and has sent many hits over the heads of the infielders. This change has won many games for the Yankees.

The big fellow always could hit. Only once since he has been in the big tent has he been under .300. That was in 1916, when his mark was .272 for 67 contests. In his major league career he has compiled a combined mark of .307. Included in his record are 234 home runs and all but 20 have come in the last five seasons. That's a record that batters probably will be shooting at for years to come.

As far back as 1918, before Ruth gained fame as a hitter of home runs and when he was dividing his duties between the pitcher's box and the outfield for the Red Sox, Ruth made the assertion that "good hitters can be developed, but great ones are born."

At the same time, the Bambino made the statement that three things were necessary to good batting—a keen eye, quick brain and ability to outguess the pitcher. The first two he said were absolutely essential if a man expected to become an extra-base hitter.

Always a Slugger.

The big fellow at the same time asserted that he always could hit. Babe was discovered in 1914 by Jack Dunn, owner of the Baltimore club of the International League. At St. Mary's Industrial School, near Baltimore, in the minors and majors, batting came natural to him.

Scientific tests of Ruth made by professors at Columbia University during September of 1921, brought to the front some remarkable facts concerning the Bambino. When the scientists were through, they had the following:

That Ruth was 30 per cent more efficient than the average man and his nerves steadier. That his eyes were 12 per cent faster and that his muscles and brain co-ordinated 50 per cent better.

That may in some way account for the sensational hitting the Yankee outfielder has done since he has been in the big tent.

While Ruth entered the majors in the fall of 1914, it was not until 1919 that he really came forward as a sensation. It was that season that he established a new major league home run record of 29 as a member of the Red Sox. And since then he has been known as the "Sultan of Swat," "Home Run King," etc.

Sold to the Yankees.

It was after he had established his record of 29 home runs that on the morning of Jan. 6, 1920, the baseball world was startled by the announcement that Harry Frazee had sold Ruth to the New York club for a sum reported to be $125,000. This was the first of the famous Yankee-Red Sox trades by which the New York team obtained many a star performer.

That gave Ruth the honor of being the most expensive human chattel. But it was not until he had gone to the Yankees that he really started hitting home runs. He made 54 in 1920 and increased this to 59—the present world's record—in 1921. Last season, when he was out of something like 40 games, he hit 35, and this year owns 37. That shows that in four years with the New York club he has poled 285 four-baggers.

Ruth, Playing in Five World Series, Has Compiled Swat Average of .182

The Bambino has not been able to carry his sensational slugging to the world's series. The coming title struggle will be the sixth for the big fellow. In the five in which he has participated he has compiled a batting mark of but .182. He has hit but one home run, that in 1921 against the Giants. In the last two seasons against the Giants, Ruth was known as the biggest "bust" of the series.

Ruth's pitching activities in the world's series have brought him far more glory than his batting. He was a pitcher with the Red Sox in 1914 and 1918, and he won three games without a defeat. In 31 innings of world series hurling he was scored upon just three times. He has a record of 29 successive scoreless innings pitched in world title games.

Last season Ruth hit but .118 in five games against the Giant hurlers. This fall all indications point to his opposing the same pitchers and the same strategist—John McGraw. His work will be watched closer than ever before because of his sensational performance during the regular season.

Ruth and John McGraw.

The Babe when in St. Louis on the last trip with the Yankees said he had been a failure in two world series but that he would not be this year. And then came John McGraw. He said that Ruth had given his club no great amount of trouble in two previous series and that he did not fear him any more this year. He said that when pitched to properly, Ruth is no more dangerous than any other batter.

Which of the two is right will be determined when the games are played next month.

Ruth was born at Baltimore, Feb. 7, 1894. He stands 6 feet 2 inches and weighs close to 200 pounds, and he has had quite a time of it during his career. He was suspended several times before his troubles in 1922. In June, 1917, he was fined $100 and set down for a week, when he became enraged and hit Umpire Owens. The same time the National Commission (that body was still functioning at the time) announced that Ruth could not play until he paid Charley Deal $100 due on the purchase of an automobile. Then in May, 1919, he was set down by Ed Barrow, then manager of the Red Sox and now business manager of the Yankees, for failure to take orders.

Under Huggins, until this season, Ruth was a mighty temperamental star and various reports of his conduct have come to the front.

A High Salaried Star.

But nothing like that during 1923. The closest to any straying from the straight and narrow by the slugger was when he failed to appear for an exhibition game. This however he was able to explain satisfactorily.

Following a wrangle over salary terms with the New York club last spring it was announced in March that he had signed a five-year document calling for $50,000 a year. Shortly thereafter Col. Ruppert announced that Ruth would receive $500 extra for each home run he made. If this really is the case, then Ruth, in addition to his salary, has collected $36,000 as a result of his ability to "hit 'em out of the park," in the last two years.

Ruth's salary has never been officially announced. The closest to it came in May of this year, when Col. Huston, at that time part owner of the club, stated in court that Ruth was paid $4333.33 a month. This came out in a suit brought against the slugger. This would bring his salary much under the supposed $50,000.

Worth Every Cent of It.

That great value is placed on Ruth's services is indicated by the fact that he was insured for $100,000 last winter. His "comeback" this year also indicates that the Yankee owners will receive full value received for the long contract under which he is working.

This season Ruth has been fighting it out with Harry Heilmann, the Detroit slugger, for the batting championship of the American League. His best month was July, when he swatted .459, with 51 hits in 111 times to the plate. This also was his best month for home runs, as he connected for 10. The Babe has encountered his first swatting slump in September, as in the first 21 games, his mark was .294—the only time he has been under .300 for any month of the campaign.

The records show that in 35, just one-fourth of the games he has played, he has gone hitless. Figures show he has been passed 156 times and it is certain he will establish a new record for base on balls.

Concentration on Golf Shots Is Essential, Sarazen Writes

Former Champion Says the Only Way to Cut Down Score Is to Carefully Plan Each Shot, Keeping the Mind Constantly on the Game.

By Gene Sarazen,
(Former American Open Champion.)

(Copyright, 1923.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.

One reason why a great many good golfers fail to score well is because they fail to concentrate on their shots. I have heard many players complain about shots not coming off and about putts not dropping and in most cases I have discovered the golfer himself is to blame. It is possible for a man to be hitting the ball well and to be getting a lot of bad breaks which will prevent him from making any kind of low score. It is also possible for a golfer to be hitting his shots and yet fail to score due to lack of concentration.

Consider your own case and think over the manner in which you play a round of golf. Do you meander about the course in a happy-go-lucky way or do you think of each shot when you are about to play it? The chances are you indulge in hit-or-miss method and if you do you have no complaint if you are not scoring well.

You might say that Walter Hagen, Francis Ouimet and others often hold conversation with their opponents or with the spectators during their play. They may, but you can wager they are not giving much thought to the conversation.

Hagen in particular is one of the most painstaking players in the game. He never hurries a shot, never plays one without first figuring the lay of the land. Generally he does his reckoning while walking to his ball. But around the greens you will note he always exercises considerable care. That explains why Walter is generally among the leaders in tournament play.

Pick a Good Place on the Tee.

Once you acquire the habit of concentrating on your shots you will find your average improving. This habit can be obtained easily enough if one will set out in the beginning to form it. And this is the way it can be done.

Let us say you are about to play an important match. You are now at the first tee. Your opponent has driven off and has got away a fine tee shot. Very well, it is up to you to do likewise.

First pick out a good spot on the tee. Any place won't do, especially if the hole is a dog-leg or calls for accurate driving. Next get set properly before you start your swing. This doesn't mean you have to delay the proceedings. You can use care on all of your shots and get around quickly. In fact you will probably make better time than usual because you won't waste so many shots.

Once you have addressed the ball think of nothing else but hitting it. Forget all about previous directions. If you haven't learned them in practice it is too late now. Let us suppose you have hooked your drive to the rough. Accept your fate and begin immediately to figure on what you are going to do next.

Don't walk down the fairway, grumbling and complaining about luck. That won't do any good and will only upset you. Remember no hole is won until the ball is in the bottom of the cup. Your opponent may miss his second shot or he may take three puts.

Keep on Plugging.

But regardless of what he does, you are going to play the hole to the very best of your ability. Therefore look over the lie of the ball carefully. If it is good, use the longest club you can, provided the shot to the green calls for an iron.

Let us suppose you have hooked the second shot also and that you have caught a trap next the green. Does that mean you should give up the hole? I should say not. It is still possible for you to hole out. But again remember you are going to take plenty of time and care and get that ball out as well as you can.

Chicago to Send 40 Quintets Here For Middle West

Louisville Will Be Represented in Bowling Tournament for First Time.

When the annual championship tournament of the Middle West Bowling Association is started on the Washington alleys, Nov. 16, there is little doubt but that a record number of teams will try for honors. St. Louis boosters are trying for 300 fives, and these with requests for alley reservations from out-of-town should bring the total close to 500. It is estimated that $20,000 in prizes will be distributed among the winners.

Chicago will have the largest delegation from outside. D. A. Luby, one of the vice presidents of the association, while in St. Louis recently, announced that 40 quintets from the Windy City would come here for the competition. While Chicago at present is interested in the Middle West, Luby also was "gunning" for entries for the A. B. C., which will be held in the Windy City next February. "We will set the entry record so high that no city will be able to touch it," is the way Luby talks in regard to the A. B. C.

At least one city that has never before been entered in the tournament will send teams. This is Louisville, which has requested a reservations for four quintets on Nov. 18.

Word received from other cities shows there is wide interest in the event. Indianapolis, Toledo, Kansas City, Peoria, Denver and many others have written D. J. Sweeney, secretary of the Mid-West, and Frank Heidel, secretary of the local tournament company, asking for dates. Heidel in the matter of giving dates will follow "the first come first served" rule.

Several Changes Planned.

When the executive committee holds its meeting Nov. 17 and 18, several proposed changes will come up for discussion. One of these has to do with memberships. At present memberships are made by teams. However, several are in favor of having this changed so that any individual will be able to become a member of the Middle West Association whether he competes in the annual championships or not. It also is planned to have the association put up medals for high scores during the year. This is now done by the American Bowling Congress.

The annual meeting of the association will be held on Nov. 18, at which times officers will be elected and the city to hold the next rolling of the tournament selected. While nothing definite has been learned it is probable that Des Moines and Omaha will be the leading bidders for the next tournament.

The Middle West tournament will be the first major affair of the season, at least for bowlers in St. Louis, as the local tourneys come at later dates.

St. Louis Represented.

St. Louis will be represented in the fifth annual individual tournament to be held by Louis Petersen of Chicago. The tournament will be eight games total pins to count and the entry lists close Sept. 26. Ben Cohen, F. J. Cassin, Otto Stein Jr., Ed Schaefer, E. E. Grubb, George Corbin, Oscar Whitehead and Jerry Ameling have sent their entries. Wooster Lambert may also make the trip. First prize in the tournament will be $2000. There will be 14 prizes in addition to one for high single game.

This will not be the first year that local bowlers have tried for the honors, as last season Otto Stein and E. E. Grubb competed in the tourney.

CUBS DEFEAT PHILS 5-3; MITCHELL HIT HARD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—In a game featured by two home run drives, Chicago defeated Philadelphia today in the first game of the series, 5 to 3.

The Cubs hit Clarence Mitchell hard, getting exactly twice as many hits off the southpaw and Behan, his rescuer, as the Phillies accumulated off Vic Keen.

In the third inning Adams for Chicago hit the ball into the left field bleachers for a home run with one runner on base.

In the eighth Friberg duplicated Adams' feat but the paths were vacant at the time.

A double and a single followed Friberg's blow which sent Mitchell to the showers, Behan taking his place.

Grimes and Adams were the hitting demons, the former getting two singles and a double, while Adams tacked on two singles to his homer.

Giants Need to Win But Three Games To Clinch Pennant

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.

THE New York Giants moved a notch nearer the mathematical certainty" in the 1923 National League pennant race today when they took their third straight game from Pittsburg, eliminating whatever slim chance remained for the Pirates in the contest, and keeping their lead of four and a half games over the Cincinnati Reds.

Cincinnati kept pace with the leaders by winning from Brooklyn in an extra inning tussle, but their prospects of overtaking the flying champions appear forlorn.

The Giants now need to win only three of their remaining seven games to clinch the pennant, even if the Reds capture all of their remaining seven contests. In that event, the McGraw men would finish at the top by a half game, with the final standing as follows:

TIGERS AND RED SOX SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—In a couple of wild ball games played in a Grand Banks fog at Fenwick Park this afternoon, the Tigers and the Red Sox split even, Detroit winning the first, 10 to 0, and the Red Sox grabbing the second, 9 to 7.

The work of Dauss in the opener was brilliant, as he allowed the Sox only two hits, both of them in the fourth inning. Only 29 men faced the Tiger hurler.

Cobb and Heilmann got homers in this game and Cobb hit safely his first four times up and made several spectacular fielding plays.

The second game saw Murray hulding the Tigers until the eighth when they fell on him for five hits and five runs with none out. Quinn then replaced Murray and managed to stave off what looked like an immense Bengal inning.

Bethlehem Soccer Team Declines St. Louis Offer

Secretary Wires Local Officials Terms Are Inadequate for Exhibition Here Oct. 28.

The Bethlehem, (Pa.) soccer team will not appear here for an exhibition game Oct. 28, it was learned yesterday. Two offers were sent to the Easterners, but Secretary Kelly of the Bethlehem aggregation wired that the terms were inadequate. However, he did not state what the eleven wanted to come West for the single game.

The last offer wired to the Bethlehem club by Winton Barker, president of the St. Louis League, was for 50 per cent of the net receipts and expenses for 14 players.

It is probable that the St. Louis officials will now make an effort to bring another club here for an exhibition contest on that date.

Season Opens Oct. 7.

At a meeting this week, officials of the St. Louis League decided to open the season Oct. 7, which is the date for the closing of the 1923 baseball campaign. The referees have not been officially announced.

With the entries for the United States Football Association challenge cup series closing Sept. 25, the managers of the four teams in the local professional circuit have sent their entries east. The drawings for the first round will be made Sept. 25, according to word received by Barker, who is a member of the National Challenge Cup Committee. It is unlikely that he will attend. Other members of the committee are Thomas W. Cahill and Andrew Brown.

Other teams from the Missouri-Southern Illinois division, of which St. Louis is a member, are Gillespie, West Frankfort, Royalton Stars, Eldorado Stars and Johnston City Athletics. It also is expected that several of the Municipal League elevens will again enter the title competition.

Entry Restricted This Year.

Last season a total of 122 clubs entered. It is not expected that there will be a great many more this year, as efforts are being made to restrict the entry to only first-class clubs, those sufficiently strong to justify their making a bid for the trophy.

Among the stronger Eastern elevens already entered are the National Giants, present title holders; New York F. C., American A. A. of Harrison; Bethlehem, Fall River Albion Worsted and others. The Ardmore, Pa., team, defeated by the Scullins in the Western final last season, has not yet sent in its entry, according to word received from Cahill's office.

LYLE HURLS ARDMORE TO VICTORY OVER OKMULGEE

By the Associated Press.

OKMULGEE, Ok., Sept. 22.—The Ardmore Snappers won their first game of the play-off series of the Western Association today, 4 to 1, when an Okmulgee ninth inning rally was cut short by Big John Kling's perfect throw from deep left field, cutting off Clayton who would have scored the tying run.

The battle was all in Lyle's favor until the eighth inning, for most of the time, he had allowed only two hits while Masters had a bad third inning and let in all the Ardmore score of the game.

The fourth game of the series will be played in Ardmore tomorrow.

St. Louis Municipal Teams Break Even in Six Games With Omaha and Indianapolis

Freight Accounts, Local Champions, Defeated by Fairbanks-Morse, 2 to 0—Stanton, of Missouri State Life, Pitches 2-Hit Game in Defeating Indianapolis Team — Two Games Today.

Local municipal baseball teams broke even on a series of six games with clubs representing municipal leagues of Indianapolis and Omaha yesterday afternoon. A two-hit game pitched by Tom Stanton of the Missouri State Life team against the American Central Life of Indianapolis was the feature attraction of the afternoon. Stanton won his game, 5 to 3.

The St. Louis champions, the Freight Accounts of the Missouri, Pacific League, met with unexpected resistance from the Fairbanks-Morse team, champions of Indianapolis, and the St. Louisans were humbled, 2 to 0 at Fairground Park. The pitching of Plummer of the visiting team sparkled. He struck out 9 opposing batters and yielded only 3 hits. Fehringer was on the mound for the Freight Accounts.

Aside from the victory of the Fairbanks-Morse team, two other visiting nines set too hot a pace for their St. Louis opponents. The Woodmen of the World team of Omaha defeated the Community House club of East St. Louis, 9 to 7; and the Eatmoor team of Omaha won from the St. James nine of East St. Louis, 7 to 5.

The Rhodes-Burfords, champions of the local Empire League, walked away with their opponents from Indianapolis, the Morris Street M. E. Church team, 10 to 2, and the Smiths, Mercantile League winners triumphed over the West Side Boosters of Omaha, 7 to 1.

Thus, the St. Louis teams won 3 and lost 3 games in the first day's play of the inter-city series.

This afternoon a double-header will be played at Fairground Park. Next week end the series will be completed when St. Louis champions play at Omaha.

REDS WIN 10-INNING GAME FROM DODGERS 8-7

CINCINNATI, Sept. 22.—With the score 6 to 3 in favor of Brooklyn and two out in the last half of the ninth inning, Olson fumbled an easy roller from Kimmick's bat which permitted one run to score. Roush followed with a double, tying the score and sending the game into extra innings.

In the tenth inning a wild throw by Kimmick permitted a Dodger to score and again gave Brooklyn the lead, but they would not have it so and in the last half of the tenth Tayler made a wild heave and two Reds scored and Cincinnati won the game 8 to 7.

Brooklyn made five errors in the course of the game and Cincinnati used 19 players.

MARSTON BEATS SWEETSER AFTER 38 HOLES FOR AMATEUR GOLF TITLE

noon round, quickly squared the contest by winning the 19th and 20th with pars when Sweetser's irons would not perform. Marston squared it again with a par four on the 23rd where Sweetser dubbed his drive, after dropping the long twenty-first to Sweetser's birdie four.

Marston took the lead for the first time when he got a birdie two on the short water hole and quickly increased the advantage to two up, with a par 4 on the 26th, when Sweetser popped his approach shot half way up.

Sweetser Comes Back.

Onlookers began to whisper the opinion that Sweetser had cracked, that he was all in, that he looked tired and that Marston who never before in his long golfing career, had reached the finals, had the game won. In fact, what advantages Sweetser gained thereafter to keep the match one up, one down, or square, were largely due to slips by Marston. Marston handed him the twenty-eighth hole by getting into trouble and the short twenty-ninth to square the match by falling short in a trap whence he required two shots to extricate himself.

Marsten again slipped on the 30th hole where he pushed his tee shot into a trap, but he recovered well enough to get a par, while Sweetser flubbed his short approach and barely halved.

Sweetser again flubbed his approach on the 32nd and was one down, but showing his previous game for two holes, which he made in par four while Marston was wild, topping his tee on the 33rd and slicing to the rough on the 34th, the defender set the gallery wild by getting a lead of one up and only two to go.

Stymie is Sweetser's Undoing.

In fact the Yale student had every right to expect a half on the penultimate hole until Marston laid him the first of three stymies. From there on to the finish Sweetser never had a chance, his valiant efforts in circumventing Marston's stymie on the thirty-sixth merely prolonged his ultimate downfall, for he was weak from the first extra hole and finally and succumbed on the second.

MISS GLENNA COLLETT WINS CANADIAN WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., is the women's golf champion of Canada. After a thrilling display of golf this afternoon she defeated Mrs. W. A. Gavin of Huntercombe, England, the title holder, by the narrow margin of 2 up and 1 to play. The game throughout was a see saw between the two contestants.

Archdeacon Gets 5 Hits in 5 Tries

St. Louis Boy Helps White Sox Win Double-Header From Athletics.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22.—The White Sox took both ends of a double-bill from the Athletics this afternoon, 3 to 1 and 6 to 2.

Maurice Archdeacon, St. Louis boy, playing center field for the White Sox, got five hits in as many times at bat in the second game, one of his hits being a double. In addition he scored two runs and stole a base.

The first game was clinched for the Sox when they scored one run in each of the first three innings. These proved sufficient behind the tight hurling of Mike Cvengros who allowed the Mackmen but 5 hits.

Rommel pitched parts of both games and was charged with the defeat in the first one.

The second game was made easy for the Sox when the Athletic pitchers issued seven bases on balls and the fielders turned in two errors.

LYNCH AND BURMAN TO MEET IN TITLE CONTEST AT NEW YORK, OCT. 12

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Joe Lynch of New York will defend his bantamweight title against Joe Burman of Chicago in a 15-round match at Madison Square Gardens on the night of Oct. 12, unless there is a hitch in the State Athletic Commission's present plan to lift the champion's suspension next Tuesday.

Lynch paved the way for his reinstatement and complied with the Commission's requirements today by posing a $2500 forfeit for the match with Burman. He was suspended some time ago and his title declared forfeited to Burman for failure to accept the latter's challenge within the required six months period.

Later, however, it was revealed that the two fighters had come to an agreement a few days before the expiration of this period, though failing to so notify the Commission. Thus, in order to comply with the State boxing regulations, Lynch assumed the position of challenger and posted the forfeit to clinch the match.

Dempsey Giving Public a Poor Return for Fortune Paid Him, If He Remains Idle for a Year

Demands That He Meet Harry Wills and Tom Gibbons, Before Taking on Firpo in a Return Bout, Heard Everywhere — Titleholder, Sated With Honors and Money, Plans Rest.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

World's Champion Jack Dempsey's last bulletin to the fight world was: "No more fights for one year!"

Full of honors, with an income of close to $400,000 annually, with property sufficient to enable him to pass the remainder of his days in luxury, the champion's ambition is dulled to the stopping point. Since he does not wish to fight, all championship progress is stopped.

Jack says that there is nobody for him to fight, except Harry Wills, and nobody wants to promote that fight; that he has beaten every contender now on the map and he wants to know why he should go through the anguish of long preparation for a title fight, merely to knock out some boxer who wants another chance.

"Second Chance" Candidates Fail.

The history of "another chance" candidates in the ring is an argument in favor of no fight, Jack says, since all in the heavyweight division have come to grief.

However, we hope Dempsey's decision is not adhered to. He really owes it to the American public, that has contributed to his personal fortune a sum close to $1,000,000, to fight Harry Wills, and end all the conversation about his running away from the negro.

As a matter of personal pride Dempsey should brush aside the obstacles and insist on meeting this ageing blackbird before Wills becomes so old they will say mean things about Dempsey.

For a long time it was admitted that Wills was the only real contender in the game with a chance to check Dempsey's advance. Dempsey got around the situation for over a year by consenting to fight and then postponing the arrangements for the funeral. Later on it was given out that no promoter cared to handle the contest; but nevertheless there was one in the field.

Still later, when Wills and his manager went to the mat with an injunction and lost out, Dempsey declared that just because Wills resorted to the courts to get what Dempsey had promised him, he (Dempsey) would NEVER fight the negro.

Bout Is Not Wanted.

And so it stands now, although Kearns diplomatically denied that Dempsey had meant the "NEVER" part of his assertion. The fact remains that the bout is not wanted on Dempsey's, or at least Kearns' part.

This is hard to understand, for Dempsey ought to defeat Wills, if the rules are enforced at all. Wills is a foul fighter and that is the only justification for Dempsey's failure to meet him.

Dempsey owes it to the public to box Tom Gibbons again, if he cares to cleanse that spot from his escutcheon. For being held 15 rounds by Gibbons, 32 years old and much lighter in weight, was as much of a stigma as being knocked clear out of the ring by a man Dempsey's own camp had described as a combination sandwich—ham and egg.

Dempsey is not afraid of either of these men, whom he should meet within six months, but he is weary of the fight game. He told the writer that his ambition was not the same as when he was fighting his way upward. The strain of working for a fight gets on his nerves.

Firpo Should Benefit by Delay.

It is probable that Dempsey and Firpo will fight again, one year hence. That will give Firpo time to acquire more experience and perhaps the American style of fighting. It will remove all his alibis.

We do not think it will do the Wild Bull any good to try new methods at his time of life. His native fighting force is his chief asset and always will be. Attempts to teach him boxing will rob him of his power. It has nearly always had this effect on heavyweight fighters.

What WILL do him a lot of good, is the ring poise he will gain if he fights often during the next year. That will be better than teaching him new tricks. And should Dempsey remain idle another year as he declares he will, the situation will be materially altered in favor of Firpo.

The mere rust of idleness on Dempsey's part, while his opponent constantly tunes up, will be sufficient to more nearly equalize the men.

None who sat at ringside at the fight Sept. 14 will again apply the epithet "cheese" to the South American.

The victory will go to the big wallop; and as between the two, an idle Dempsey and an active Firpo, many may grab up odds of 3 to 1 against Firpo, where 5 to 1 went begging last time.

The commission may have something to say to Dempsey, who is licensed under the State of New York. The commission rules demand that

My Play, Brother Of Man o'War, Is Aqueduct Winner

Son of Fair Play Covers Mile and Five Sixteenths Within Fraction of Record.

RACE RUN IN THE MUD

Jockey Schuttinger Rides in Fine Form—Gold Cup Winner Finishes Third.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—My Play, the full brother of Man o' War, distinguished himself before a big half-holiday crowd at Aqueduct today by running one mile and five-sixteenths over a track full of puddles in the remarkable time of 2:11 3-5. This was within three-fifths of a second of the track record established in the same race a year ago by Prince James under 105 pounds.

My Play could have equaled or bettered the record, even with 121 pounds up, if Andy Schuttinger had so willed. The jockey never rode a better race. After saving ground in the run around the first turn, where Sunsini went wild, he took a gentle hold of his mount and let the latter go to the front.

In the run up the back stretch and around the turn he rated My Play carefully and patiently, within easy striking distance of Sunsini, and then brought him along half way down the stretch to win with something in reserve.

My Play's Backers Scared.

Many thought that Schuttinger was taking things too easily at the last sixteenth, but the boy knew hat his mount was running strongly and sat perfectly still as he ran head-and-head for a few strides with his chief rival and then gradually drew out.

My Play is one of the handsomest horses in training, and once again proved himself today, by the easy way in which he defeated Sunsini, to which he was conceding 21 pounds actual weight and 12 pounds according to the scale.

Homestretch, winner of the Gold Cup at Belmont Park last Saturday was never a contender.

Small fields, a heavy track and a light, misty rain which dotted the lawn from time to time with umbrellas, operated against the kind of racing which has been served up so consistently this year on Saturdays. In spite of it all, however, the crowd was big, almost as big as if some classic stake was down for decision.

BEN IRISH ENCOUNTERS FURTHER DIFFICULTY IN OBTAINING DONOGHUE

(Copyright, 1923.)

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Ben Irish is less optimistic over the prospects of securing Steve Donoghue in the international match race at Belmont Park on Oct. 20 than he was several days ago, he told the Post-Dispatch and New York World here today.

If Donoghue doesn't go, Mr. Irish said, Ed Gardner will make the trip instead. Donoghue today attempted to get J. Singer, who has an option on the services of Bullock, to release that jockey so that he could ride J. B. Joel's My Lord in the Cambridgeshire. Singer asked time to consider the matter.

"I have not heard anything about this," Mr. Joel said today.

"If Donoghue succeeds in getting Bullock to ride My Lord for you, will you release Steve and let him go to America?" he was asked.

"In that case, yes," said Mr. Joel.

Papyrus spent his first night on board the Aquitania, moored to the pier at Southampton, better than was expected. He ate well and slept as well as if he were in his own stable. The Channel was rough, however when the Aquitania put out to sea.

ENGLISH AND INDIAN POLO FOURS TO PLAY U. S. TEAMS TOMORROW

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Rain prevented the polo holiday that had been prepared today at the Meadowbrook Club. The two days' downpour left the fields at Westbury in such soggy condition that play was deemed impossible.

The two matches that were to have been played today have been scheduled for Monday afternoon. In the first the Flamingo team, from Miami Beach, will meet the British army team. In the second postponed match the reorganized Shelburne outfit will meet the Tiger combination, which came all the way from India to participate in the tourney.

Other matches will be played on Wednesday and Saturday of the coming week, unless rain interferes with the schedule still further.

FIRPO TO VISIT CANADA BEFORE RETURNING HOME

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Luis Angel Firpo today definitely decided to visit Canada before returning to his native Argentina but the trip will be of short duration. According to his present plans, the "Wild Bull" will leave New York next Tuesday night, box Elisear Roux, French Canadian giant, at Montreal on Wednesday night, and return here the following day to prepare for his departure to South America.

Before he returns to receive the plaudits of his countrymen, however, the man who knocked Champion Jack Dempsey through the ropes before going down to defeat will visit several other South American countries. Firpo plans to go by way of the Panama Canal to Lima, Peru, where he will stay for a week giving several exhibitions, then proceeding to Valparaiso, Chile. It was in Chile that Firpo first showed his real pugilistic wares and boxing fans there are as enthusiastic followers of the big heavyweight as his own country.

TRIPLE A HANDBALL TOURNEY OPENS OCT. 13

The annual doubles handball tournament at Triple A will start Saturday afternoon, Oct. 13. All matches will be played on Saturdays and Sundays. Each match will be decided by two out of three games, except the semifinals and finals which will be three out of five. Winners will be awarded medals.

All handball players in the city, whether members of Triple A or not are invited to enter the tournament.

Walter Kammann and John Stratton, city firemen, winners of last year's event, have entered.

J. Mason, 1461 Franklin avenue, has charge of the arrangements and all desiring to enter may communicate with him.

Kinsey Brothers To Open Courts Of New Net Club

Exhibition Matches to Be Played at Forest Hills, Clayton, Tuesday Afternoon.

By Davison Obear.

Robert and Howard Kinsey, the second ranking doubles tennis team in the United States, will open the courts of the newly organized Forest Hills Tennis Club on Tuesday afternoon. The Californians will play exhibition singles and doubles matches with local players, starting promptly at 2.30 p. m.

The Forest Hills Club was organized in the spring by a few tennis enthusiasts and during the past summer has made remarkable progress. Five tennis courts with regulation backstops are ready for play. A clubhouse has been erected and contains locker rooms and showers for men and women players. One hundred steel lockers have been purchased and some of them have been placed in position.

The club ground is at the corner of Ladue and Price roads in Clayton, just across from the northeast section of the St. Louis Country Club grounds. The clubhouse is west of the courts. A porch surrounds the building, the eastern side of which affords a full view of the five tennis courts.

Space for Five More Courts.

Space has been provided for five additional courts. They will be ready for play next season. Grandstands and driveways will be built during the coming year. Transportation facilities from the end of the University car line will also be arranged for next year. The grounds can be reached in ten minutes by automobile from DeBaliviere avenue.

The Forest Hill Club is the first large organization devoted exclusively to the game of tennis to be formed in the St. Louis district. It is somewhat similar to the Rockhill Club in Kansas City, the leading tennis organization in that city.

John E. Mooney, vice president of the St. Louis District Tennis Association, is the sponsor of the Forest Hills club. He conceived the idea of forming the club on account of the crowded conditions in the western section of the city. The grounds are being used through the courtesy of Mrs. John Mooney who holds the title to the property.

Membership Limited.

The membership is limited and already three of the first ten ranking players have joined as well as a number of other players and officials. It is planned to double the initiation fee after Nov. 1. No dues will be paid until next year. Officers of the club are John E. Mooney, president; G. B. Donaldson, vice president; Thomas Gaukel, 506 Olive street, secretary, and H. G. Brouster, treasurer.

Next season the club will hold tournaments and matches for its members. The Forest Hills organization is a member of the St. Louis District Tennis Association and affiliated with the Missouri Valley and United States Lawn Tennis Associations.

NATIONAL PROFESSIONAL GOLF TOURNEY OPENS MONDAY AT PELHAM, N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Golf stars of the salaried clan will gather Monday at the Pelham Country Club, Pelham Manor, N. Y., for the annual Professional Golfers' Association championship. A field of 64 players, comprising the pick of "pros" from all parts of the country who survived preliminary qualifying tests, will tee up in quest of the title now held by Gene Sarazen of Briar Cliff, former open champion.

Most of the stars have been "seeded" in the draw which was made public today. They are grouped in the quarters in the following order:

Mike Brady, Birmingham, Mich., and Jock Hutchinson, Chicago; Jim Barnes, Pelham, and Gene Sarazen; Fred McLeod, Washington, D. C., and Walter Hagen, New York; Joe Kirkwood, New York, and George McLean, Bronxville, N. Y.

The only star of national repute missing is Bobby Cruikshank of West Field, N. J., runner-up to Bobby Jones in the National open. Cruikshank was off form in the Metropolitan preliminary test and failed to qualify.

The tournament is an elimination affair. Thirty-two matches are scheduled on the opening day, all at 36 holes, a departure from previous years when the earlier rounds were limited to 18 holes.

LANG RIDES THRILLING RACE TO PUT DUNLIN HOME AHEAD OF VIGIL

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 22.—In a stirring finish, J. S. Cosden's Dunlin, splendidly ridden by Chick Lang, annexed the $10,000 Potomac Handicap, star feature of this afternoon's card, by a neck. W. J. Salmon's Vigil was second and Caladium third, four lengths away.

When the barrier was released, Lang took Dunlin right to the front. Vigil was on his neck and in this way they rounded the first turn and ran down the back stretch. On the turn for home Vigil showed in front and it looked like he had the race won, but Dunlin was not beaten. Lang nursed him along and at the sixteenth pole, sat down and rode the race of his life, getting up in the last two jumps to win by a neck from Vigil.

Champion Pelicans Lose.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS La., Sept. 22.—Although outhitting their rivals more than five to one, the Champion Pelicans were shut out today by Little Rock, 1 to 0. Two bases on balls and a single accounted for Little Rock's lone run, in the second inning.

A double by McCall in the eighth was the only other hit the visitors obtained. Robinson was hurling good ball when he was taken out after the fifth to let Winn get a chance to warm up.

Carbone in Shape For Malone Bout

Veteran Middleweight Shows Top Form in New York Workout, Heyman Writes.

Leo Heyman, the St. Louis boxing enthusiast and former promoter, who has been in New York for two weeks, writes that Frank Carbone, the veteran middleweight fighter who is to box Jock Malone at the Coliseum here, next Tuesday night, is at the top of his form.

"From the way Carbone worked yesterday at Stillman's Gymnasium," Heyman says, "St. Louis fans will see a great contest. Carbone is in fine shape and made his sparring mates take to cover. Although Carbone is an oldtimer, he still has plenty of stuff."

Word from both Malone and Carbone received here indicates that both will be on hand tomorrow in advance of their bout, ready to put the finishing touches to their training.

This will be a contest between one of the cleverest boxers in the game, and a fighter, Carbone. Malone's hands have been under suspicion, however. If his mitts are O K Malone will be a difficult foe to outpoint.

Veteran Trainer Is Dead.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., Sept. 22.—James Gray Lathrop, who trained college athletes for 30 years, died today after a long period of failing health. He was 70 years old. He was trainer at Harvard from 1884 to 1894, then went to Bates and Bowdoin and later to the University of Wisconsin. While at the latter institution in April, 1910, he had a stroke of apoplexy.

Winning of National Title Tops Marston's Best Year on Links

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.

MAXWELL R. MARSTON, victor today in a sensational match with Jess Sweetser for the national amateur golf championship at Chicago, has been knocking at the portals of links fame for years.

This season has been Marston's best. Picked for the American team that invaded England in May, to defend the Walker Cup international championship trophy, he proved a bulwark in the series which the United States won by the narrowest of margins, 6½ to 5½, after a sensational rally. Marston accounted for two of the winning points, defeating W. L. Hope in the singles, and with Bob Gardner, downing Robert Harris and C. V. L. Hooman for America's only point in the foursomes.

Marston, a member of the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, captured both the Philadelphia District and Pennsylvania amateur titles this season, winning the state crown for the third successive year.

WALTER STIRLING WINS GRAND CIRCUIT FEATURE

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 22.—The Chamber of Commerce $2000 stake for 2:08 trotters proved to be the feature of the five events on today's Grand Circuit program. It developed into a four-heat battle, Walter Sterling finally winning.

The first heat went to Walter Sterling, but in the second he was pocketed and Taurida, making her second start in as many days, won. Just David, the favorite, took the third, Walter Sterling making a bad break. Walter Sterling also broke in the fourth heat but closed up rapidly and finally won.

The favored Merriman won the other stake event of the day, the Southern Hotel event for $2000, open to 2:11 pacers, in straight heats. Halbee was the contender each time.

High School Teams Open Grid Season

Central Loses to Alumni 6 to 0 —Yeatman and Ranken Elevens Scrimmage.

For the first time this season football teams of local high schools went into action yesterday afternoon. Central High School's eleven tackled a team composed of former Central players and was beaten 6 to 0.

Elmer Kershaw, formerly of Missouri University, and Bob Lentsch, a star of last year's Central team, were the best performers for the Alumni. It was on a fake buck in the second quarter that Kershaw found his opportunity to worm his way through the High School line for 30 yards for the only score of the game.

Though beaten the Central team was always on the aggressive and it was only by narrow margins that they missed several touchdowns.

CARBON APPARATUS ENDS ODORS FROM RENDERING PLANT IN PENNSYLVANIA

Compelled to Cease Polluting Air or Get Out Concern Finds Abolishing Smell Is Simple and Not Costly.

By Ellwood Hendrick.
A Distinguished Chemical Engineer and Author.

THE owners of a fat-rendering establishment in a Pennsylvania city were told by the municipal authorities to cease polluting the air with its stenches or to move away. The decision was final and conclusive, and neither argument was invited nor discussion permitted. Public opinion was aroused and it refused to blow over. The people of the city were fed up with futile attempts to cure smellings by hearings. So long as the smelling continued they refused to listen to hearings. The municipal authorities sensed the idea and acted accordingly.

The proprietors discovered that there is a chemical phenomenon and that it is not eliminated by argument. Their privilege to continue was not to be obtained by lawyers; their only hope was in science. On starting inquiry they soon learned that chemistry had already solved their problem, so that within a few weeks simple new equipment was installed and, presto! they were able to carry on their business without offense. It was easy and not even very expensive.

No Complaints Now.

After a while trouble began again, and one glance told the cause. Not being engineers, they had let their apparatus grow leaky. As soon as this was made air tight their troubles were over, and they are now operating without complaint from anybody.

The air of a city, so often polluted with the sickening odors of our slaughter houses and rendering works, could be entirely cleared within a couple of months by the same means.

So far as fat rendering is concerned, there is still another method called dry rendering that makes a superior product and is said to avoid bad odors. But, with activated carbon such as we shall describe, it is possible to operate even the big garbage disposal plant without offense after the material is unloaded in the building. Room odors may be disposed of as readily as kettle-smells.

Among the curious notions that have followed our previous efforts to destroy these effluvia with our noses has been the statement that the same nuisance is a necessary accompaniment to the preparation of kosher meat. The only thing to do with such precious information is to tell it to the marines. It is not about as true as that people don't mind bad smells and there's nothing but politics in the complaints.

Bad Smells Mean Misery.

The sense of smell is one of the most interesting of subjects, although we know less about it than we do of any of our senses except touch. But we know some things, and among them is the fact that it is so intimately associated with our nerve centers that it affects us both consciously and unconsciously.

An offensive odor that persists may cease to bother us, so far as we are aware, and we may grow so accustomed to it that we do not even smell it. But all the while it continues to affect us; it upsets our processes of digestion, destroys Mother's good temper, gives Mother nervous prostration, and makes the children wayward and ungovernable. We could fill column after column with interesting notes about the remarkable sense of smell, telling how subtle and agreeable some of the worst poisons are, how others which at first are offensive become agreeable as they grow deadly, how various odors delight some persons and bring misery to others, and the amazing effects of odors on memory and of the immense unexplored field of the use of the nose in observation. But our business here is with the odors of putrefaction and decay, which are generally offensive and which tend to make us sick. We want to be rid of them, if we may.

What is it that causes the misery and smells? What is it that happens when a dead rat lies hidden in the cellar and, although we do not see it, we are convinced that it is there? The basis of our faith is nothing less than exceedingly minute particles of the rat itself. These particles of decay are produced as the substance of the erstwhile living animal resolves itself from the complex balance of compound present in life into those simpler ones which do not require vitality to maintain them. They diffuse themselves in the ratio of one part to millions of parts of air—nevertheless, we become keenly conscious of their presence.

Like Explosion in Nerves.

As we inhale, these particles lodged in the lipoid substance that covers the termini of the olfactory nerves in the nostrils, and there they produce a chemical effect like an explosion of infinite minute particles. This incident is telegraphed through the olfactory nerves to the brain, where we become conscious of the phenomenon and respond to it with the reaction which we express in the words, "Dead rat!" or other language. Science has been so dilatory in the study of olfactory phenomena that it has not even given a specific name to those distressing particles of decay and rot.

Slaughter houses, rendering establishments, some soap factories, glue works and garbage recovery stations suffuse the surrounding air with these particles. They break up families, instigate separations, divorce and abandonment, discourage ambition and injure society generally. For years, when the wind was right—or, rather, wrong—citizens of New York have been persecuted by these particles that announce the demise of cattle, sheep and swine.

The Pennsylvania people learned what every up-to-date chemist knows, that during the war gas masks were necessary to rid the air breathed by soldiers of poison fumes and that the principle absorbent was activated carbon. Now, carbon we have known in three forms—as diamond, as graphite and as what we call amorphous, such as charcoal. But research has discovered two major differences in amorphous carbon— that among many kinds of it some are active and others are passive.

Active carbon has the property of causing molecules of a certain complexity to cling to its surface and stay there, while pure air composed of the simple molecules of nitrogen, oxygen, carbon dioxide, water and the atoms of the rare gaseous elements such as helium, argon and so forth, are driven on unaffected. Activated carbon of the right kind is a perfect trap and, being very porous, it has immense surface areas, so that a comparatively small amount will clear a great deal of air. Passive carbon is inert. This we learned during the war.

New York is headquarters of a great chemical corporation which, like other corporations, is in business to make money. Its long suit is carbon products, and its administrators know that the way to succeed in chemistry is to keep ahead of the game, and that this is only to be accomplished by a great laboratory, thoroughly organized, with men and women of rare scientific scholarship and keen acumen and originality, all working together in it. This coroporation has such a laboratory in Long Island City, where for a long time they have been diligently at work finding out things about that curious, puzzling element we call carbon. It is doubtful if such intensive and elaborate work is addressed to this subject anywhere

Lloyd George Says Spreading Reaction Against Democracy Has Swept Spain

"Which Country Will Be the Next"—Disturbing Elements in Germany Considered to Be Threatening and Next Few Months Are Expected to Show Test of Strength.

War-time Premier of Great Britain.

LONDON, Sept. 22.

THE Spanish coup d'etat is part of the general movement of reaction against democracy which has arisen since the war.

It started with the bolshevik revolution; it swept over Italy; it has captured Bulgaria and its latest phase is the military insurrection in Spain. In fact, one of the most remarkable products of the war has been the initiation and extension of movements throughout Europe bearing the Facist character.

In essence, bolshevism and fascism are revolts against parliamentary methods of government—in other words, against the democratic conception of government. In some quarters there is growing discontent with parliamentarism because of its dilatorisess, its constant failure to attain its ideals. Ardent reformers are always, in the end, disappointed with the percentage of achievement which democracy yields to the tonnage of oratory. Most of them get discouraged altogether and either abandon the vain pursuit or relapse into languid support of conventional programs.

Now and again a man arises who gets angry and, rudely brushing aside representatives chosen by the people, resorts to direct action. That accounts for Russia. In other quarters there is deepening distrust of democracy because of its menace to existing interests and comforts, its supposed readiness to make unwise concessions to popular clamor, its reluctance to govern firmly when firm government gives temporary offense—because, in fact, it is too anxious to please. That was the complaint of Italy.

Cromwell First Fascist

Signor Mussolin would probably claim Caesar as his protoype, but Cromwell was the first great modern Facist. Carlyle's description of Pride's purge gives the whole stubstance of fascism:

"'Come, come,' exclaimed my Lord-General, in very high key, 'we have had enough of this'—and, in fact, my Lord-General, now blazing all up into clear conflagration, exclaims: 'I will put an end to your pratings,' and steps forth on to the floor of the Hause, and, clapping on his hat and occasionally 'stamping the floor with his feet,' begins a discourse which no man can repeat! He says: 'Heavens!' he is heard saying, 'it is not fit that you should sit here any longer. You have sat too long here for any good you have been doing lately. You shall now give place to better men. Call them in,' adds he, briefly, to Harrison, in words of command, and some 20 or 30 grim musketeers enter with bullets in their snaphances, grimly prompt for orders, and stand in some attitude of 'carry arms' there. Veteran men of might and men of war, their faces are as the faces of lions and their feet are swift as the roes upon the mountains—not beautiful to the honorable gentlemen at this moment."

There you have the whole attitude of the Facist in this historical deed of the greatest modern example of the type—Oliver Cromwell—described sympathetically by the greatest exponent and advocate of the doctrine—Thomas Carlyle.

Movement Started in Russia

The present movement started not in Italy but in Russia. The first great Facist of today is not Mussolini but Lenine. He was the first to substitute force for popular election in a democratic state. Bolshevism was not a revolt against Czarism and Russian Grand Dukes. It was a revolution aimed at the overthrow of another revolution, which had already overthrown the ancient regime. Russia was a republic, the Czar was a prisoner, the last surviving Grand Duke was in exile, the land of Russia had been confiscated and distributed amongst the peasant before Lenine took a hand in the Government. He rebelled against the new parliamentary regime of which Kerensky, the Socialist, was chief. He grew contemptuous of the volgas of rhetoric which flowed from the first Russian revolution. Endless talk, which never froze but which was nevertheless not navigable. It carried nothing, it turned nothing, it was all talk. It could not fight and it would not make peace. It undoubtedly had behind it an overwhelming majority of duly chosen representatives of the Russian people.

But Lenine had just as great a contempt for the will of the people as Mussolini. He therefore enrolled his followers into an army which swept away the newly created parliamentary system and substituted for it a Cromwellian regime, based on organized force. It was the rule of the armed saints of Communism.

The soviet system of election is a farce. No man who is opposed to bolshevism has a chance of appearing at the Central Assembly. Lenine does not attempt to conceal his opinion that the people are not fit to govern. He does not believe in democracy and he strangled democratic experiment ere it had left its cradle.

Bolshevism is not a gigantic plundering of propertied classes for the benefit of the impecunious proletariat. That is not an exhaustive, even if it is an accurate, definition of its doctrines. It is all that but it is much more. It teaches the proletariat to sacrifice everying for the bolshevik state and its adherents realy sacrifice life, comfort, liberty, at the behest of the soviet leaders. All the miscalculations with regard to bolshevism have come from the failure to recognize this dominant factor in its composition. It is the spirit that animates fascism in Italy, and as long as it continues, bolshevism will rule Russia and fascism will govern Italy.

Opposed to Democratic Government

But they are both fatal to democratic government. Lenine and Mussolini alike despise parliamentarism. The bolshevik attitude towards democratic institutions is stated unequivocally by Trotsky in his famous reply to Kautsky, the champion of democratic socialism:

"The path of Socialist ideas, which is visible through all deviations and even betrayals, foreshadows no other outcome but this: to throw democracy aside and replace it by the mechanism of the proletariat at the moment when the latter is strong enough to carry out such a task."

He quotes with approval Paul Lafargue's view of parliamentary government:

"Parliamentarism is a system of government in which the people acquires the illusion that it is controlling the forces of the country itself when, in reality, the actual power is concentrated in the hands of the bourgeoisie, and not even of the whole bourgeoisie but only of certain sections of that class."

After a violent attack on the parliamentary regime as an instrument of the bourgeoisie, the celebrated Russian bolshevist leader goes on:

"The soviet regime, which is more closely, straitly, honestly bound up with the toiling majority of the people, does achieve a meaning,

Spreading Reaction Against Democracy Now Threating Germany Says Lloyd George

"WHICH will be the next country? These coups have been attempted in Germany, Communists and reactionaries in their turn, but so far with no success. The enemies of democracy are still on the watch—perhaps on the pounce. If things go badly for Germany, they will in all probability spring their conspiracies. Will they prevail? If so, which of them? Much depends on the answer which the coming months will give to these questions."

"The Spanish coup d'etat is part of the general movement of reaction against democracy which has arisen since the war. It started with the Bolshevik revolution; it swept over Italy; it has captured Bulgaria and its latest phase is the military insurrection in Spain."

"In essence, Bolshevism and Fascism are revolts against parliamentary methods of government."

"The present movement started not in Italy but in Russia. The first great Fascist of today is not Mussolini but Lenine. He was the first to substitute force for popular election in a democratic state."

"The spreading reaction against democracy is a serious movement, which needs careful watching in all countries. It has the sympathy of extremists on the left as well as on the right * * * For this weapon is at hand for the Communist as well as the Conservative to handle. If General Primero saved it in Spain, Lenine snatched it in Russia and his followers are still wielding it with merciless power."

"Democracy has its faults * * * But the great lesson of war is that democratic institutions bear a prolonged national strain where autocracy breaks down."

Lenine Is Called First Modern Fascist and Soviet Leader, Mussolini and Primo Rivera All Are Declared to Be Affecting Cromwellian Manner.

jority—dungeon of Peter and Paul in Russia and castor oil in Italy!

Parliamentarism Overriden

not in statically reflecting a majority but in dynamically creating it."

We know something of these antiparliamentary methods of "dynamically creating" a majority—dungeon of Peter and Paul in Russia and castor oil in Italy!

Mussolini does not deny that, although the objects of bolshevism and fascism are different, their methods have much in common. A recent election, based on universal suffrage, gave him 36 followers in a Parliament of 400 members. Under the parliamentary system, he hardly counted as a force. He was far from being the choice of the democracy. He then struck a Cromwellian attitude and indulged in Cromwellian phraseology.

But for the sacrifice of his followers in the great war, Italy would have been the vassal of the Central Powers. Their valor preserved Italian liberties, their voices must therefore be paramount in determining how the Italy they had preserved should be governed. They could not any longer permit the country for which they had fought and for which 600,000 of their comrades had lost their lives to be misgoverned by a succession of feeble and incompetent administrations. If the old-established political machines were too skillfully handled to enable fascism to secure a majority in Parliament, so much the worse for Parliament. The "prating" must, at any cost, be stopped. Talkers must "make room for better men," so a hundred thousand armed Fascists march on Rome to depose parliamentarism. Mussolini's attitude towards Parliament is best given in his own words, as summarized in a reliable report:

"The party was accused of despising Parliament. This was not the case. Parliament had nearly ceased to have any importance, owing to the death wound dealt it by syndicalism and journalism. Under the new electoral law which he intended to give the country, Parliament would once more become a living body. Fascism was still strong enough by itself and, said the Prime Minister, 'I do not intend to sell my birthright for a mess of pottage—the collaboration of the dregs of Italian political life.' If collaboration was to be offered, it must be wholehearted and uncritical. 'I do not deny the people,' Signor Mussolini concluded, 'their jus murmurandi, but this must not be exaggerated.'"

There can be no mistaking the meaning of these words. The people may exercise their right to murmur in and through Parliament, but that limited right must "not be exaggerated." Fascism was "strong enough in itself," whatever Parliament chose to do or not to do. This is the real Cromwellian attitude.

Spain Follows Suit

Spain now follows the example of Russia, Italy and Bulgaria. The existing Spanish Parliament was only recently elected on a basis of universal suffrage. There was a Liberal government in power which, judged according to all constitutional usage, enjoyed the confidence of that Parliament. It did not, however, enjoy the confidence of all classes in the country. What party government does? But in this case, opposition was powerfully entrenched in the army command. That is also the case in other lands, and that fact, once upon a time, proved to be a serious menace to the life of the third republic in France. It was saved by Clemenceau, Waldeck, Rousseau, Reinach, Zola and many other strong men who believed in liberty.

In Spain the army has successfully arrogated to itself the functions of a parliamentary majority. It has now formed a government. The principle of popular sovereignty expressed by parliamentary institutions is set aside in favor of the Cromwellian principle that if Major-Generals are dissatisfied with the working of these institutions, they can at any moment step in to regulate them.

Which will be the next country? These coups have been attempted in Germany by communists and reactionaries in their turn, but so far with no success. The enemies of democracy are still on the watch—perhaps on the pounce. If things go badly for Germany, they will in all probability spring their conspiracies. Will they prevail? If so, which of them? Much depends on the answer which the coming months will give to these questions.

The spreading reaction against democracy is a serious movement, which needs careful watching in all countries. It has the sympathy of extremists on the left as well as on the right. Only a few years ago the British trade unions were temporarily captivated by the idea and called it "direct action." The extreme Conserv-

Italy, Once Most Talkative of Countries, Becomes Land of Whispers Under Mussolini Dictator's Big Stick Is Held Over Press and People Are Afraid to Discuss Politics—Bad Old Days of Private Spying Return.

By William Bolitho,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MILAN, Aug. 15.—Italy seems dum. A year ago it was the most talkative country in the world. Now, under the immense shadow of the Mussolini dictature, it holds its breath. This Galleria, the huge warren of glazed arcades, where all Milan crowds night and day to talk and bargain, over vermouth and iced coffee and grappa, is as packed as ever, these dog days of gray heat. But the babel of voices that used to smite the ear excitedly is nowadays only a noisy murmur. The sting is gone out of their talk, for politics is barred.

This is the first of a series of articles to be printed from day to day in the Post-Dispatch, written by men who know what is going on behind the screen which hides Dictator Mussolini not only from the world outside of Italy, but from the Italian people themselves. Never were people more under the hand of a single man. What will he do with his power? How he obtained that power, the long purse from which he drew to march on Rome, the things he has failed to do, that he has done, and those he still has hopes of doing will be shown in these illuminating descriptions of a wonderful man, and his countrymen who are hoping against fears and fearing against hopes.

No mere Government order could keep these lively, rebellious Italians off the subject that is more to them than women and music—politics. There is no Government order against it—that would be powerless, but there is danger.

The bad old days of informing and private spying, when every man must mark his words before he utters them, even to friends, even among his own family, are come back as they were in the days of the Austrian. There is order today in Italy, but it is not the busy, living order of a free people. They are ruled from above, well ruled, perhaps (I do not know), but with a rod of iron and by a man who hates liberty.

Mussolini has more power than any Asiatic Shah, for his subjects are afraid even to discuss him.

So it is hard for a foreigner to find out what has been happening in Italy. In October last, when the Black Shirts were marching on Rome, this country buzzed like an overturned hive. Every one was shouting his opinion, advice, protest—all at the same time. Communists were declaring themselves for liberty of the subject, wild Fascist boys yelling their desire for peace and order, timid Constitutionalists advising other people to make a last stand on the barricades.

Naturally they all screamed at the name of Mussolini. His followers burst into song, or into poetic raptures fit to be set to music. The rest for the most part screeched their hatred and contempt for the "Cinema Napoleon."

All the Shouting Is Over.

All that is changed today. The very name of Il Duce (the leader) is taboo. Black Shirts shut up, turn grumpy, if questioned about him and the methods that have secured him such place as he now has, and what he means to do with it. The rest, the conquered rest, turn their heads nervously, look over their shoulders. Even the press, the old good natured, vivacious press of Italy, the Corriere della Sera, the Stampa, the Seculo, the Messagero, the Resto di Carlino, that used to be so gay, and irreverent, and libellous even, the most cheerful, colorful press in Europe, is changed to a sober-sided, timorous imitation of its old self.

The new Facist papers, grouped round the Populo d'Italia, Mussolini's organ, still keep up their ecstatic lyrics about the fatherland, youth and the Great Chief, but there is a twang of the phonograph about their dithyrambs which, indeed, they may have caught from Mussolini himself (his best speeches always sounded a trifle tinny), but which somehow sounds different. Most of the other papers have passed over to the Mussolini interest through his inexhaustible party funds and have nothing to say about home politics. And the two or three that remain to the "free press" are frankly too frightened to talk. They have good reason for a still tongue.

One of the greatest of them, and before Mussolini conquered Italy, one of the best, steadiest papers in the whole world, the Corriere della Sera of Milan, broke the general rule a couple of months ago. Its publisher, Senator Albertini, had been to see the amazing procession of the wounded through the Corso at Rome, which had been organized by the Government to show the patriotic interest it takes in the veterans of the war. He remembered as he looked at the pitiful procession another scene that he had witnessed on Nov. 4 when Mussolini and his Cabinet went on their knees in front of the photographers at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Milan Had the Last Smile.

Senator Albertini is not a rash man, but he has a sense of humor. When he got back to Milan, he wrote an account of the latest ceremony which made the Milan people smile. Next day perhaps he wished he had not. For, above all the crimes that a wicked brain can invent, the worst today in Italy is to laugh audibly at Benito Mussolini.

The Great Chief is a little self-conscious, and a laugh in Latin countries is a potent thing. Governments, emperors, despots, tyrants have disappeared suddenly in France and Italy, under the explosive force of laughter and ridicule. A joke has done more damage than a bomb. For these reasons, Senator Albertini was right to be afraid.

On June 8, there appeared in the Populo d'Italia, the official organ of the Italian Government, a series of articles which gave the humorous publisher of the Corriere della Sera no pleasure. The first ran over the front page, under a six-column head: "Warning to Whom It May Concern." It followed in this strain:

"If tricksters believe they may presume on the long suffering of the Fascist Government, let them beware. The Government means to show them their mistake. The twisty Albertini is morally responsible for the murder of Fascisti recently by the Red Socialist Dogs. It is time to strangle in his throat the cry of 'Long Live Liberty.' That scoundrel already has every liberty to spit on our patriotic Government. Moreover, he has the liberty to find that our Government was ridiculous when it went down on its knees on Nov. 4 in front of the grave of the Unknown Soldier. And he and his tribe find, do they, that the pilgrimage of wounded soldiers on the Corso was buffoonery? The Fascisti will remember this."

Warning to Albertini.

Having read this, Albertini turned to the third page, where he came to something that stamped home to him that his humor would have to be checked. It was entitled "Albertini, We Are Coming," and began:

"Senator Albertini, there are so many, many, many Fascisti, some of them well known, some of them

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Save Missouri's Rights.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH the bureaucratic political machine, already obnoxious to every lover of liberty, preparing to further intrench itself in power by means of Federal aid schemes, many of which will necessitate amendments to the Federal Constitution, placing in the hands of a horde of spies and sluggers the centralized control of education, maternity, public welfare, the practice of medicine, child labor, marriage, divorce, minimum wage, price fixing, the employment of women, etc., ad infinitum, it is high time the people rallied to the call of the Post-Dispatch and called a halt to the march of Federal empire!

Democracy is the remedy. The Missouri State Constitution is as nearly perfect in spirit as it is humanly possible to make it, assuming that democracy is the ideally perfect form of government. But as the spirit of the State Bill of Rights was violated by the State Legislatures when the seventeenth and eighteenth amendments to the Federal Constitution were ratified, and for which violations it is my opinion the violators could be convicted of malfeasance, and to prevent further similar violations, I wish to submit and ask you to use your influence in having adopted the following amendment to the Missouri State Constitution.

Art. II, Sec. 3. That Missouri is a free and independent State, subject only to the Constitution of the United States; and as the preservation of the states and the maintenance of their Governments are necessary to an indestructible union, and were intended to co-exist with it, the legislature is not authorized to adopt any amendment, or change of the Constitution of the United States which may in any wise impair the right of local self government belonging to the people of the State, or any amendment or change whatsoever to the Constitution of the United States until the people of the State shall have voted upon such amendment or change.

The Legislature or the people shall enact appropriate legislation to enforce the provisions of this section.

The Wage System.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE wage system is predicated upon what will keep (not properly sustain) a single man or woman. It is viciously wrong. The only normal way for humans to live is through marriage. That is largely prohibited by our absolute industrial system. SIDNEY AVERILL.

Barrett's Worthy Service.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

RECENTLY there appeared in the news items of your paper a statement to the effect that while Attorney-General Barrett was taking depositions in his antitrust case against the lumber dealers they twitted him about his alleged ambition to become Governor of Missouri and insinuated that it was that ambition that prompted his vigorous prosecution of the lumber dealers. The Supreme Court has justified him, and the builders of homes in this State are profiting by reason of his zeal and ability.

If it is Attorney-General Barrett's ambition to seek political preferment through the medium of notable achievements and diligent, conscientious performance of the duties of the political office he holds, then more power to him. Certainly such ambitions are proper and most commendable. What more laudable qualities could be desired in a public servant who thus fulfills the trust that the people have reposed in him? Let us encourage and promote men of that type rather than the more prevalent type who seek political preferment by using their office to grant special privileges to the politically powerful and the chosen few to the detriment of the public generally. Give us more Barretts, and give us a Barrett for Governor.

WILLIAM R. SCHNEIDER.

Americans and the Klan.

I WISH to express my appreciation of the real American stand that the Post-Dispatch has taken in regard to the klan. You have at the same time been fair enough to print letters from the so-called 100 per cent Americans, one of which was published in your paper of Saturday, Sept. 8, signed "Mr. H. P., an American."

The letter written to support the klan is in itself a condemnation of the klan. One does not have to read far to surmise that Mr. H. P. had better go back through the grades. It merely shows the type of "Americans" that support the klan. E. E. W.

Coolidge vs. Dempsey.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHILE seated in one of our beautiful picture show houses, I gazed up at President Coolidge on the screen. All in the house was perfectly quiet. A few seconds later Mr. Jack Dempsey made his appearance. Loud applause immediately rent the air.

Whoa, O where, are we drifting?

THE PUBLIC AND THE AIR MEET.

The success of the International Air Race meet to be held at St. Louis October 1st, 2d, and 3d depends on the public, especially the people of St. Louis.

We say its success depends upon the public because we are using the word in its largest sense, not merely with reference to the preparation of the field and of the meet itself and of all the necessary arrangements incident to it, but with reference to the interest, the popular attendance and the pecuniary returns to pay expenses and establish the permanent field.

The meet will take place. The races and various contests will go on. In respect to the meet itself, it will be the biggest and most successful event in the history of airplane meets. The congress and convention of those interested in aviation and representing aviation organizations all over the country will be the largest ever held. But, as the object of the meet is not merely to hold contests, races of various kinds testing the excellence of design, workmanship and pilot skill, but to promote public interest in aviation, from the standpoints both of national defense and commercial transportation, and to press forward the progress of aviation in every useful form, the interest and attendance of the public is a prime factor in the success of the meet.

It will be of little avail that a group of St. Louisans have devoted assiduous thought and labor to the work of preparing for the races and of financing the meet, and that the best planes of every design and the most skillful pilots in the country shall contribute to the attractions and the usefulness of the meet, if the public shall be indifferent and the contest take place before empty seats.

The cost in money and labor to prepare the beautiful and perfectly equipped field of a mile square, to arrange the vast details incident to an airplane meet of this magnitude, so that the contest will take place on schedule and under the safest possible conditions, has been tremendous. No one who is not familiar with work of this kind can realize the extent of expenditure in money and energy necessary to complete it.

The St. Louis Air Board was not content to limit its work to providing the necessities for an air meet. It conceived and laid the plans for a permanent commercial aviation field, so that St. Louis will be on the air map and prepared to reap the benefits of aviation development in mail and commercial transportation by air. This required great additional cost for lands and permanent equipment, but it assures St. Louis an invaluable asset when the meet is over. The field is ready. It has been pronounced by visiting experts one of the best, if not the best, in the country. It compares favorably with the Army fields and surpasses the commercial fields. The arrangements are complete, the entries are the largest ever recorded in the history of the nation-wide air meets.

There is no question but what the meet itself will exceed in variety, interest, skill—all the factors that enter into the contest—anything of its kind ever before seen in the United States. The record-breaking achievements of the year promise unparalleled records in every phase of the contest. The Pulitzer Trophy race, the classic aviation speed event of the world, undoubtedly will develop the highest speed ever made under the conditions of the race. This is primarily a contest between the Army and the Navy. Both have made thorough preparations for the friendly but strenuous tests of airplane speed and pilot skill. They are on tiptoe for the contest, and it will be a thriller.

We cannot conceive how any St. Louisan with red blood in his veins and money in his purse can stay away from the meet. But apart from the interest, every St. Louisan should feel a sense of responsibility for the success of the meet. All those who can should subscribe for the stock of the corporation which will own and operate the commercial field and which is managing and defraying the expense of the meet and the field. All other St. Louisans who can afford it should liberally support the meet by purchasing tickets and attending. Those who have not joined in paying and working for the success of the event should at least do their part in contributing to its financial and popular success by personal attendance. It will amply repay the expenditure in actual enjoyment and in benefits for the city.

If there are any who think that they can enjoy the contests outside of the field, they have been misled. Excellent traffic arrangements have been made, which preclude parking on any of the nearby roads. Parking anywhere near the field can only be done in the ample space provided for that purpose by the Air Board. It is impossible really to see or appreciate what is taking place without going to the field. The contestants in the thrilling speed race fly at a height of only about 60 feet, and really to see and know what is being done by the flashing planes that speed around the course, it is necessary to be on the grounds.

If it were possible to enjoy the races outside of the field, what St. Louisan would be willing to evade all contribution to the success of the meet and leave the entire burden on the shoulders of others? Every St. Louisan should be willing to share to the extent of his ability in assuring that the great meet will be a tremendous success from every standpoint.

Preparations have been made for those of small means. The field will be open the Saturday and Sunday preceding the race meet, when the cost of admission will be only 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children of school age. There will be no races these days, but there will be a wonderful exhibition of the development of aviation and the best types of airplanes and dirigibles, and of the most skillful pilots in the world. Those who have no motor cars can go by street car to the edge of the field. The United Railways has put in double tracks and a loop connected with the St. Charles line on the St. Charles Rock Road, on which continuous service will be maintained. The school children have been given a holiday on Wednesday, the day of the Pulitzer speed race.

The focus not only of nation-wide but world attention in aviation is centered on St. Louis. St. Louis is enjoying publicity which cannot be measured in dollars. The full value of this publicity can only be gained by an overwhelming success. That would be the greatest possible stroke for the city.

SPEED THE ROAD WORK.

The State's road construction program is confronted by a problem which can be solved by common sense.

The difficulty is chargeable to the Legislature's failure to provide an adequate maintenance fund. Unless this fund is provided the Highway Commission's scale of operations will have to be seriously curtailed, because Federal aid is conditioned, in part, upon the maintenance of the roads.

The available maintenance fund is short $2,000,000 a year. If that shortage is made up the Highway Commission can issue $10,000,000 of bonds next year and can complete the program by 1927. If the shortage is not taken care of the Highway Commission will have to cut down its scope of operations, issue only $2,000,000 of bonds, instead of $10,000,000, disband its present organization and drag out the construction program to 1932.

The importance and value of completing the work in four years do not have to be argued. Missourians know the worth of good roads from the experience of other states, and they know the cost of bad roads from their own experience.

Two suggestions have been made for providing the necessary maintenance fund. One is a tax on gasoline, the other an increased license fee for motor vehicles. But the levying of either tax can only be done by the Legislature and if it is to be done in time a special session of the Legislature must be called.

The Governor, it is surmised, is reluctant to call a special session this fall for this purpose, because a special session will have to be called next year if the constitutional amendments submitted by the Constitutional Convention are adopted.

But if the amendments are voted on, say, in December, as has been proposed, the special session could take care of both jobs.

Why cannot that be done? Surely the members of the Constitutional Convention will be glad to cooperate in hurrying the completion of the road program. What is needed now, apparently, is energetic leadership by the Governor. If Mr. Hyde will get behind his Highway Commission and make a vigorous, convincing appeal to the public, the response, we believe, will be prompt.

Missouri cannot afford to dilly-dally longer with its road building. Its slogan should be speed.

MORE AND CHEAPER GOLF.

Our best golf courses are superior to England's, Sarazen tells us in his weekly letter in the Sunday Post-Dispatch; indeed, they are the "finest in the world." Nevertheless, England can teach us some things about golf which we ought to know.

The elaborate clubhouses which are a mania with us are unknown abroad. The English golfer, Sarazen says, wants merely a modest place where he can take a shower, change his clothes and get a meal. As a matter of fact that is all the big majority of American golfers want. Unfortunately, they are obliged to pay heavily for maintaining an unnecessary and inappropriate elegance.

With its immense and rapidly growing popularity the economic phase of golf must be considered. This angle of the subject, casually touched by Sarazen, has been discussed pointedly and with great good sense by Walter Camp in Collier's. Along with ornate clubhouses, the practice of periodically changing the course and making it "sportier," at the behest of a handful of skillful players with whom all clubs sooner or later are afflicted, is severely censured. Not only is expense unnecessarily piled up, but courses can be made so difficult as to destroy the pleasure of the game for most of the members. The consequence is that the play spirit of the sport is killed when a course is so trapped and bunkered as to test the proficiency of persons who, however impeccable their amateur standing, have, in effect, made golf their profession.

According to Mr. Camp, golf courses abroad are rarely changed. That should now be the rule here. We have long since passed the novice stage. There is plenty of engineering experience in the country now to enable a club to lay out a permanently satisfactory course in the beginning, subject, if at all, only to occasional and inexpensive changes.

ALABAMA'S PRISON CONDITIONS.

Alabama was recently stirred by the mutiny of convicts employed in a mine. Valuable property was destroyed and lives were endangered, but the prisoners, in their own defense, say they rebelled against conditions that have become unbearable. The Prosecuting Attorney of the county in which the mutiny occurred decided upon a grand jury investigation of those conditions, but Gov. Brandon has peremptorily forbidden the investigation.

The public opinion of the country will not support the Governor's position. If the mutinous prisoners are at fault a competent investigation will disclose that fact. If, on the other hand, conditions are unbearable, as the offending prisoners allege, it is important that that fact be established. Whatever the situation, an investigation seems logically and urgently to be needed.

The fact, too, that the convict leasing system prevails in Alabama strengthens the presumption that the Governor is wrong. The convict leasing system is a potent inspiration and excuse for brutality in prison management.

LUTHER BURBANK'S RELIGION.

REPLYING to a questionnaire sent to various men of science, Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, who is a believer in the Darwinian theory, said that he was brought up a Baptist and had attended Baptist and Methodist churches until he was 40 years old, and Sunday school during the last 20 years "more for the social benefit than otherwise." He does not believe in the divinity of Christ, answer to prayer from an outside source, an inspired Bible, or the orthodox heaven and hell. "They could not exist," he says, "if there were an all-powerful and just ruler. No criminal could be as cruel as the God who would consign human beings to hell." Here are his actual answers to the rest of the questionnaire:

Q. Do you assume that the soul of man ceases to functionate at death?

B. In other spheres, I do. Its influence will live for good or bad for all time. We actually live in the lives of others.

Q. Do you agree with Buchner that "the brain is the seat of the soul?"

B. A very difficult question to answer in a few words. The brain, if we include the whole nervous system, is the soul. Millions of souls functionate, through heredity, through our own personal ones.

Q. Would you say that matter and force govern the universe rather than a supreme being?

B. Matter, which in its last analysis is force, governs what we know of the universe.

Q. Can you harmonize the Christian faith with the laws of nature?

B. In part, though this requires more than a "Yes" or "No." It is a faith grown up in our heredity, and has been an important factor, even though it does not harmonize with the laws of nature.

Q. Can you say with Darwin that "Agnostic would be the more correct description of my state of mind?

B. Yes, with reservations.

Q. Have your labors in the field of science and research caused you to alter your earlier opinions on religion?

B. All my work in the field of science and research has come through a change in my earlier opinions on religion. Growth is the law of life. Orthodoxy is the death of scientific effort.

Q. What facts of nature substantiate your views?

B. The evolution and development of man and his civilization through his own efforts, and only these.

Q. Is life after death proved or disproved by science?

B. It has never been proved or disproved, but it is rapidly, in my opinion, being disproved and so accepted by most intelligent people.

Q. What, in your opinion, has given rise to religious beliefs?

B. Probably two things: First, the desire to extend our present life; and second, the desire of its teachers to be supported by those who labor.

Q. Is religion of any value in the conduct of human affairs?

B. There is no possible doubt that it has been and, like police force, will be in the future to those who are not able to govern themselves, especially in their relations toward others.

FIFTY-FIFTY PIE.

THE late Stuyvesant Fish took a deep interest in the farmer, who, he thought, seldom got a square deal.

"The farmer's square deal," Mr. Fish once said at a farmers' dinner in Tarrytown, "reminds me of the rabbit pie.

"An American, you know, once ordered rabbit pie in a cheap Paris restaurant. The waiter brought him an enormous portion, and inasmuch as the price was only 15 cents, the American asked if the pie was really and truly rabbit.

"'Oh, yes, sir,' said the waiter, 'that's rabbit pie.'

"'But does it contain rabbit only?' persisted the American.

"'Well, sir,' said the waiter, 'I'll admit there's a trifling admixture of horse meat.'

"'Aha! Horse meat! And what proportion of horse meat?' said the American.

"'Oh, just 50-50,' said the waiter—'one rabbit, one horse.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Horse's Speed-Limit.

Before our agrarian population had taken so enthusiastically to the automobile, two farmers drove into town in an old spring wagon pulled by a very bony nag. The little burg had just been incorporated, and among the evidences of this was a brand-new sign at the town line: "Speed-Limit, Ten Miles an Hour." Observing this, the driver began whipping up his steed vigorously.

"What's yo' hurry?" demanded his companion in mild astonishment.

"See that sign?" returned the other. "But I dunno if I can make it or not."—Everybody's.

JUST YOU AND I.

FROM Candelmas to Michaelmas
And All Saints' days between,
Dan Cupid from his caddie bag
Shoots arrows quite unseen.

On twelfth night after Candelmas,
The love god makes his sign,
"For trees grow green as love grows red,"
Says good Saint Valentine.

Tears of angels, April showers,
Blessing the flowers for May;
From Lady day to Whitsuntide,
The cherub picks his way.

The fragrant blossom of the May—
Oh, why is it so tender?
Its bush is strong, but ah, its flower—
Is Cupid's first surrender.

And then the month of roses comes—
With love's great silver moon,
E'en loves of bygone days recall—
Sweet memories of June.

Saint Swithen knows, so why confess—
The passion of July,
'Tis felt in every look and touch,
And every kiss and sigh.

Some hearts have missed this summer's raid;
Cupid was nowhere seen;
But hopes that now are embers
Will burn bright next halloween.

Who is not wed by Michaelmas
Let winter frosts go by;
But watch the lights next Candelmas—
Let's do, just you and I.

AN EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT.

From the World's Work,

THE twentieth amendment to the Federal Constitution, if the National Woman's Party carries out its purposes as announced at a celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the first equal rights convention at Seneca Falls, New York, will read as follows: "Men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place within its jurisdiction." . . . There is an aspect of this movement which has caused misgivings among those who are most willing to assent to its principle. This is the possibility that it would not only remove the remaining legal discriminations against women, but would also lead the courts to hold invalid legislation specially designed to protect woman workers. The "rights" of women may be held to include the right to work more than eight hours, or to do night work, or to accept insufficient wages, even where there now exists State legislation denying these "rights." The question is whether the Woman's Party is not throwing away the substance in its attempt to secure the shadow. At least this is a point which ought to be completely cleared up before or in the campaign. . . . After all, men are men and women are women; laws based upon the fundamental fact cannot be assailed on the ground that they recognize distinctions of sex. Evidently men cannot qualify for mothers' pensions, and laws passed in the interest of maternity necessarily can apply to only one sex. But such laws are entirely proper—in no sense can they be regarded as tyrannous. Differences in physiology furnish valid grounds for legislative relief, and cannot be regarded as backward. Certain jurists have asserted that this proposed amendment would wipe all such laws off the books. If so, it is difficult to see how women can seriously advocate it.

PAYING THE FREIGHT.

From the New York Tribune.

THE wealth of the states between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains is largely in farms and their products. It is to this section that transportation rates form a dominant theme in political and economic discussions. The steam engine and the plow went into that virgin territory together, each fostered upon the other. Hundreds of thousands of families found farm homes where only a few could be secured at a few dollars an acre. Nowhere less in the case of homesteaders. . . . Eastern people took their risks not in the soil but into this new country but in ventures of money in the building of the railroads. . . . Much of the ventures were unwise and much money was lost. The final outcome is great transportation systems that are doing needed work. It is a curious and characteristic fact that the Northwestern school of economists holds transportation rates must be scaled down to bring this land practically nearer to market, regardless of the first cost of the roads or the displacement values or the risk taken by investors, while estimates of crop production and values based in part upon present land valuations are manyfold greater than the original investment and largely made possible by the railroads. Why should the men and women and children whose money aided the farmers in the development of the West have their rights ignored, while those who have their money in land see the market price has gone up 1000 per cent because the roads were built? There can be no satisfactory answer found in the fact that the railroad is owned within the states while the stocks and bonds of the railroads are investments of hundreds of thousands of persons in other states. What the American people want is justice for all.

The Decree and Its Teeth.

Next day the historic law was published. Summarized it runs:

1. The Registered Manager of every journal must be one of the chief writers on it and not a mere figurehead. No Senator or Deputy may be a manager. The Prefect may refuse to register a manager if he considers he does not comply with these conditions. The Prefect may prosecute a registered manager if he publishes:

a. False or tendencious reports on the diplomatic action of the Government in its relations with foreign States, or damages internal and external credit of the nation, or disturbs public order, or frightens the population.

b. If it publishes anything to disturb the discipline of the State, or to favor foreigners, or if it abuses the Pope, the Royal Family, the

The diehardism which brought the present Government into the world is zealously Fascist in sympathy, outlook and more and more in expression. Conservatism and constitutionalism were formerly interchangeable terms. But that was in the days when the majority of adults had no voice in the working of the Constitution. It is no longer so. An increasing number of Conservatives are looking towards unconstitutional methods for security against changes which democracy may soon demand. It is a dangerous hope to cherish. For this weapon is at hand for the Communist as well as Conservative to handle. If Gen. Primo Rivera saved it in Spain, Lenine snatched it in Russia, and his followers are still wielding it with merciless power.

The Great Lesson of the War.

Democracy has its faults. No doubt they were at their worst in Italy when Mussolini rose. But the great lesson of war is that democratic institutions bear a prolonged national strain where autocracy breaks down. The nations that snapped the axle were Russia first, then Bulgaria (a dictatorship born of a coup d'etat), then Turkey, then Austria, then Germany—all of them autocratic Governments. They fell according to the degree of their autocracy.

The nations that stood the strain without a break were the democratically governed countries of Britain, France and Italy. The United States of America only came in late and therefore it would be hardly fair to cite them as an example. Democratic institutions are good or bad according to the quality of the people from whom they draw their power. No stream can ascend above its source. If the people receive not known at all, in many Italian cities, who, in writing, beg for the privilege, honor and responsibility of turning your rotten old shed over your head. It has not yet happened, thank Mussolini.

Italians Become Whispers Under Rule of Mussolini

"Now what we are telling you is a warning and the echo of a chorus that you have not heard yet, whose powerful, incessant voice reaches us while demanding to be heard. Listen to that chorus while you have time. Just wait, Senator, and meanwhile do us the favor of—keeping your mouth shut. That's it, you understand? Keep your mouth shut!"

The Senator is not a rash man. Behind the schoolboy phrases there was a real danger, not of death, perhaps, for the Fascisti, being after all most of them decent enough young fellows, do not often kill, but shame, beatings with clubs, doses of castor oil, burning of his quiet and prosperous newspaper offices in the Via Solferino, and ruin.

Albertini gave in. He told the world in a leader that, the circumstances being as they were, he had no intention of making himself a martyr; his newspaper would in future abstain from any editorial comment, and keep to printing news until better days came for Italy. The real sting of Albertini's little joke therefore lies in the end. Only those who knew the Corriere before the entry of Mussolini into power can realize what it meant for it thus unceremoniously to have its mouth shut, and accept it, like a scared schoolboy before his master.

Mussolini's Next Move.

Mussolini, however, pondering over Albertini's offending articles, could not feel satisfied. Ridicule is too grave to be wiped out by apology. To bury the memory of the day when he and his worthy Cabinet in frock coats or black bemedaled shirts, went down on their knees in the Senate, something huge, daring, prodigious had to be done. So he bethought him of suppressing the liberty of the press. He would drown the laugh with the sound of thunder.

It was officially announced that the Government was considering the matter. "For some time," ran the communique, "the Prime Minister had been pained by the unworthy attitude of a certain part of the press. Such exaggerated news has been published, both on the eruption of Mount Etna and on the Sardinian separatist movement. The Pope and the royal family have been lampooned. And there are daily slanderous attacks on the acts of the Fascist Government." For these grave reasons, Guard of Seals, Orlolo, Ministers Carnazza and Federzoni "are charged with the preparation of a new law to punish the abuses and crimes of the press."

The Decree and Its Teeth.

Next day the historic law was published. Summarized it runs:

1. The Registered Manager of every journal must be one of the chief writers on it and not a mere figurehead. No Senator or Deputy may be a manager. The Prefect may refuse to register a manager if he considers he does not comply with these conditions. The Prefect may prosecute a registered manager if he publishes:

a. False or tendencious reports on the diplomatic action of the Government in its relations with foreign States, or damages internal and external credit of the nation, or disturbs public order, or frightens the population.

b. If it publishes anything to disturb the discipline of the State, or in favor foreigners, of if it abuses the Pope, the Royal Family, the State religion, institutions or the functionaries of the Government.

3. The Prefect may be advised by two Magistrates and one delegate of the local Journalists' Association.

The Prefect may, after hearing this commission, sentence the Registered Manager to prison. If the manager has already been sentenced the same year the Prefect may refust to register another manager for the paper, which thus, under the old law, must cease to appear.

4. Appeal is allowed only to the superior of the Prefect, the Ministry for the Interior.

5. The present decree to take effect the day it is published in the official Gazette.

This last clause has not been fulfilled. The decree thus hangs over the unfortunate editors of Italy like a stick over a dog kennel. Possibly Mussolini now thinks it unnecessary to use it. It has done its work. Possibly he fears foreign opinion if he went further for the moment.

The decree itself requires little explanation. If a paper publishes news that Mussolini does not like (what else can tendencious mean?) its manager will be put in jail. No Parliamentary immunity will save him, for he cannot be a Senator or Deputy, and, if the Prefect sees fit, his paper will be suppressed automatically. The Prefect is an executive official, not judiciary, so that the matter does not even go before the courts.

Rome Compared With Moscow.

"Why do you complain? Have they more liberty in Moscow?" asked Mussolini, enjoying his laugh in the Chamber of Deputies next day. No one dared to reply that it was on a promise to save Italy from Communist slavery that Mussolini had come into power. Criticism was stilled.

The younger members of the Press Association in Rome indeed forced their President, Publisher Barzilai, to resign with his committee on June 20 because his protest was too mild. But the new committee, after a short talk with Mussolini himself, went back and drew up another that was its twin brother. One paper, Il Mondo, in happier times one of the light-hearted wing, found itself almost alone in using the big word of Liberty. Read what is considered a bitter daring attack on the Government in Italy today:

"Restriction cannot come out of a war for liberty, which Italy won. Very different things were promised to us when we were in the trenches. The restriction of the liberty of the press would constitute, therefore, a lowering of the ideals that brought our nation to make such great sacrifices."

To this piping, puny voice has been reduced the great press of Italy. Even under the knife, it cannot cry louder than a timid lamb. Not only the laugh but the cry of pain in mortal danger has been stilled by the mere menace of the all-powered dictator. And the silence deepens over Italy. It has become the country of held tongues; people do not discuss what is happening; soon they will cease even to know, and those who still have curiosity about how they are ruled will be obliged to buy the press of the foreigner to read of their own affairs.

At present the foreign correspondent does not seem to be touched by the Mussolini decree. But censorship of all news going out is the logical complement of the local censorship of news coming in, and it may be feared that Mussolini will not be long in introducing that also. To such things may a joke lead in Italy today.

If the people receive sound education, they can be trusted with the destinies of their country.

When an educated community errs, it is generally on the side of caution. Bob Lowe's famous advice, given after the carrying of Disraeli's franchise act half a century ago, still holds good. "Let us now educate our masters."

CARTHAGE CHOSEN FOR MEETING

Next Annual M. E. Conference Will Be Held There.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 22.—Carthage was selected as the meeting place for the next annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church by the Fifty-sixth conference in session here today. The delegates from the lay electoral conference, composed of a layman from each church in the St. Louis Conference, were elected as follows: J. H. Hoskins, St. Louis; Sam Konizeski, Kansas City; J. W. Boyd, Webb City, and W. C. Hays, Amity, Ark. The alternates chosen were: J. A. Taylor, Springfield; Mrs. Luella C. Dean, Rolla, and C. A. A. Sleeth, Butler.

Dr. Egan's Condition Critical.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The condition of Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, former Minister to Denmark, ill at Beach Haven, N. J., continues most serious, although advices to relatives here say it is not hopeless. He is still semi-conscious and much apprehension is felt because of his advanced age.

else. Members of the staff occasionally publish learned papers on what they have discovered in this connection, which are of lively interest to chemists all over the world.

The next step for the Pennsylvanians was to go and see these people. They told their troubles to the chief of the department in the office, a man of scientific understanding. He called up Dr. Chaney and Dr. Ray, two of their chemists engaged in carbon research, and they examined the situation.

They required, first of all, that all containers, kettles and tanks from which smelly particles might emanate, be made airtight. Then they selected the proper activated carbon and designed a simple apparatus from which pipes lead from these containers through an exhaust fan which draws the polluted air out of them and pushes it through a chamber in which it is cooled by a water spray. Excess water passes through a trap into a sewer. The cooled foul air is pushed on and through a tower filled with a granular, highly activated cocoanut charcoal of 8 to 14 mesh, specially prepared. This same air comes out at the top of the tower so purified that it has lost all its offensiveness. It is passed on to the stack, and that is the last that anyone smells of it or hears of it.

When the carbon in the tower is plastered over with particles on all its surface, so that it ceases to be active, it is revivified or activated again by passing steam at 15 to 25 pounds pressure backwards for a few minutes through the tower, which is about twice the height of an average man. The steam is condensed in part and trapped into the sewer, while the uncondensed fumes from the washing are led under the boiler and firebox and burned. The carbon, which at no time is taken from the tower, is cooled by water and is ready for use again.

That is the whole story and, more, it works. It is said that in Chicago they are planning to rid the stock yards of their olfactory offenses. The air of a city could be cleaned up within a short time without increasing taxes or destroying any industry. But it takes chemistry to do it. Politics, which is an institution that appeals principally to the ears, is not effective.

Marquis of Ripon Dies Suddenly.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The Marquis of Ripon (Frederick Oliver Robinson) died suddenly today while shooting on the moors at Studley Royal, his Yorkshire estate. He was 70 years of age, the eldest son of the first Marquis of Ripon, and had been treasurer in the household of Dowager Queen Alexandria since 1901. His Countess, who was the widow of the fourth Earl of Lonsdale, died in 1917. He leaves no heir.

Illinois Banker's Bride Dies.

By the Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 22.—Word was received here by cable today from Algiers, Africa, that Mrs. Frederick Woodruff, who was married to the Joliet bank president three weeks ago in Paris, died in that city from pleurisy. Mrs. Woodruff was a daughter of Raymond Healy of Chicago, whose father established the firm of Lyon and Healy.

Autumn Exposition and Sale of HOME FURNISHINGS

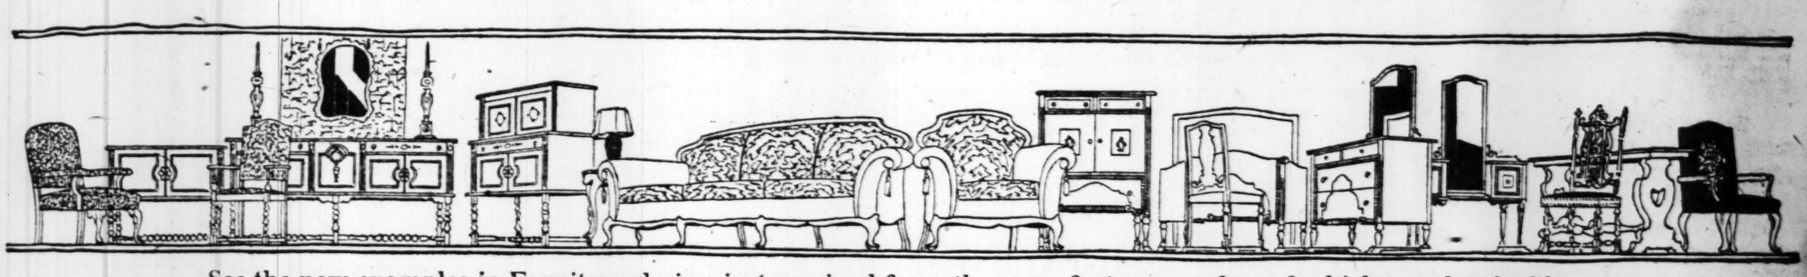
September 22d to 27th

¶ Special displays have been arranged for this week. Special values have been secured. Exhibits that are truly educational have been planned on all the Home Furnishing Floors. Once more Vandervoort's shows the way to Better Homes and Better Home Furnishing values. From all the leading markets of America and from abroad have come large shipments of merchandise to make this the most interesting Exposition of EVERYTHING FOR THE HOME that we have ever held.

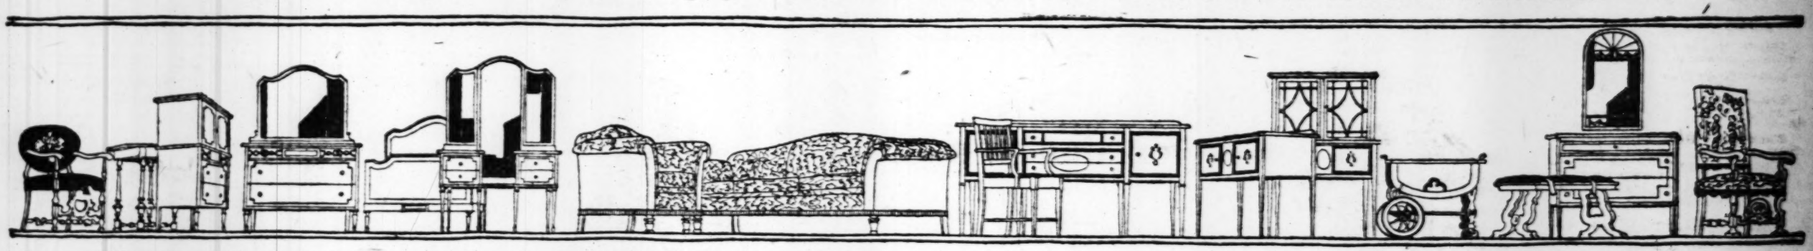
DEMONSTRATION
By Ross Crane
—showing how to arrange the furnishings and decorations and achieve harmonious color schemes in a living room.
Vandervoort Music Hall,
Monday at 2 P. M.

¶ All the sketches below were made from our own floors. These are only a few examples of the thousands of offerings to be seen. New Furniture. New Floorcoverings. New Curtains and Draperies. New Chinaware and Glassware. New Pianos. New Victrolas. New Brunswicks. New Lamps and Lighting Equipment. New Pictures. New Tapestries and Hangings. New Household Linens. New examples of home arrangement shown in our eleven exhibition rooms and "The Little Home" on our Fifth Floor.

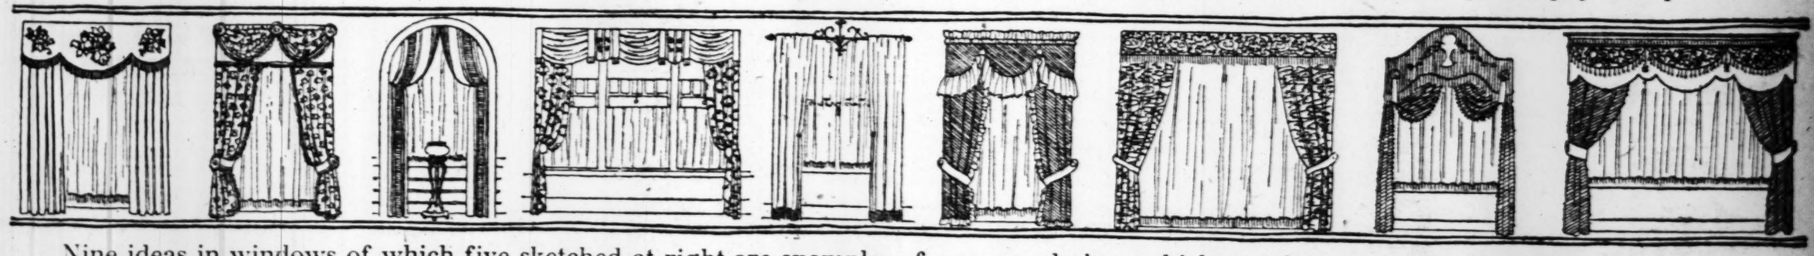
See all these and many more interesting displays this week during Vandervoort's Autumn Exposition and Sale of Home Furnishings. You are urged to attend the opening of this event of civic importance which begins tomorrow and lasts all week.



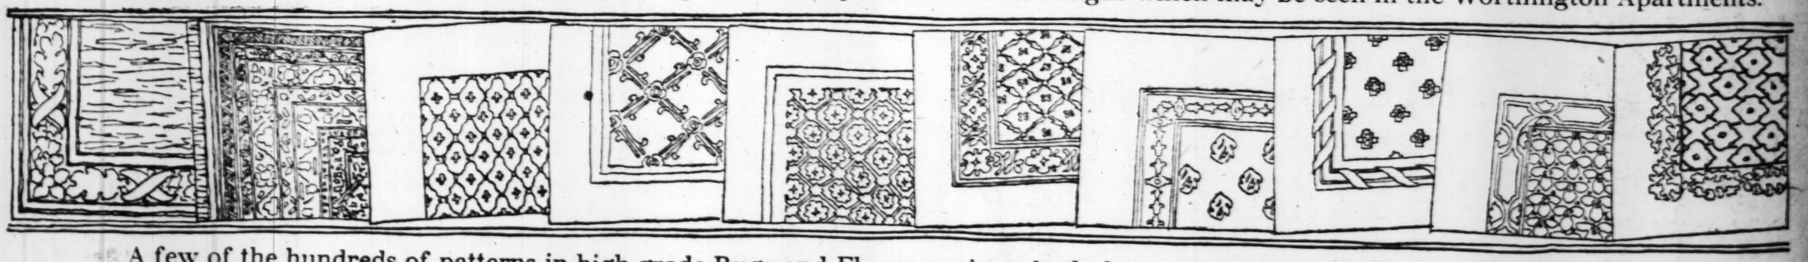
See the new examples in Furniture design just received from the manufacturers, a few of which are sketched here.



Furniture for every room and every nook and corner; good Furniture, good values; sold on Vandervoort's easy club payment plan.



Nine ideas in windows of which five sketched at right are examples of our own designs which may be seen in the Worthington Apartments.



A few of the hundreds of patterns in high-grade Rugs and Floorcoverings, both domestic and imported, shown in our Exposition

Music and the soft glow of good Lamps, essential in every home are given a place of prominence in the Exposition.

Lenox China and the finest Glassware from America and abroad furnish a display of exceptional interest this week.

New Gowns for the V. P. Ball

Never in the History of Vandervoort's Has There Been Such a Gorgeous Display of Evening Gowns!

¶ Imported Gowns, and Gowns of American creation, showing smart individuality and deft distinctiveness. Gowns for the V. P. ball that will give "atmosphere" to an occasion that will be resplendent with sparkling Gowns and dazzling lights.

¶ There are Gowns bouffant, and Gowns that are straight and slim; for the new silhouette varies in a way to make every frock "different"—and with an originality of detail—which makes their selection far more than usually interesting and satisfactory.

Two and Three Piece Suits Fashion's Favorites

¶ Trimmed with luxurious collar and cuffs of fur, and made of the latest in the season's materials. Coats are long and short box, made on straight lines so popular for the women of statuesque height. Some of them are lavishly embroidered in conventional designing. The dress in one piece, straightline.

¶ The two-piece Suits are extremely smart, some have the short box coat and others are longer, some are trimmed with fur and others are plain tailored; these latter Suits are especially adapted by women for office wear.

¶ The fur trimmings that adorn these Suits are both red and kit fox, beaver and Viatka squirrel. Range of prices $75.00 to $295.00

$600 TAKEN BY ROBBERS IN HOLDUP OF SALOON

Bartender and Two Others Made to Stand Against Wall in Theft.

Two robbers walked into the saloon of Alvin Schaefer, 4056 North Broadway, at 5:15 a. m. yesterday and carried off $600 that was to have been used to cash pay checks for employes of the Mississippi Glass Co. They are supposed to have escaped in an automobile.

Patrick McCoy, bartender in the saloon, had opened the place a short time previously and was talking to two customers when the robbers walked in, both carrying revolvers. They made McCoy and the two stand against the wall, and while one guarded them the other went to a drawer where the money was secreted and put it in his pocket.

TEMPORARY CARRIER CHARGED WITH STEALING FROM MAILS

Henry A. Swearingen Alleged to Have Taken Two Decoy Letters With Small Amounts of Money.

Postoffice Inspectors yesterday arrested Henry A. Swearingen, 19 years old, of 3636 Evans avenue, a temporary mail carrier in the special delivery division, charging him with taking from the mails two decoy letters containing small amounts of money.

After questioning Swearingen, who is alleged to have admitted taking 20 letters from which he took money aggregating $125, the inspectors obtained a warrant charging Swearingen with stealing from the mails.

Funeral of Mrs. Geneva M. Burton.

Funeral services will be held at West Presbyterian Church at 3 p. m. today for Mrs. Geneva M. Burton, 53 years old, of 5892 Cabanne avenue, who died Thursday from a general breakdown. Burial will be in Valhalla Cemetery.

She was the widow of William V. Burton, who, following 1882, made a fortune in excess of $250,000 by the operation of 10-cent lodging houses for working men. He died May 9, 1922. His will directed that his widow receive $200 a month from his estate and that at her death the estate be divided equally between his two sons by a former marriage, Walter P. and William W. Burton.

ONE WHISKY BUYER "LIVED" IN CEMETERY

Fictitious Addresses Given by Other Purchasers of Parker Distilling Co. Stock.

Removal of 869 casese of whisky from the warehouse of the Parker Distilling Co., 213 Market street, was accomplished after the stock had been purchased last February by three men who called themselves Abe Lewis, Sam Erlich and Sam Jacobs. They gave addresses which turned out to be a cemetery, a vacant lot and a vacant house, it was learned at the Federal building yesterday.

Investigation of the case got no further than establishment of this fact, as prohibition agents were unable to find the new owners of the stock.

Discovery from the records of the prohibition enforcement officer here that this amount of whisky apparently had gone back into circulation, followed exclusive publication in the Post-Dispatch Thursday that similar irregularities had been found at the Jack Daniel bonded warehouse, 3960 Duncan avenue. Here 893 barrels of whisky had been "milked," presumably by the owners, who wished to bootleg the liquor. Water was substituted in the barrels.

Investigation of the Jack Daniel case yesterday shifted to Kansas City, where General Prohibition Agent Brooke and A. L. Harris, divisional chief of prohibition agents, were in conference.

J. A. McCarthy, trust officer of the National Bank of Commerce and executor of the estate of Mrs. Elizabeth Parker, said yesterday that he and Mrs. Laura Parker Hopkins, president of the Parker Distilling Co. transferred the stock to Lewis, Erlich and Jacobs. He stated he did not know what happened after that.

W. C. T. U. on Lloyd George.

A letter from Miss Anna A. Gordon, president of the National W. C. T. U., to Mrs. Nelle G. Burger, president of the Missouri organization, requests that in cities visited by David Lloyd George and his wife, the W. C. T. U. shall have some part in the entertainment provided for Mrs. Lloyd George. Miss Agnes E. Slack of Ripley, Derbyshire, England, corresponding secretary of the British Woman's Christian Temperance Union, writes that is the desire of Mrs. Lloyd George, who is an active worker in the British organization, as also in that of Wales.

James Eads How to Speak.

The Missouri League for the Aged and the Unemployed will meet today at 3 p. m. at Brotherhood Hall, Thirteenth and Pine streets, to discuss formation of a State organization to press the "right to work" and "old age pension" amendments. James Eads How, W. L. Garver and C. C. Hodges will address the meeting.

End Your Foot Trouble!

The science of medicine teaches that foot troubles are caused by abnormal lowering or misalignment of one or more bones of the foot. The scientific treatment must not only give relief, but actually remove the cause. Trimming of calluses with a blade, for instance, treats the effect and does not correct the cause. Wearing of metal plates, and so-called corrective shoes, which are unadjustable, fail to give the proper support to the individual foot right where support is needed. Therefore, they fail to correct the cause of the individual foot trouble.

The New-Day Method Is Nature's Way

But now—you can have relief from feet which ache, burn or pain. You can get rid of your calluses. You can correct leaning ankles and stop running over the heels of your shoes. How? Simply the new way—nature's way—giving the proper support at the exact point needed to raise the lowered bones of your foot to their normal position. This is done with adjustable, all-leather devices which permit building up of a support, holding the 26-bone structure of the foot in normal position. So simple that you wonder that it was not thought of before. Furthermore, you do not have to sacrifice the evening slipper, dancing pump, dress Oxford or other stylish footwear that meets with your tastes.

Free Examination by Foot Expert

Just step in our Foot Relief Department—without obligation or the slightest inconvenience to you, the foot relief expert will adjust the proper featherlight devices in your shoe. An adjustment will be made to give support exactly where it is needed in your individual case. Take a few steps—no longer do you feel the pain. It's gone! You have relief—and relief that is everlasting.

Four Eskimos to Hang for Murder.

By the Associated Press.

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 22.—Seven Eskimos charged with murder, were tried at Herschel Island in the Arctic ocean by Judge Dubus, who, with seven members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, reached Edmonton yesterday. Four of the accused were convicted and sentenced to be hanged Dec. 7. Two others, found guilty of manslaughter, were given prison terms.

LECTURE PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

Board of Religious Organizations to Train Social Service Workers.

The fall educational program of lectures, classes, discussion groups and exhibits offered by the Board of Religious Organizations for the training of volunteer workers for social service will begin tomorrow with a lecture at Union Avenue Christian Church. The Rev. Dwight J. Bradley will speak at 3 p. m. and his subject will be "West of the Water Tower." This lecture and review of a popular book is part of the course on mothecraft given under the Child Welfare department. Other subjects included in the course are Americanization and immigration, classes in which will be conducted each Thursday from Oct. 18 to Nov. 15; under community service, classes for the training of recreation and club leaders begin at 3:30 p. m. Oct. 17, at the Y. W. C. A.; family welfare, which will be studied for five Fridays, from 10:30 a. m. to noon, beginning Oct. 19; institutions, five Fridays from 10 to 11 a. m. beginning Oct. 19; Protection and delinquency, six Wednesdays, 2 to 3:30 p. m. beginning Oct. 17; publication and publicity; social hygiene and social legislation. There will also be a training class for negro volunteers, beginning next month at Poro College.

In connection with the Americanization and Immigration classes, the Board, co-operating with the public library, has arranged for an exhibit in the Art Room of Central Library, of paintings by Susan Ricker Knox, portraying characters and types of immigrants landing on Ellis Island. The board also has obtained Dr. Edward A. Steiner, author and lecturer, to deliver a series of six lectures on the general subject, "Which Way is America Going?"

Market to Provide Scholarships.

Women members of Southern Methodist churches will conduct a "market," Oct. 25 and 26, to provide money for scholarships for needy young men and women in some one of the church schools.

COOLIDGE THOUGHT CERTAIN TO ENTER PRIMARY RACE

Impression Prevails That He Cannot Avoid Action and State Organizations Are Lining Up for Him.

VISIT OF HILLES IS SIGNIFICANT

New York Political Leader May Succeed Adams as Chairman of National Republican Committee.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
(Copyright, 1923.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—President Coolidge has given so much time during the past week to the discussion of party politics with his callers that an unusual atmosphere envelops the executive offices at the moment—one might think the presidential campaign of 1924 had been formally begun.

The latest group of callers included Charles D. Hilles, Republican National Committeeman from New York State, who came with Senator Wadsworth and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt. While local political situations usually can be helped by the mediation of a President of the United States, the same conference affords an opportunity to strengthen the position of a national candidate. William Barnes, known to fame as "Boss" Barnes, Republican leader in the Empire States, was brought to the White House by Senator Wadsworth on Thursday and the visit by Mr. Hilles followed the next day.

There have been National Committeemen from all parts of the country, as well as a number of state chairmen. Most of them start out with a desire "to pay respects or to tell the President how earnestly everybody is supporting him." Mr. Coolidge listens without comment to some of the statements made and as a rule makes inquiry as to what can be done to strengthen the Republican party for the next campaign. One caller interpreted this as meaning the primary campaign, but he was given no inkling as to whether Mr. Coolidge would permit his name to be put on the ballot in the primary elections.

Lining Up State Organizations.

The general impression is that President Coolidge cannot avoid being placed in the primary race. Some of his friends, knowing this to be inevitable, are lining up the State organizations to that the first primary elections in the early spring will insure a comfortable majority for the incumbent. Wherever it becomes apparent that Mr. Coolidge will not be particularly strong, his cohorts will make an effort to have the delegation go "uninstructed" so it can be further influenced in behalf of Mr. Coolidge when the national convention is in session. Some delegations would naturally have instructions to cast their ballots for favorite sons. This may be especially true of Pennsylvania, where either Gov. Pinchot or Senator Pepper may win the delegation. It is generally believed here that Mr. Coolidge may not get into the Pennsylvania primaries, but that a delegation for Pepper would mean its transformation at convention time into a Coolidge delegation.

Senator James Watson of Indiana is being urged by his friends to announce his candidacy, but he has told them it would be a mistake to announce one's candidacy at this time when the Republican leaders felt President Coolidge should have a chance to show what he can do. Senator Hiram Johnson of California is said to be pursuing the same tactics. The probabilities are that the truce will be terminated when Congress convenes in December.

Hilles' Visit Significant.

Meanwhile, the visit of Charles D. Hilles to the executive offices and the fact that he was entertained in the White House itself by President and Mrs. Coolidge has revived the report that Mr. Hilles may become chairman of the Republican National Committee after the next convention succeeding Chairman James T. Adams, who has let it be known that he does not wish to undertake an arduous presidential campaign. There are well defined reports that had President Harding lived he would be glad to see Mr. Hilles made National Chairman in the event of a resignation by Mr. Adams. Mr. Hilles has long been identified with Republican national politics. He was secretary to President Taft and managed the 1912 campaign. Since then he has been mentioned as a possible appointee to the Cabinet and it is known that Mr. Harding held his ability outside of politics in high esteem, too.

Centering the campaign in New York State whose many votes would be helpful as a nucleus for Mr. Coolidge at the Republican convention would have an effect, it is believed, on other Eastern States. That is the strategy of the moment and President Coolidge is keeping himself closely informed as to the whole situation by conferences almost daily with leaders from all parts of the United States. The work that is done now will have an important bearing on the result of 1924 convention for comments made thus early when rival candidates have not announced themselves will be especially valuable to the man in whose behalf they are made.

CONVICTS SUMMONED IN FLOGGING INQUIRY

Alabama Governor, However, Says Prisoners Will Not Be Allowed to Testify.

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 22.—Alabama convicts confined at the Banner mines, where a mutiny is reported to have taken place on Sept. 13, were scheduled to appear Monday before the grand jury in session here investigating the alleged brutality.

Ring leaders in the mutiny were flogged by orders of the Convict Board of Supervisors, it has been announced.

Gov. Brandon, who has expressed himself as being unfavorable to a grand jury investigation, announced today that the prisoners will not be allowed to testify. Solicitor James G. Davis, who is gathering evidence to lay before the investigators, declared that he did not look for any executive interference. In ordering L. A. Boyd, president of the Convict Board, to produce the convicts, Davis was quoted as saying that "if Mr. Boyd fails to produce these men before the grand jury Monday, I will either attach him and the men or cite Boyd for contempt.

"Will Not Be Bluffed."

"I am going through with this investigation," the Solicitor added. "I will not be bluffed from my course."

Court attaches said a number of witnesses were called before the investigators yesterday and they said that among the exhibits placed in evidence was the strap said to have been used in the whipping of 17 prisoners who participated in the outbreak.

Boyd, court officials said, appearing before the court as a witness gave an account of the mutiny which resulted in a considerable amount of property being destroyed and the subsequent orders by the board to flog the ringleaders. No details were available to the public.

The only available information of conditions at the mines was through the prisoners, Davis said, as Warden D. Evans and his deputy wardens are silent. The prisoners complained of mining tasks, medical and food supplies.

Silent Pending Report.

Solicitor Davis, when asked to confirm a report that one of the prisoners flogged is now in a serious condition at a hospital, refused to make any comment.

It was stated at the Solicitor's office that the convict board's book of punishments, a public record, showed that of the 17 convicts whipped for the alleged strike at Banner, 12 received 21 lashes each and five were given ten strokes with the "regulation leather strap," which was offered in evidence in the grand jury.

At Banner Mines yesterday, newspaper men said they were denied admittance at the gates.

Slayer Again Indicted.

W. C. Cochran, Belleville painter, who on Sept. 10 shot and fatally wounded his wife, Mrs. Mamie Cochran and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Emily Hall, and wounded Deputy Sheriff Al Petri and Patrolman George Schilling, was indicted on a second charge of murder by the St. Clair County grand jury yesterday. The second indictment grows out of the death of Mrs. Hall. Cochran will be tried for the murder of his wife during the week of Oct. 22. Deputy Sheriff Petri and Patrolman Schilling are recovering from their wounds. No effort has been made to remove the bullet from Petri's body. It is lodged in his shoulder.

THE REV. CALL MADE PASTOR OF LOUISVILLE, KY., CHURCH

His Sermon "The Faith of the Modernist" Provoked Much Discussion Here.

The Rev. Lon R. Call, who, as assistant pastor of the Second Baptist Church, preached a sermon May 27, entitled "The Faith of the Modernist," which brought many expressions both of approval and of dissent from persons in and outside of the congregation, has been appointed pastor of the First Unitarian Church at Louisville, Ky., where he will preach for the first time today.

In the sermon which provoked discussion, the Rev. Mr. Call, it will be remembered, avowed his belief in evolution, and said that "Jesus was not born of a virgin, but with the same nature that man has," also that "all the Old Testament stories prior to Abraham are legend."

The Rev. William Crowe of Westminster Presbyterian Church, later preached a sermon in reply, and other ministers of orthodox beliefs alluded to the Call sermon, in their pulpits. The position of assistant pastor in a large church is usually regarded as temporary and a young minister in such a position is usually expected to find a patorate of his own within a few years.

Two weeks after the sermon was delivered Rev. and Mrs. Call departed for a girl reserve camp in Iowa, and after a few weeks there the Rev. Mr. Call intended to spend the reaminder of the summer in study at Chicago University. The Second Church extended his vacation to permit the period of study.

FRENCH EXCHANGE RATES ADVANCE AS WEEK CLOSES

Now Above 6-Cent Basis—Selling of Oil Shares During Week Without Important Effect on Rest of List.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Developments in the market during the past week have lent strength to the theory that the previous week's reaction was the result of "tiredness" and professional activity rather than any sudden change in the character of the business outlook. In the stock market the decline plainly wore itself out, thus indicating that commitments for the rise had been moderate. Such a conclusion is the more reasonable in that heavy selling of oils in response to that industry's peculiarly weak position failed to have any important effect on the rest of the list. The market seems to be a narrow and professional one which can be moved rather easily over a moderate range in either direction. On the one hand, it appears to be difficult to attract much in the way of a public following on a rise; on the other hand, selling pressure prompts no large scale liquidating, thus indicating that stocks are much better held than before the turn of the half year.

Commodity Prices Firm.

"Commodity prices meanwhile have retained their firm tendency. Cotton has achieved another sharp advance, which has carried it above the 30 cent mark, the chief contributing factor being reports of further damage to the already short crop and the better news from abroad. This rise has occurred in the face of free Southern selling and has testified to good trade buying, heavy covering of shorts, and a renewed interest on the long side of the market. Foreign buying has been an important influence, stocks of the commodity at Liverpool having been allowed to run down to only about one week's supply. Sugar prices also have shown marked strength and the tone of the grain market has been steady. Taken altogether, existing signs point to an active fall trade. Production scarcely can be expected to recover on the spring peak, but such a recovery would be quite undesirable, while the volume of business which does seem likely to develop should be satisfactory if measured by any reasonable standard.

"Better foreign buying has been readily traceable to the turn to the reparations discussions. With small stocks of goods on hand, many European manufacturers realise that the matter has advanced to a point where a settlement at any time is a distinct possibility and that such a settlement would have a stimulating effect on the prices of raw materials. Optimism over Europe's chief problem also has had its effect on the foreign exchanges. French francs have now recovered approximately half a cent from their recent low. Belgian francs have gained similarly, and Italian lire have advanced over ¼ of a cent. Even sterling, which is now bearing the burden of commercial bills against purchases of cotton and other agricultural products, has firmed up appreciably. Welcome as these recoveries are as indicating an improvement abroad they are doubly useful because they represent an increase in foreign purchasing power and thus increase the potential demand for our own products. Our commodity markets, in fact, furnish a never-ending demonstration of our stake in European affairs.

The Foreign Situation.

"That the optimism over the Franco-German situation is well founded must be apparent to any close observer. Each succeeding Reichsbank statement is more disastrous than its predecessor and the chaos which such 'gigantic inflation' has produced is convincing the ordinary German of the impossibility of the existing policy. Ruhr resistance is crumbling and official abandonment of it as a measure at an early date should not be difficult. France and England meanwhile are showing greater ability to co-operate. France, it appears, wishes to close the breach and England seems disposed to go a considerable distance in order to do so. Allowing for the natural hitches, the progress of the negotiations for an agreement has been materially accelerated.

"Although trading on the Stock Exchange was on a small scale and confined to a narrow list, the tone of the market was distinctly firmer. In lieu of the selling pressure, particularly against the oil shares, which has been in evidence of late, there was moderate short covering, coupled with a quiet demand for some of the rails and industrial specialties. As the market closed the main body of stocks was generally fractionally higher. Bonds were quiet but firm, the foreign descriptions making only a small response to the improvement in the foreign exchanges.

Exchange Rates Rise.

"Dealings in the foreign exchange market reflected the continued improvement in sentiment regarding the Ruhr outlook and a realization on the part of the interests that have been speculating on the short side that a settlement of the reparations question may be nearer than they had anticipated. At any rate buying this morning of French francs and allied exchanges, including sterling, was brisk and was accompanied by large advances. The urgent demand for francs sent the price up to 6.02¼ cents, the highest quotation since the occupation of the Ruhr. Sterling at $4.55 5-8 was a cent higher. Spanish pesetas also turned strong, advancing 24 points to 13 cents.

"Cotton opened week on lower Liverpool markets, but the declines were followed by short interests. Before the close, however, a general covering movement, set in, induced by reports of heavy rains in Georgia and the Carolinas and the prediction of further showers. On this movement practically all the early losses were recovered, but later further profit taking and southern selling brought some reaction from the best point of the day. Grain moved in a narrow trading area with the tone firmer for both wheat and corn.

Bank Loans Increase.

"An increase of $12,500,000 in loans and discounts and a decrease of $13,300,000 in demand deposits are shown by the weekly statement of the Clearing House. For the first time in several weeks the surplus reserve was restored into a deficit, amounting to $3,350,000. Total loans now stand at $4,540,000,000."

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The condition statement of weekly reporting member banks of the Federal Reserve System on business Sept. 19 showed: Loans, discounts, etc., $4,539,934,000, decrease $12,554,000; investments, $1,153,000,000, decrease $4,000; reserve in Federal Reserve Bank, $449,000,000, decrease $6,000; reserve in vault, $91,047,000, decrease $1,444,000; net demand deposits, $4,044,000,000, decrease $13,300,000; time deposits, $1,000,000, decrease $1,000; Government deposits, $40,000,000, decrease $1,000; Federal Reserve notes in circulation, $400,000,000, increase $1,000; net deficit, $3,350,000, compared with net reserve excess of $1,444,000 a week ago.

LONDON SECURITY MARKET BETTER; GENERAL OUTLOOK

Anticipated That Money Rates Will Harden in Concluding Months of Year—Wool Market Situation.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review today, says:

"Although securities momentarily are better on the idea that Poincare and Baldwin are in agreement it is extremely doubtful whether an early solution of the crisis is immediately impending. Poincare's policy, right or wrong, is consistent and is backed by France. We, on the other hand, are completely divided. One section is steadily antagonistic to over punitive measures against Germany, especially in view of Wilson's 14 points. This section considers that French methods will lead simply to a bankrupt Germany and a Bolshevik Europe. The other section maintains that France alone understands the German mentality and that, even if the process be slow, the best path to peace and prosperity lies in complete subjugation of Germany, even if the total of reparations ultimately is reduced. The best opinions here are found in both opposing quarters.

Latest Reichsbank Reforms.

"The financial district is fairly unanimous, however, in believing that a crash in German marks is inevitable. The latest Reichsbank reforms, so far as understood, are approved in principle, but it is wholly impossible in the light of past experience to determine, first, whether they are sincere and second, whether the German people will stand the strain involved in these financial reforms. Mingled with these considerations, Russia must not be forgotten. She is busily engaged in Germany making commercial agreements, while the Soviet bank also is very busy its activities including active propaganda here concerning a new Soviet currency.

"Our money and securities outlook necessarily is temporarily affected by political uncertainties. It is generally anticipated that money rates will harden in the concluding months of the year without an actual rise in the bank rate. It is also believed that for the next year or two the climax of monetary ease has been reached. Nevertheless, there is moderate genuine investment buying of securities, because it is believed that over a five to 10-year period, present prices will prove low. Financial institutions, however, constantly seem with a view to possessing ample resources in the event of a trade revival.

The Wool Problem.

"Keen interest is being taken in the Bradford woolen manufacturers' demand for protection in view of French and Belgian competition. The matter is important because it reviews in acute form the old question of free trade and protectionism. Bradford's case is weakened by the fact that the success of continental competition is not solely due to depreciated exchanges, but partly to our trade unions' hampering restrictions on output and hours of labor, which Bradford unwisely deferred to during the period of prosperity. There is additional interest in the matter in view of the forthcoming Imperial conference because Bradford wants Colonial wool producers to place a special export duty on wool to countries outside the Empire.

"A bankers' scheme for Empire currency bills with the object of securing fixed exchange within the Empire also is likely to come before the conference. The scheme involves partial pooling of British and Colonial treasury bills and British and Colonial gold resources. The best quarters consider the plan quite unworkable and that nothing is likely to result.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The Baltimore & Ohio, among the rails, and Punta Alegre, among the sugars, were the leaders of today's markets. Other sugar stocks were very strong. Cuba Cane Sugar preferred was selling 16 point higher and Cuban-American 9 points higher than their low of the early summer.

Railway shares were drawn along moderately by the special strength in Baltimore & Ohio, but they were not noticeably active. Passing of the Cosden dividends failed to affect the stock and this was taken by some as one more indication of a sold-out condition in the oil shares.

Steel common got above 88, but with the demand from the short interest slackening the stock fell back again. Baldwin Locomotive at 115 was up over 2 points from Friday's close.

The market closed strong and well up to the best prices. Punta Alegre and Cuban Cane preferred were actively bought right up to the end.

The Bond Market.

Although subjected to the inevitable profit taking French Government bonds maintained their strong undertone in today's market. The feature all week has been the activity of French securities. This has been due to the same influence which caused the advance in French exchange practically to the 6c level. Both the speculative and investment communities have been impressed by the appearance of progress toward a settlement between France and Germany.

It has been a subject of comment that Central Europe bonds have not shared the favor shown to the French issues. Among the South American issues Brazilian obligations have been heavy except the coffee secured 7½ per cent sterling loan which is in a class by itself. There has been continued weakness in the Cuban 5½s with a low record.

Liberty bonds were strong again today. The stock explanation was buying for account of the treasury although a perfectly logical explanation would be a break in time money rates. There is also reason to believe that there has been more than the usual amount of buying of Liberty bonds for private investment. It is doubtful whether the banks are adding to their holdings.

Attention has been turned to the grade of bonds where security is combined with a more attractive yield. There are signs also of a better market for seasoned bonds secured on prime values and amply protected by earning power.

Speculative securities have fluctuated this week in sympathy with speculative stocks although there has been little response so far in sugar bonds. Nor, on the other hand, have the steel bonds been much affected by the depression in steel stocks. A possible exception is Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s, which showed a loss of about 3 points.

New offerings totaled $27,201,000 of which the largest single issue was $10,000,000 Pacific Gas and Electric 5½s. The Ohio Power Company also put out $6,000,000 mortgage bonds.

CORN SELLS HIGHER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 22.—Corn featured the trade in futures with substantial advance, wheat being carried along. Buying of corn was credited to a private report of frost damage recently in four states. Shorts covered. As for wheat news, the Northwest markets were easier on receipts situation. Exchange rates were higher.

In the local cash grain market Saturday offerings of red winter wheat were light and under fair demand prices ruled steady to 1c higher. Local mills were best buyers. There was little hard wheat offered and No. 2 hard sold 1@1½c higher, mills giving $1.07 to $1.07½ for Iowa and Illinois deliveries. Mixed wheats were sell taken. Western dark and near-dark varieties were firm and quoted nominally from $1.22 to $1.25, according to protein content, but there were no track offerings. Cash corn was strong under influence of higher futures and limited offerings. The grains ranged from ¾c to 1¼c with bids of 1c higher, mills giving $1.07 to $1.07½ for Iowa and Illinois deliveries. Mixed wheats were sell taken. Western dark and near-dark varieties were firm and quoted nominally from $1.22 to $1.25, according to protein content, but there were no track offerings. Cash corn was strong under influence of higher futures and limited offerings. The grains ranged from ¾c to 1¼c with bids of 1@1½c higher, mills giving $1.07 to $1.07½ for Iowa and Illinois deliveries. Local industries bought about half of the offerings, the balance being taken to fill local and outside orders. In the oats market No. 2 white sold up 1c, an extra choice car doing at 45½c, while the lower grades were 1@2c higher. Although local trade bought most, shippers and elevators also were in the market.

The rise in corn followed private report of Illinois corn molding in the fields and serious damage by frost and excessive rain in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa.

Fractional advances were shown by wheat and corn in the forepart of the session, the coarse grain leading in range. Liverpool wheat closed ¾d to ¼d lower. Buying of corn futures helped wheat here. There was general break-end covering.

December wheat opened at $1.04¼. May wheat $1.08¾. December corn 68¾c and May corn 69¾.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 2600 cars, compared with 1882 a week ago and 2266 last year. Minneapolis receipts were 402 cars, Duluth 123 and Winnipeg 113.

Local wheat receipts, which were 71,191 bushels, compared with 87,658 a week ago and 109,200 last year, included 30 cars local and 29 through.

Local corn receipts, which were 81,000 bushels, compared with 67,600 a week ago and 46,000 last year, included 43 cars local and 20 through.

Local oats receipts, which were 98,000 bushels, compared with 67,200 a week ago and 48,000 last year, included 34 cars local and 30 through. Hay receipts were 16 cars local and 1 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were: 2,178,742 bushels of wheat, 53,807 bushels of corn, 1,000 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised 246,000 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 743,570 bushels of No. 3 red winter wheat, 1,000 bushels of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 19,398 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 19,389 bushels of No. 3 corn, 1,000 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 11,745 bushels of No. 3 yellow corn, 1,000 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 1,727 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 20,000 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 7926 bushels of No. 2 rye, 12,685 bushels of traffic corn.

Primary receipts of wheat were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 1,342,000. Primary receipts of corn were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 694,000. Primary receipts of oats were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 842,000.

Primary shipments of wheat were lighter than a week ago and lighter than year ago, being 25,000. Primary shipments of corn were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago being 474,000. Primary shipments of oats were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago being 710,000.

Receipts of oats at the Western markets from Aug. 1 to date are 48,587,000 bu., as compared to 51,928,00 bu. last year and 55,421,000 bu. in 1921.

Receipts of corn at the Western market since Nov. 1 total 972,973,000 bu., comprising 354,715,000 bu. last year and 972,291,000 bu. 1921.

The shipments of wheat from the principal Western markets this week total 6,576,000 bu., against 7,070,000 bu. last week and 6,311,000 bu. last year.

The receipts of corn at the primary markets this week are 4,445,000 bu., last week and compared to 4,445,000 bu. last week and 4,083,000 bu. last year. Shipments were 2,860,000 bu., against 3,750,000 bu. last week and 4,798,000 bu. last year.

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Price advances in the butter markets during the first two weeks of September were checked during the past week, caused partly by the movement from storages of stocks which during June and July had been stored at a cost under 40 cents. Use of storage butter also relieved the shortage of fresh stocks.

Production continued to show a decrease and receipts at the four markets maintained about the same level as during previous week. Consumption, in spite of some complaints from distributors nearest the consumer, is reported holding up well. Fureign butter played a very small part in the control of domestic prices during the week. Arrivals at New York included several cars of Canadian butter, 2015 boxes of unsalted butter and 3100 casks of Baltic butter. Range in prices 92-score butter during the week at four markets was as follows: Chicago, unchanged at 47½c. New York ¼c higher at 47c. Boston, ¼c higher at 47½c, and Philadelphia, ½c higher at 48c.

CORN STRENGTH REFLECTED IN CHICAGO WHEAT PRICE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Wheat started lower on selling by overnight longs today, but the market rallied to higher prices in the subsequent trading on covering by shorts to secure profits. There was good buying in the later trading on the strength in corn. There was a betterment in marks and sterling and francs were unchanged, but export business was curtailed by the advance in prices. Northwest markets were easier owing to the heavier receipts and indications point to over 5000 cars of grain receipts in Winnipeg Monday. Broomhall cable says there are finding Algerian wheat unsatisfactory as to quality an dare importing foreign wheat. It is expected that they will take some durums. Market closed ¾@⅞c higher, September, $1.01; December, $1.03¾@⅞; May, $1.08⅝; July, $1.03⅝.

Corn was the speculative leader of the grain trade. The market was firm from the start, but the real action did not develop until after midsession. In addition to heavy short covering there was good general investment buying. The bull factor was the report of B. W. Snow in which he tells of increasing complaints of material frost damage to corn from heavy producing sections of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. He also tells of wet weather causing rot and mold damage. Cash corn did not follow the advance in future, September breaking to new high level on the crop late in the day. Market closed 1¾@1¾c up; September, 86⅝; December, 69⅞@¾; May, 69⅞@70.

Oats were firm wit hother grains. Some buying by cash houses noted. Market closed ⅝@¾c higher; September, 39½; December, 40; May, 42⅝.

Provisions were quiet and without much change. Packers bought a little lard early. Lard was off 2½c and ribs off 5c.

Livestock Elsewhere

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—U. S. Department of Agriculture—Hogs: Receipts 4000, uneven; most sales steady at Friday's average; few desirable lights steady to 10c lower. Weighty butchers steady to strong; bulk better grades 185 to 240-pound averages $8.80@8.90; top $8.90; desirable 250@300 pounds butchers mostly $8.60@8.80; packing sows largely $7.50@7.70; killing pigs 25c to 50c higher; few desirable strong weight $7@7.75, estimated holdover 6000; heavy weight hogs $8.25@8.85; medium $8.50@8.85; light lights $7.80@8.80; packing sows smooth $7.50@ 8; pigs mostly rough $7.25@7.65; slaughter pigs $8.25@7.75.

CATTLE—Receipts 1000; compared week ago, matured beef steers excepting strictly choice offerings, largely 50c lower; spots considerably more; yearlings largely 25c to 50c lower; closing trade very uneven, at decline; top matured steers $13; latest top lings $13.50; western grassers steady to weak; she stock little changed; canners and cutters and bulls strong; vealers 50c higher; stockers and feeders steady to 25c lower; week bulk prices follow: Good beef steers $9.15@11.25; western grassers $7@8; butcher cows and heifers $4.40@8.50; canners and cutters $2.85@3.50; veal calves $12.75 @13.50; stockers and feeders $6@7.50.

SHEEP—Receipts 5000; receipts especially well fed, no sales, compared week ago, fat lambs mostly 50c lower; fat sheep and feeder lambs general 25c lower; some 50c down; closing top western lambs $14.50; native $14.25; week's bulk prices; fat western lambs $13.85@14.40; natives $13.25@ 14; cull natives $6.50@10; yearling wethers $9.50@11; wethers $8.25@8.75; fat ewes $4.50@6.75; feeder lambs $13.25@13.75; week's receipts 10 marks largest for practically two years.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 22.—Cattle, receipts this week totaled 83,500, exclusive of 20,200 calves, compared with 85,300 last week. Heavy weight corn fed steers were in good demand and prices have gained about in line with the week previous. Practically all other classes of killing steers were under pressure and weaker to lower. Feeders demand was light.

With heavier receipts of hogs, al classes were lower for the week. About 80,000 were received, against 60,368 a week ago; better grades of butchers were mostly 10c to 15c off, with light weight 15c to 25c to 15c off, with light weight 15c to 25c lower. Shipping demand was narrow. Packing grades went mostly from $7 to $7.75, bulk $7.25@7.60. Receipts for the week 74,000

Sheep, receipts for the week 19,000 against 68,700 the week previous. Western fat lambs declined 10c to 25c because of the increase in receipts. Other classes, however, showed little change. Best western lambs closed at $13.90; bulk $13.25@13.85. Fat lambs were scarce.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 22.—Hogs—Receipts 5500; market steady to 5c higher; top $8.60; bulk of sales $8.25@8.55. Cattle, receipts 1500; market nominal; steers, $6@12.25; cows and heifers, $3.25@10.25; canners, $5@10.50; stockers and feeders, $4.50@8. Sheep—Receipts 600; all direct; market nominal; lambs, $12.50@13.75; ewes, $5.50@6.50.

Livestock markets closed generally steady to lower for the week at the St. Louis National Stockyards. Combined receipts were of good volume, approximating 151,532 head for the six-day period. The steer market was the heaviest hit in the cattle department. Native beef animals of choice quality declined only about 25c, although many of the common, medium and good droves a loss of 50c@$1 or more was recorded. Western grass steers dropped 25c@ 50c for the period, while stocker and feeder offerings closed barely steady. Some of the best native steers and yearlings scored in a range of $12@12.25 per cwt., followed by fair finished lots around $10 and commoner kinds down to $7 and under. Western steers, totaling better than 100 cars, came in from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Most cleared from $4 to $7.35, although several well-finished Kansas consignments registered in the $8 column. Light steers and heifers declined about 25c to 50c. Some of the better kinds sold at

The Brothers of Mary, a Catholic teaching order, have received word that none of their more than 5000 students and teachers in Japan was injured in the recent earthquake. The order has colleges at Urakami, Nagasaki, Osaka, Tokio and Yokohama, and the message added the institution at Yokohama was demolished but that the other buildings were damaged only slightly.

BRYAN IN SERVICE OF SCHOOLS 50 YEARS

Friends to Celebrate Half-Century Connection With Program Friday Evening.

The 50-year connection of W. J. S. Bryan, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of the high schools, with the public educational system of St. Louis will be celebrated by friends, including many former pupils, at Central High School Friday evening. There will be a program of addresses in the auditorium at 8 p. m. and a reception in the second-floor corridor afterward.

Many men and women who are prominent locally or nationally were trained under Bryan's supervision at Central, of which he was principal for some time.

He was born in St. Louis March 12, 1853, 70 years ago, and entered the old Webster School at the age of 10, completing the grade work in two years. Graduating from Central at 16, he won a scholarship to Washington University with an average grade of 98, which subsequent scholarship winners have not equaled. He graduated from Washington University in 1873, having taught a Greek class at Central for several months of his senior year, during the illness of the regular instructor.

He had thought of studying medicine, but decided to take up education as life work and became a teacher at Central, with classes in English, public speaking, Greek, Latin and, later, chemistry. When the late F. Louis Soldan was promoted from the principalship of Central to the superintendency, in 1896, the principalship was given to Bryan. The school reached a record enrollment of 3000 later, making new high schools necessary. Improvement of the athletic system is one of the things attributed to Bryan.

He was promoted to his present position in 1908, succeeding the late Ben Blewett, who followed Soldan as superintendent. He is an active member and former president of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Washington University awarded him the honorary degree of A. M. in 1905. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, and is known among his friends as a writer of sonnets and other verse.

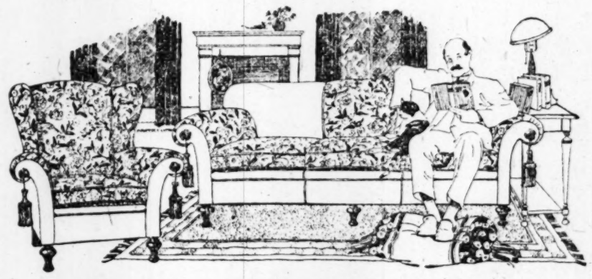
Continuing the Clearaway of Floor Samples
Fine Furniture Drastically Reduced

LAST week we launched a sale to dispose of our floor samples and the surplus stock we recently purchased at the Grand Rapids market. The response to this sale has been very gratifying and hundreds of suites and odd pieces have left our store to grace St. Louis homes.

SCORES of excellent sample suites and odd pieces still remain unsold and we have included many more manufacturers' samples this week. A few random selections are pictured here—it is impossible for one advertisement to give you an idea of all the values this sale embraces.

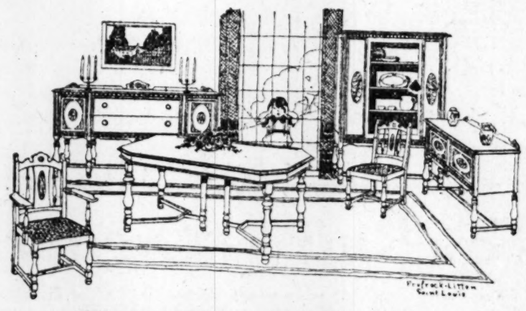


Two-Piece Wool Mohair Suite
Here is a sample Suite, made in the Prufrock-Litton factory. Its superior quality will be recognized at a glance.

The broad 78-inch davenport and comfortable wing chair are upholstered in $8 per yard wool mohair. There are several floor samples, one in plain brown, one in gray figured and plain, and one in a combination of tapestry and wool mohair.

Both pieces have loose spring cushion seats, solid walnut legs and heavy silk tassels on all arms. No need to worry about how this Suite will wear—every piece of furniture we make is guaranteed! Two pieces, wing chair and davenport; a $200 value $148

Davenport, $95; Wing Chair, $53; Low-Back Chair to match, $47



Eight-Piece Dining Suite
The Suite sketched above is handsome enough for any home, so beautiful is the wood and the design.

Eight pieces include 45x60-inch extension table, 66-inch buffet, with dustproof drawer construction, four side chairs and two armchairs, upholstered in your choice of $12-per-yard wool mohairs or tapestries. The dull walnut makes this Suite very elegant.
Eight pieces, a $300 value, now $255

Same Suite, nine pieces, with china cabinet, a $365 value..... $315

"For the mill will never grind with the water that has passed."

Have you ever seen one of the old, picturesque water-mills whose power was used (in years gone by) to grind wheat into flour?

The water mill was also used in place of our present-day steam and electricity. But what of the water?

Further down the stream it will be used again, thus proving that power, properly conserved, never loses its usefulness.

Never Cease Trying!

PART FOUR. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 23, 1923. PAGES 1—18

Prophet Will Find Notable Gathering At the Air Races

Distinguished Visitors From All Parts of Country and Their Wives Will Be Guests of St. Louis—Rear Admiral and Mrs. W. A. Moffett Among Them.

IF for no other reason than to give St. Louis the privilege of playing host to the men who have risked their lives many times, and have given their time and money for almost a generation to the cause of aeronautics, the International Air races would be a success. And not only will she greet these men, but their wives as well, and when our own Veiled Prophet, ours by right of origin and tradition, flies into the field at Bridgeton the morning of Oct. 1, he will greet a company of distinguished visitors from all parts of the country. A fluttering of flags from the nations of the world, the strains of the march from "Aida" played by a corps of trumpeters from the Sixth Regiment Band, aerial bombs dropped from planes flying in battle formation—such will be the setting for the festivities to precede events in flying that will make history for St. Louis and for the entire flying world.

Among the most prominent Americans to be present are Rear Admiral and Mrs. William A. Moffett, who will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goddard at their home in Brentmoor. Admiral Moffett is at the head of the Bureau of Aeronautics in the navy. Glenn H. Curtiss, pioneer aviator who won the New York World and Post-Dispatch prize in 1910 for flying from Albany to New York, will bring Mrs. Curtiss to St. Louis with him. They will be at Hotel Chase. In fact almost all of the visitors, with the exception possibly of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker, who have many personal friends in St. Louis, will be guests at the Statler and the Chase. Col. Harold E. Hartney of Washington, who was Capt. Rickenbacker's commanding officer when the American ace won fame as a destroyer of German planes, will have Mrs. Hartney. The Hartneys are from Washington. Another interesting visitor will be Miss Katherine Wright of Dayton, O., sister of the world-famed men whose bravery and knowledge did so much to further the cause of aviation in its infancy. Miss Wright will be accompanied by her brother, Orville, Wilbur having died some years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Coffin of Detroit will be here, as will Miss Clara Miller of Washington. Mr. Coffin is president of the National Aeronautic Association and the presiding officer of the St. Louis meet, and Miss Miller is a well-known aviation enthusiast and club woman from Washington. Among the army officers and their wives will be Lieut. and Mmes. E. L. Page, O. O. Niegarth, E. Adler, C. E. Thomas and Capt. and Mrs. Thomas F. Weldon, all of the Wilbur Wright Field at Fairfield, O., and Lieut. and Mrs. H. A. Sutton of the McCook Field, Dayton. In addition will be Mrs. M. L. Sinsabaug of New York, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Wilson of Wheeling, W. Va.; Mrs. G. L. Bumbaugh, wife of the Indianapolis balloonist, and Miss Alleene Abele of Patterson, N. J.

Little in the way of formal entertainment has been provided for them except a banquet in the ball room of Hotel Statler Monday night, but a group of the army and navy officials will occupy a special row of boxes built for them and for other distinguished guests at the Veiled Prophet ball. Preparations are being made to drape these boxes in the flags of the nation represented, and the entire Coliseum is to be arranged more elaborately than at any preceding ball. The entertainment this year will be given by the former Imperial Russian ballet of Petrograd, now a part of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, and the Chicago Opera Company.

The decorative scheme at the Coliseum will be, as formerly, white and gold, picked out with red, purple and gold—the colors of His Mysterious Majesty, the Veiled Prophet. Special brilliant color effects will be produced by assistance of high power lights which will add much to the gorgeousness of the spectacle and at the same time, will not be trying on the eyes of the spectators. The orchestra this year is to be placed in front of the stage instead of behind it and will be in two sections with the main aisle open, which will be traversed by the Prophet.

A partial, though unofficial, list of the girls —ands of this and last year—who will grace the Court of Love and Beauty assembled in honor of the Prophet, is presented here:

Clemence Adreon, Virginia de Anguera, Dorothy May Bolin, Margaret S. Chandler, Janet Lee Collins, Mary Virginia Collins, Frances Compton, Virginia L. Cornwall, Virginia Cronk, Judith Dana, Dorothy Folk, Frances Fristoe, Katherine P. Hafner, Annalee Hagerman, Genevere Harnett, Trimble Hoblitzelle, Gertrude, K. Lehl, Julia M. Lawnin, Grace W. Layman, Alice May Meier, Madlyn Miller, Josephine S. Moffett, Olive B. Moffitt, Esther G. Moody, Jane B. McElroy, Marie Nugent, Lauralouise Price, Eloise Reder, Jane A. Rule, Nellie B. Shields, Isabelle M. Smith, Lucy Terry, Elizabeth Thatcher, Jane Elizabeth Treadway, Corrine M. Wagner, Ruth Woerner, Mary Carmen Ryan, Lucille Trorlicht, Jane Frances Wilson, Lucy F. Hoblitzelle, Susan Lewis, Alice F. Strauch, Louise S. Bemis, Ruth Cornet, Willis Dyer, Marie Carr Taylor, Sophie B. Thomas, Margaret Tupper, Elizabeth Ballard, Alma Clark, Mary Francis Dickson, Josephine Garrett, Dorothy Ladd, Jane Parsons, Rachel Lee Cuendet, Harriet Lane Cates, Dorothy Cramer, Marjorie Frampton, Marie Wygant, Jessie Carr, Frances Collins, Helen Hussey, Ruth Krause, Mary O'Fallon, Elizabeth Robert, Isabelle D. Miss Katherine Pierce. Her engagement to Reginald Mortimer Cross Ormrod, formerly of Lancaster, England, was announced Wednesday.

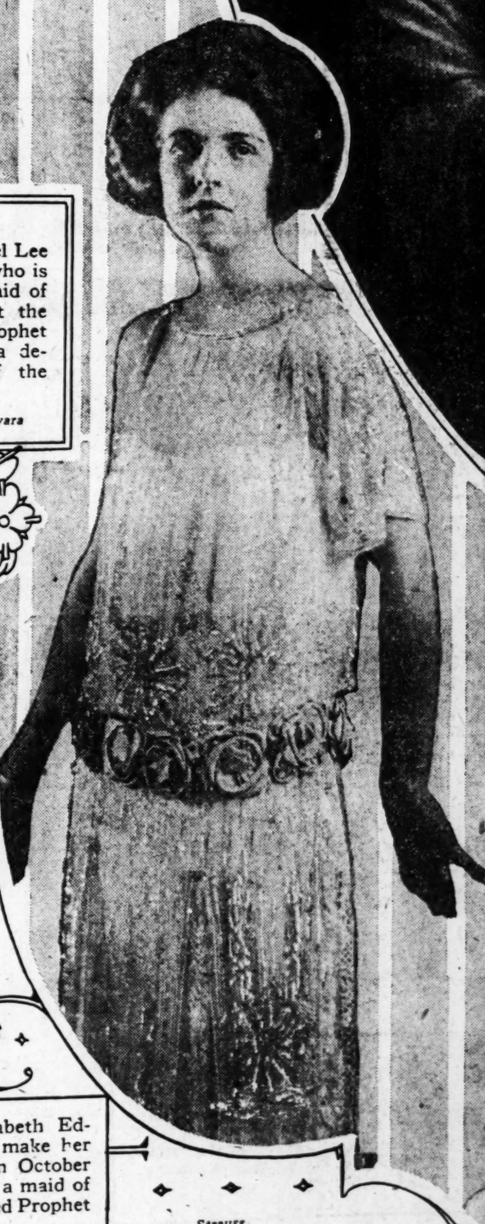
Miss Elizabeth Tupper. She will make her debut as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball.

—Strauss.



Miss Rachel Lee Cuendet, who is to be a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball, and a debutante of the season.

—Kajiwara

Miss Mary Elizabeth Edwards, who will make her debut at a tea in October and will serve as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball.

—Strauss.

Miss Alleen Dunn. Her engagement to Dr. Otto Wilhelmi was announced recently.

—Kandeler

Lady Peck of Devonshire, England, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Holliday of 20 North Kings' highway, who have been her guests, are expected in St. Louis today. Lady Peck, who was Miss Edwine Thornburgh, will visit her mother, Mrs. William C. Stribling of the St. Regis apartments. Sir Wilfred Peck, who came as far as New York with them on a business trip, will return home. The Striblings returned yesterday from California.

Mrs. G. Theodore Sweetser of New York, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Nicholl of 5674 Cabanne avenue, is in Chicago for the week-end as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lamphier of Springfield, Ill. Mrs. Sweetser is a sister-in-law of Jesse Sweetser, who lost his title of National Amateur Golf Champion in Chicago yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Lamphier and Mrs. Sweetser will motor to Springfield tomorrow and will return to St. Louis in a day or two.

SEVERAL NAMES ADDED TO LONG LIST OF DEBUTANTES

Miss Louise Bemis, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson W. Bemis of Brentmoor, will make her bow to society at a dinner dance to be given for her at the St. Louis Country Club the evening of Nov. 16. Miss Bemis was graduated in June from Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., and with her mother recently returned home from Hyannisport, Mass., where they spent the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Price of 5227 Washington boulevard will take possession of their new home on Forsythe boulevard this week, and their daughter, Miss Lauralouise, will make her debut there at a large afternoon reception early in November. In December, her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reed Wilson, will give a ball for her.

Miss Elizabeth Tupper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Tupper, who recently completed her education in a French school at Lausanne, Switzerland, also will be presented to society. The Tuppers will make their home this winter in an apartment at 14 North King's highway.

Mrs. John O'Fallon Delany will chaperon her niece, Miss Marie Wygant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Wygant of Ithaca, N. Y., who is to be her guest for the winter. Mrs. Delany is planning a party for her. All four of these young women have been invited to attend the Queen of Love and Beauty as maids of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Compton of 18 Kingsbury place will introduce their daughter, Miss Frances, at a ball at the St. Louis Country Club, Nov. 2. The Comptons spent the summer in Europe. Miss Compton will return early this week from a visit to her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Compton, on Long Island.

During the last week several additional names have been added to the longest list of debutantes St. Louis has had in years. Miss Josephine Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Garrett of Kingsbury place, will be introduced at an afternoon reception in the first part of the season. Mrs. Garrett, the debutante's and another daughter, Miss Stella, spent the summer in Edgartown, Mass. Miss Stella is visiting in New York and will return home in October.

St. Louis society shares interest in marriage of Miss Isabelle De Mun Palms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Palms of Detroit and granddaughter of the late Julius S. Walsh, to Harold L. Buckley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Buckley of Springfield, Mass., Oct 26. The ceremony is to take place in the Catholic Church at Grosse Point, a fashionable suburb of Detroit, where the Paines' home has recently been completed. The wedding will be quiet, as the family is still in mourning for Mr. Walsh. Miss Palms probably will have some of her cousins as attendants. The couple will return to Detroit after their honeymoon trip, to occupy the new home being built for them on the Palms estate. Mrs. William Maffitt, Mr. and Mrs. Julius S. Walsh Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. B. Walsh, aunts and uncles of the bride, will go to Detroit for the ceremony. Miss Palms has visited in St. Louis many times. She was educated at Eden Hall, Philadelphia, and Manhattanville, N. Y., and is a debutante of last season. Mr. Buckley was an ace during the war, attaining the rank of Major in the Air Service, and receiving the Croix de Guerre and two citations for destroying German planes.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyal L. Leonard of 5305 Delmar boulevard, have returned from the East. Mrs. Leonard spent part of the summer with her father, Robert Farquhar of Boston, at Kennebuckport, Mo., and later went to Breton Wood. Yachting trips formed part of her summer diversion.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edward Mather Bain have departed for a week's stay in New York. They will sail next Saturday on the Olympic for Cherbourg and Paris. They plan five weeks in Spain and Portugal and a short time in Southern France, along the Pyrenees. Mrs. C. B. Raoul Fitz-William, their daughter, will have charge of their home on Flora place in their absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Wheeler of 6195 Kingsbury boulevard have returned from Wood's Lake, Colo., where they spent the summer. Their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Louis W. Schrieber, who spent most of the season motoring in Michigan, also have returned. Mrs. Schreiber was with her parents for a time early in the season.

Dinners will be given Veiled Prophet night, Oct. 2, by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Church Bixby, who have returned from their honeymoon and are with Mrs. Bixby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Gerstinger, of 15 Kingsbury place, and Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson Lambert of 26 Washington terrace.

Mrs. C. A. Moreno of 4258 Westminster place is entertaining for the winter her sister, Mrs. E. P. Hamm, of Gainesville, Ga., and the latter's daughters, Misses Theodora, who will attend Washington University, and Miss Hildergarde, who is to be a student at Mary Institute.

Mrs. C. Hunt Turner Jr. of 470 Lake avenue, who came to St. Louis to attend the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Benjamin O'Fallon, has returned with her sisters, Mrs. James Nolan of Washington, and Miss Ethel O'Fallon, to the family home in Millwood, Clarke County, Va., for a short stay. Mr. Turner and their daughters, Misses Margaret and Lucy Turner, who have been in Virginia, are expected in St. Louis today.

Miss Judith Dana, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dana of Brentmoor, will make her debut at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club, on Oct. 25, and at an afternoon reception to be given by her parents the early part of November.

NEW ST. LOUIS U. DEPARTMENT

The College of Arts and Sciences of St. Louis University opens tomorrow morning with the largest enrollment in its history, and in the afternoon the School of Education will begin its session with more than 100 students, all teachers in the various schools of the city, for whom this special department was arranged.

Another new department at the university, which now is fully under way is the day school of Commerce and Finance, this being the third branch of this business training course to be established. It was begun in 1910 as a night course with only a handful of students, a Veterans' Bureau day class was added in 1919, and the press of applications for a regular day class of the same caliber as the night school led to the decision last August, to open the day classes this year. Fifty-two freshmen reported for the new course. The commerce course in all its branches will have a total of more than 800 students.

Putting Your Best Foot Foremost

Dr. F. J. Guilbault

To appear to the best advantage before those you meet, is a natural and worthy desire.

Of all your features, your eyes make the greatest impression upon a new acquaintance.

Squinting and strained vision and other annoying symptoms of defective sight detract immeasurably from your personal appearance.

Have your eyes tested by me and secure Glasses that will normalize your vision, banish eyestrain headaches, abolish squinting and peering and make it possible for you to appear to the best advantage under all circumstances.

Nineteen years' successful practice in the correction of visual defects by means of properly prescribed Glasses, over 30,000 satisfied clients, and the most moderate charges in St. Louis are the basis of my appeal for your business.

NEWS OF MISSOURI FOLKS AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The news that Mrs. Harding has leased an apartment in Washington is received with deep interest by her friends and in administration circles generally. Mrs. Harding always enjoyed contact with national affairs and takes a keen interest in the questions of the day. It has been persistently current that she is writing her memoirs. If so, they will be most eagerly read, for while she was not a war-time mistress of the White House she presided there at a very interesting time socially and diplomatically. Everyone knows that more went on at the limitation of arms conferences than was made public, and many are waiting to see if Mrs. Harding's diary will reveal any of the conversations over the most discussed features of the great limitation of arms pact.

Mrs. Champ Clark, wife of the late Speaker of the House of Representatives, has been busy writing her impressions of 25 years in official life of Washington. Mrs. Clark, in her own words, is busy with my works." She "writes with a large hand," entertainingly and frankly and as she really feels. So it is expected that some pithy and to the point paragraphs will make Washington take note. Mrs. Clark endeared herself to Washington, and the news that she will visit Washington for the winter after spending the time since the Speaker's death in Bowling Green, is welcome.

Missourians are leading in the aviation craze which has struck the national capital in the last few months. The Assistant Secretary of War, Dwight Davis, has been flying often, now to view the bombing practice by army planes at Hampton Roads and again to New York for the polo matches between the British and American teams. Mrs. Davis is still in the North, but is recovering from her illness and is expected to return soon to Washington. Another air enthusiast is Gen. Pershing who thinks nothing of taking a "hop" from Bolling Field, outside Washington, to nearby places.

The return of the Breckenridge Longs to Washington is hailed with delight for they are as popular as any who have ever lived here and, like the Robert Lansings, although they figured in a Democratic administration, number many Republicans among their intimate friends.

The chief of the Bureau of Naval Aeronautics, Rear Admiral Moffett, and his corps of good-looking "boat pilots," as the navy calls its aviators, will descend on St. Louis early in the month for the air races. The naval aviators are among the most popular of the bachelors in Washington society, and it is expected that many of the debutantes and subdebutantes will be lured to St. Louis to see the races. Miss Janet Moffett, who has been spending the summer with Mrs. John J. Mitchell Jr., at Lake Forest, Ill., will join her father and mother in St. Louis with a party of friends.

Mrs. James Crason Breckenridge, wife of Col. Breckenridge of the Marone Corps, and sister-in-law of Mrs. Genevieve Clark Thomson, entertained at tea at the house of the Commandant of the Marine Barracks Thursday. Mrs. Breckenridge wore a lovely gown of black pleated satin crepe, made in tier effect.

Senator and Mrs. James Reed have opened their house in Washington and have entertained several times informally.

Senator and Mrs. Selden E. Spencer also have returned to Washington. Mrs. Spencer is expected to be a power socially in the new administration as she and Mrs. Coolidge have been close friends. Mrs. Coolidge was one of the most faithful attendants at the Bible study classes conducted by Mrs. Spencer.

Mrs. Patrick Bellinger, formerly Miss Miriam Benoist of St. Louis, has just returned to Washington from a visit with Miss Isabelle Welles at her country place at Hot Springs, Va.

Mrs. John B. Henderson, widow of the late Senator Henderson of Missouri, and her granddaughter, Miss Beatrice Henderson, who have spent the summer on the North Shore, will return to their Washington home next week. Miss Henderson was to have been a debutante this season, but, of course, the plan has been abandoned because of the death of her father, John B. Henderson Jr., last spring.

The Sixth Floor

—quite naturally tops this page of Arcade News, as the main purpose of this publicity is to acquaint Saint Louisans with the fact that the "Upstairs Shops" are not to be outdone when it comes to specialized service and splendid values. Please make a mental note that you will do well to visit our three most excellent Tailors, our expert Corsetieres and a cunning shop where instructions are given free in the making of exquisite gifts. Our Sixth Floor Beauty Shop fears no competition and every aid to beauty is available.

The Fifth Floor

—is at your service with a worthy establishment of Tailoring, a Shop of Beauty for every woman, a Diamond Merchant, an unexcelled Furrier and a Jewelry Shop of exceptional merit.

Remember, too, that service is our watchword with quality always paramount. Visit these shops and profit by a varied selection that cannot fail to win your instant approval and continued patronage.

The Third Floor

—offers you the privilege of choosing "gifts that are different" and quite modestly priced, in addition to a jeweler who claims and merits the distinction of the largest selection of jewels at the lowest possible prices. Madame and Miss Saint Louis will also find a comprehensive choice of smart, individual modes in millinery, up to the minute and reasonably priced.

The First Floor

—really needs no introduction, as its beautiful array of charming shops has been likened to the famous Rue de La Paix. You will find here the "Daintiest Jewelry Shop" in Saint Louis, where the attractive alliance of quality, beauty and price is happily demonstrated.

A Toggery Shop for men that is a joy for its perfection in furnishings and a "Smart Shop" for women that brings Fifth Avenue models at popular prices. You will adore the delightful Flower Shop where quality and service are featured—then to the Eighth street entrance and you have found comfort for your feet in shoes that are built for service.

Tomorrow we shall expect you to personally tour these shops. It will be a day well spent.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Halley of 3716 Hydraulic street celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Saturday, Sept. 15, by having mass celebrated at SS. Mary's and Joseph's Church. The bride was christened, made her first communion, was confirmed and was married at the same church, and returned there for her anniversary mass. A reception was held at Nitzschmann's Hall, where decorations were ferns and flowers. Mrs. Halley wore a dress of silver lace, with silver slippers and hose to match, and carried a bouquet of red roses, with a single white rose in the center to represent the twenty-fifth year. The evening was spent in dancing, and lunch was served at midnight.

Gorgeous Dresses From Paris

"A Sale"—at $69.75 and $89.75

THIS is an event which debutantes and matrons will heartily welcome, for it presents the latest whimsies from Fashion's center at extremely low prices, and at a time when everywhere is being heralded the coming of the Veiled Prophet and the Winter social season.

Dinner and Evening Dresses radiant with steel and colored beads cast a reflection that is decidedly Parisian. All are sleeveless, some in coat effect, others with waistline marked by a shirring or new motif in the beaded design.

The materials are velvet, crepe Romaine, satin and flat crepe, in brilliant colors as well as the softer shades. Imports of this quality are not often found at prices so low.

Included in the two sale groups are a few chiffon models which apply silk lace as overskirts and drapes. These are very smart for the woman who chooses subdued notes for her formal costume. Sizes 34 to 44.

MANY WEDDINGS AND BETROTHALS IN ST. LOUIS

Miss Helen Van Raalte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Van Raalte of 36 Washington terrace, is to become the bride of Arnold Block, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Block, of Kansas City at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home of her parents, Rabbi Louis Witt officiating. It will be a quiet home ceremony with only members of the two families present. The only attendant will be Susanne Goldberg of Kansas City, a niece of the bridegroom. The house is to be decorated in pink and white roses, and the bridal party will stand in the large reception hall. The bride will wear white moire, made on straight lines, with a half girdle of orange blossoms. A moire court train, lined with satin and embroidered in pearls, will hang from her shoulders, and a coronet of duchesse lace will hold the tulle veil. Her flowers are to be orchids and lilies of the valley.

After a bridal dinned for 70 guests, Mr. Block and his bride will depart for the West. They will make their home in Kansas City. Miss Van Raalte is a graduate of Mary Institute, and finished her education in the East.

The engagement of Miss Katherine Pierce, daughter of Mrs. Lawrance B. Pierce of 16 Hortense place, and Reginald Mortimer Cross Ormrod, was the outstanding bit of social news of the last week. The announcement was made Wednesday at an informal tea given for Miss Pierce by Mrs. William H. Cocke of Lindell boulevard. The wedding date has not been announced. Miss Pierce is a graduate of Mary Institute and a member of the Junior League. She recently returned from a tour of the world with her mother. Mr. Ormond came to the United States during the war while serving with the British army. His home was in Lancaster, England, and he was educated at Charter House and Sandhurst.

The wedding of Miss Helen Crowley, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Crowley of St. Louis, and Milton H. Weil of Shreveport, La., took place Tuesday evening at Hotel Chase, Rabbi Thurman officiating. About 150 guests were present at the ceremony, in the ballroom, and at the dinner which followed. Miss Reba Gardner was maid of honor; Mrs. Alvin Meyer of Shreveport, a sister of the bridegroom, matron of honor, and Misses Margaret Crenshaw and Margaret Heimbeucher, bridesmaids. They wore gowns fashioned of light shades of velvet, trimmed with silver cloth, with short, silver-lined side trains of velvet. Alvin Meyer Jr. was ring bearer and Mary Jeanne Coon flower girl. The bride's gown was of ivory velvet embellished in pearls. A court train of velvet lined with silver fell from her shoulders, and the tulle bridal veil was caught to her hair with a coronet of rose point lace. Mrs. Weil made her home with the brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice B. Joel, and Mr. Joel gave her away. H. Weil was the brother's best man, and the groomsmen were Harold Dunaway, Wilbur

MANY WEDDINGS AND BETROTHALS

Booth and David Crowley. The couple are in the East on their honeymoon and will make their home in Shreveport. Mrs. Weil is a graduate of Lenox Hall and Mr. Weil of the University of Louisiana.

An interesting engagement announced in the week was that of Miss Aileen Elizabeth Dunn to Dr. Otto J. Wilhelmi. The news was made known at a bridge luncheon given at the home of the prospective bride, and the following were present: Misses Harriet Burns, Matilda Moulton, Juanita Muetze, Grace Dehlendorf, La Rue Dieselhorst, Marie Selden, Florence Hemsley and Ruth Koeneman. Miss Dunn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Dunn of 6202 Westminster place. She received her earlier education at Mary Institute and later graduated from Hosmer Hall. Her intended formal debut last winter was interrupted by a lengthy stay at Palm Beach.

Dr. Wilhelmi is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto J. Wilhelmi of the South Side. He received his education at St. Louis and Washington Universities. During the war he had command of a field hospital of the Ninth Division. He is a member of the University and Sunset Hill Country Clubs and also of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity.

Among the fall weddings was that of Miss Hulda Stuckenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stuckenberg of 3706 Utah plac, to Frederick O. Schmoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schmoll of 3626 Utah place, which took place Sept. 15 at St. Marcus' Evangelical Lutheran Church. The Rev. Erich E. Leibner officiated. Miss Ethel Schmoll, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, Mrs. R. W. Stuckenberg matron of honor, and Ruth Schaumberg bridesmaid. Dewey J. Schmoll, brother of the groom, was best man. Rudolph Stuckenberg, brother of the bride, and Adrian Schmoll, cousin of the groom, were groomsmen, and Carlos Betz and Clarence Tiemeyer were ushers. After the ceremony, a dinner was served to the bridal party at Bevo Mill. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. John F. Stuckenberg, parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. John Schmoll, parents of the groom, Pastor Erich E. Leibner and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Betz. The bridal couple have departed for New York City to visit friends and will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anner of Phillipsburg, N. J., who will give a reception in their honor. The couple will return to St. Louis Oct. 1, and will be at home at 3633 Merameo street.

Miss Kathleen Lucy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Lucy of 4048 Lafayette avenue, has selected Oct. 6 as the date for her marriage to Fred R. Hammond, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hammond of 3642 Cleveland avenue. The ceremony will take place at 5:30 o'clock at the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Dr. Williamson officiating. The couple will dispense with attendants. The bride will wear a traveling dress and they will depart immediately after the ceremony for a wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Sward of 1402 Arlington avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ethelyne Sward, to Earl K. Flickinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Flickinger of 4926 Maffitt place. The engagement was made known to a group of friends of Miss Sward at an afternoon bridge given at her home last Sunday.

Mrs. J. E. McLain of Des Moines, Ia., announces the marriage of her niece, Miss Mary Leona Welsh, to Walter J. Stradal, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Stradal of St. Louis on Friday. Both Mr. and Mrs. Stradal attended the University of Missouri.

The marriage of Miss Charlotte Bokel and Andrew Mungenast will take place at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Lafayette and Longfellow boulevard. Mrs. Jack Zeitman, sister of the groom, will be matron of honor. Miss Cornelia Vanderbeck will be maid of honor, and Mrs. Edgar P. Shutz and Miss

THIS IS A COAT YEAR AND THIS IS THE COAT STORE

THAT COATS ARE IN HIGH FAVOR this year is a well-known fact. That more exclusive Coat fashions emanate from this store is quite generally agreed among women who are in a position to know. Right now, our leadership is decidedly pronounced, for we are showing everything new, fashionable and exclusive, in varieties to please each individual fancy as well as each individual purse.

THERE ARE COATS THAT COULD BE TERMED daring; others dignified, others practical, still others sporty and so on until the entire gamut of styles has been seen. "Everything" is the word that best describes the collection, and "best" is the term that does justice to everything from which these Coats are made. Soft, fine, high-nap fabrics; silky, luxurious fur trimmings; lining of the best silk. Add to this, perfect workmanship, and these are reasons a-plenty for selecting your new Coat here.

Vivian Dewes, attendants. The flower girls are to be Dorothy Smallenberger and Frances Rothermich. Henry Bokel, eldest brother of the bride, will serve as best man, while John and Carl Bokel will be groomsmen. After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast will be served for the bridal party at the home of the bride, 3959 Wyoming street.

Fred L. Steiner announces that the marriage of his daughter, Miss Lucile Clara, to George L. Cummins Jr., will take place Wednesday. The couple will be at home after Oct. 15 at 5445 Arlington avenue.

Announcement is made of the marriage Sept. 4 of Miss Estelle Frances Niemann, daughter of E. H. Niemann of 3816 Shaw avenue to D. Olan Meeker. Owing to the illness of the bride's mother the wedding was quiet, the bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Schmitt of East St. Louis. Walter Thumser served as best man. Because of the subsequent death of Mrs. Meeker's mother, announcement of the wedding has been deferred. The bride was educated at Washington University. She was soloist for the Gayner Choral Club last season, and has appeared at many musical functions. Mr. Meeker, who is the son of Mrs. M. L. Meeker of 2923 Geyer avenue and the late Congressman Jacob E. Meeker, was graduated from Washington University in June. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega and Alpha Chi Sigma.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schmitt of 3727 South Grand boulevard announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elsie, to Harold W. Neusitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Neusitz of 3845 Connecticut street. The ceremony was solemnized at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Rev. W. F. Wilk of the Messiah Lutheran Church. Only the immediate family was present. The bride was attended by her cousin, Mrs. Francis X. Muckerman, and Mrs. R. W. Stuckenberg. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Ralph Neusitz, and George Kirn Jr.

Following the ceremony there was a dinner at Bevo Mill. The young couple departed on a short honeymoon tour. Upon their return they will reside with the bride's parents.

The feet are one of the important nerve centers of the body. Prominent nerve specialists often start their treatment on the feet of their patients. This shows how important it is to wear comfortable, good-fitting shoes.
You take from 4000 to 8000 steps a day. Think what that means to your feet! If the shoe is not designed and constructed to harmonize perfectly with your foot, four thousand times a day the nerves must suffer. It's no wonder a bad pair of shoes can tire you out.

Attorneys-General to Meet Oct. 15.
By the Associated Press.
LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 22.—Attorney-General O. S. Spillman of Nebraska today officially set Oct. 15 to 17 as the dates and Chicago as the place for the national convention of attorneys-general at which gasoline production and consumption will be discussed.

PLANS FOR BALLET AT COLISEUM BALL OCT. 2 ANNOUNCED

Entertainers From Metropolitan and Chicago Grand Opera Companies Coming for Veiled Prophet Night.

DANCING TO TAKE PLACE ON STAGE

Director Will Be Adolph Bolm, With Anna Lubmila as His Premier Danseuse.

The entertainment presented to the guests at the annual Veiled Prophet ball at the Coliseum this year will be provided by members of the ballet of the Metropolitan Opera, New York, and the Chicago Grand Opera, and will be under the direction of Adolph Bolm, formerly of the Imperial Russian Ballet of Petrograd, now director of the Chicago Opera. Bolm will have Anna Lubmila as his premiere danseuse and four other solo dancers with an ensemble of 24. A Russian carnival will be one of the special numbers and another dance will resemble to some extent the popular show, "Chauve Souris."

A new feature of this entertainment will be that the dancing will take place on the stage, instead of on the arena floor, as heretofore. This will enable the dancers to present a more artistic entertainment and at the same time will be in keeping with the usual method, since it places them in their accustomed positions with reference to the orchestra. The orchestra this year is to have a position in front of the stage, similar to that of the orchestra pit in a theater. The musicians' stands, however, will not be depressed below the level of the dance floor.

Bolm, himself, will dance several numbers, giving a program of his most popular performances, and Miss Lubmila also will give solo numbers. Special costumes are being designed for this performance, which will be in keeping with the oriental idea of the Veiled Prophet celebration.

The reigning queen of the Veiled Prophet, Miss Alice Busch, will be the first queen to hold the new scepter, which is to be a symbol of authority henceforth of the Veiled Prophet queens. When she steps from the throne to give place to her successor, she will hand this scepter to the new queen, and the 1923 queen will hand it next year to the queen of 1924, and so on down the line. The scepter will remain in the possession of the reigning queen during the year. The birth stones, which form a ring around the head of the scepter, therefore will be equally appropriate to each succeeding queen, for no matter what her birth month is, she will find the stone of that month in her scepter.

Arrangements are going forward rapidly for the ball, which will take place Tuesday evening, Oct. 2. Bolm and his ballet troupe will arrive in St. Louis on the morning of October 2 and will hold a rehearsal with the orchestra in the Coliseum that day.

PRACTITIONER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HELD IN BOY'S DEATH

Mrs. Stella Martin Accused of Criminal Carelessness by Coroner's Jury—Bond $5000.

Mrs. Stella Martin of 5443 Page avenue, a Christian Science practitioner, was ordered held under $5000 bond for alleged criminal carelessness by a Coroner's jury yesterday in the case of Albert L. Blackford, 9 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blackford of 2720 Belt avenue. Mrs. Martin had been called to give the lad Christian Science treatment. An autopsy by a Coroner's physician showed that he died of diphtheria.

The elder Blackford, who is a maintenance man at The Principia, a Christian Science school, testified that his son came home ill a week ago, complaining of a headache, and that Mrs. Martin was called in to treat him last Tuesday.

Mrs. Martin, who said she had been a practitioner five years, testified Albert had a little soreness of the throat when she first saw him. She said she visited him four or five times, for which her charge was $2 a visit, administering Christian Science treatment. She said that practitioners recommend calling in a physician if a contagious disease is suspected.

This new liquid polish won't peel off
As good for a lasting brilliance as Cutex is for soft smooth cuticle
The most famous manicure house in the world has perfected the ideal liquid polish.
One that won't crack or peel off.
That was especially formulated to spread smoothly and quickly and leave no ugly ridges or brush marks.
This new and better liquid polish dries so quickly and goes on so smoothly, you will be surprised and delighted. The dainty little brush which comes with each bottle holds just enough to give a shining even polish for one nail. Then that nail is dry and firm almost before you turn to the second.
Best of all, the new polish gives the rose tinted brilliance everyone wants nowadays.
This perfect new liquid polish is made by Cutex. Try it at the end of your very next Cutex manicure. You will be delighted at the way it keeps its brilliance and makes your manicure last a whole week.
No separate polish remover needed! Here is just another convenience that Cutex planned in making this new liquid polish. When you are ready for a fresh manicure, just put on a drop of the polish itself and wipe it off before it dries. This makes the nail smooth and clean, ready for its new application of its week-long lustre.
Cutex Liquid Polish may be had separately for 35c. Or in the $1.00 and $3.00 sets. Sets with other polishes are 60c and $1.50.
Introductory Set including the new polish—now only 12c
Fill out this coupon and mail it with 12c in coin or stamps for the Introductory Set containing trial sizes of Cutex Cuticle Remover, Liquid Polish, Powder Polish, Cuticle Cream (Comfort), emery board and orange stick. Address Northam Warren, 114 West 17th Street, New York.

RATES OF 5 PUBLIC UTILITIES SLASHED WITHOUT RED TAPE

State Public Service Commission Gives Demonstration of Effective Action—Virtually No Cost to Public

NO LONG DRAWN HEARINGS HELD

Present Tendency Is in Marked Contrast to That of Recent Years—Further Reductions Probable.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 22. — The Missouri Public Service Commission, under the leadership of Chairman Merrell E. Otis, within recent weeks has given a striking demonstration of how red tape can be slashed. Without a single public hearing, and at practically no cost to the state or public, the commission has obtained reductions in the rates of five public utilities which are expected to save a total of $1,160,000 a year to the patrons of those concerns. Engineers believe this indicates permanent movement of the commission from a rate increasing plane to one of rate decreasing.

This may seem almost too good to be true to Missourians who have in their mouths the bad taste left by the 360 rate increases granted out of 483 cases heard by the commission during the nine and one-half years ending July 1, 1922. Hearings of varying length were held in nearly all of the 483 cases.

Expensive Era for Public.

Of the 360 increases, 331 were granted in the five years, 1917 to 1921. The era of increases was an expensive one for the public, in more than one way. Advances had to come in a measure at least, because of the rocketing cost period incident to the war.

The commission knew full well that the public always objects to rate increases, however, so it compelled the companies to fight every step of the way. Long hearings were held, and even when the commission ordered increases, if the amount was considerable, some one of the litigants usually took the case to the courts. If the increase did not suit the utility it went to the courts, at least one of the Missouri cases of that period having gone to the United States Supreme Court. This involved heavy legal expenses also which the public paid. For it had not only to support the commission and its counsel and pay city say nothing of court costs, but also had to bear litigation expense incurred by utilities which are allowed as operating costs, figured into the rate base and this passed on to the consumer.

Factors in Decreases.

Several factors must be considered in accounting for the transition from an era of rate increases to one of rate decreases, which apparently has taken place.

To begin with, only one commissioner, Edwin J. Bean of De Soto, who was on the commission in 1920, is still there. And in justice to him be is said that he resisted proposed rate increases vigorously in a number of instances in which he believed they were not justified. Death and expiration of their terms has changed the other four memberships of the commission, which now are held by Otis, who is from St. Joseph, Richard H. Musser of Plattsburg, Thomas J. Brown of Charleston and Andrew J. O'Reilley of St. Louis.

But probably the more important factor is the improving financial condition of utilities throughout the State, due partly to increased business but more largely to decreased operating costs. This condition began to be apparent to the commission weeks ago and it set about to realize on the change for the benefit of the public.

Former Practice.

The conventional thing to have done, as was customary under other regimes in the commission, would have been to order the utilities which had been marked for decreases, to appear and show why their rates should not be reduced. Long expensive hearings would have followed in most instances and some of their cases would have been carried as far as the courts would permit. And why not? For the public must pay in the end. And thus the reductions might have been postponed for years.

PILES Cured Without the KNIFE

No Cutting, No Chloroform, No Hospital, No Danger, No Loss of Time. TELL YOUR FRIENDS. You and they need the right kind of treatment. Treatment that CURES.

I REPUBLISH MRS. GRILLION'S LETTER BY REQUEST

I hope every woman who is afflicted will read it. And then do as she did—come and be cured. Several have taken Mrs. Grillion's advice and are well on the way to a cure. Any man or woman can be cured—just as positively as she was.

Remember that a case of Piles, with other complications, requires more time than a simple case of Piles. I have had Gleets come to me, who had suffered for many years. Take one, two or three treatments, then say: Doctor, I'm not well. And perhaps they will never come back. Does the person who does this way deserve much consideration? I know they won't get well by my, or any other treatment, when they do that way. All I ask, when you put your case in my hands, is to use common sense. The many people I have cured did, so can you.

MRS. GRILLION, A MOTHER OF SIX CHILDREN, WAS CURED AND WRITES THE FOLLOWING LETTER. HER HUSBAND JOINS IN EXPRESSING GRATITUDE FOR HER CURE.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 21, 1923.

Dear Dr. Coe, 501 Pine St.:

I want to tell you, if possible, about the wonderful gratitude I feel towards you for the treatment you have given me and the cure you effected in my case.

I was sick with Piles and Fistula for over five years; during that time I suffered more than it is possible to tell in words. I have four little children, the youngest being just ten months old. All of the five years I doctored with many physicians, some would give me medicine, some would tell me that I must have an operation; that there was no cure for me, without an operation, etc.

I went to you at your offices on the 8th day of July, as sick as any person could be and live. I was suffering terribly. You gave me my first treatment that morning and after about one hour I felt greatly relieved. My suffering grew less from day to day, until it was all gone. Dr. Coe, it is hard for any one to believe that such a change was possible, but I am now feeling as well as I ever did in my life, am doing all my work, taking care of the children, and every moment of my life now is a pleasure.

My good husband joins me in gratitude and love towards you for my cure.

MRS. GUS GRILLION,
1414 Warren St.

Dr. Coe, I spent about or over $500.00 trying to get cured before I came to you. Your charges are very reasonable and your terms to me were most kind.

Why go on suffering when a positive, guaranteed cure is within your reach? Remember, I give consultation and make examinations at my office FREE of charge and give consultation by mail. Call or write today—it will pay you.

TENTATIVE PLANS FOR LLOYD GEORGE'S VISIT

Former British Premier to Speak at Luncheon; Place to Be Determined Later.

Details of the reception and entertainment of David Lloyd George, former Prime Minister of Great Britain, on his visit in St. Louis Friday, Oct. 19, will be planned at a conference between Mayor Kiel and officers of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce in the Mayor's office tomorrow morning.

Tentative plans for the visit were outlined to Sir Alfred Cope, personal representative of Lloyd George, who was in St. Louis Friday, and received his approval. The general plan, as outlined by P. V. Bunn, general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, includes the reception of a committee of St. Louisans by Lloyd George in his private car, which will be parked at Union and Lindell boulevards, after which a parade will move to Washington University, St. Louis University and other places which will be decided on later, and thence to Hotel Statler.

Lloyd George will address a luncheon, the place to be determined later. In the afternoon he will be taken for a drive through parts of St. Louis County and will return to the hotel, where he will remain until about 8:30 p. m. He will depart at 9 p. m.

Sir Alfred said Lloyd George would be accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd George and by their 16-year-old daughter, Megan.

"Lloyd George is very anxious to visit St. Louis because of the enthusiasm for the city which European notables who have visited here in the past always had when they returned," Sir Alfred said. "We in England hear very frequently about your wonderful Shaw's Garden, the great Mississippi River and other attractions of St. Louis, and no Englishman who comes to the Middle West thinks his visit is complete unless he has been in St. Louis."

But Otis and his colleague saw a better way. Quietly the matter was taken up with officials of these companies. It was pointed out to them that they could obtain the moral benefit with the public, of having made voluntary, or at least, quasi-voluntary, rate reductions, which would be reasonable, but which would mean substantial savings to their patrons.

The commission was armed with facts for its negotiations for it received periodical reports on financial condition of all the utilities supervised by it. The utilities approached in this matter without exception have agreed to the plan, the extent of the decreases in each instance having been worked out by the company with suggestions from experts of the commission. Further cuts are expected from time to time.

Commission's Policy.

It must be understood, however, that the commission expects to order decreases only when conditions warrant such action, and where it will still leave the utility in a position to earn a reasonable return on its investment, Chairman Otis said. And when those conditions make it necessary, rate increases will be ordered. In fact, one small increase in a town of about 500 inhabitants was granted last week. In the main, however, the commission expects the next few years, if the present trend continues, to witness a gradual decline all along the line.

The first utility to agree to a decrease was the Union Electric Light and Power Co. of St. Louis, which filed new rates expected to save about $700,000 a year to its smaller patrons. The others who followed that example are: Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., saving of $50,000; Kansas City Power and Light Co., saving of $250,000 a year in Kansas City and about $50,000 in 20 other Western Missouri towns; Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis, $40,000; Missouri Gas and Power Co., saving of about $10,000 to 20 towns in Western Missouri.

HAVANA, Sept. 22.—The American auxiliary schooned Mohawk which has been detained by Havana port police for a week, dashed out of the harbor today, outdistancing a police launch and disappearing at sea.

Capt. S. O. Forbes, master of the vessel, got into trouble when he is alleged to have gone ashore last week in a small boat while the Mohawk was anchored off Morro Lighthouse outside the port. He had spent 72 hours incommunicado in jail and then been put under $200 bond on charges of violating port regulations.

YOUNG GLOBE TROTTER PAYS VISIT TO CITY

Polle A. Bur, 22, of Czecho-Slovakia, Gives His Impressions of America.

The democratic behavior of the people, their freedom of movement and the lack of police surveillance are the three things in America which have most impressed Polle A. Bur, a Czecho-Slovakian, who was in St. Louis yesterday.

Bur is making a trip around the world, mostly afoot, in preparation for writing a book on sociology. Also he hopes to enter the diplomatic service of his country and therefore desires to study various foreign countries at first hand. He landed at San Francisco last April, carrying a collection of letters from prominent people in the places he has visited, many of the letters bearing official seals.

Bur, who is not yet 22 years old, started from Prague in May, 1921, and tells of many interesting experiences which he has had. After traveling through Hungary, Rumania, Jugoslavia and Bulgaria with some other Czecho-Slovakian university students, he reached Constantinople and since then has proceeded by himself.

Experience With Turks.

Wishing to meet Kemal Pasha, he was arrested some miles from the main camp of the Turks, who accused him of being a spy and threatened to shoot him. After a stormy interview with a Turkish officer, another officer told Bur that it was Kemal Pasha himself, and that Bur was lucky to be alive. He was allowed to leave camp, after receiving a ration of horse flesh.

The young globe trotter next visited Smyrna, Saloniki and Athens, then went to Syria, Egypt, Arabia, Baluchistan and India. In the latter country he was watched constantly by police spies, he says. While making his way through the jungles, he slept in trees because of the danger from wild animals and serpents.

Other Places Visited.

After India, Bur went to Bengal, Burma, Ceylon, Australia, the Tasmanian Islands, Borneo, Singapore, Siam, the Philippines, China, Mongolia and Japan.

In Japan, he said, he was under police surveillance constantly and an even stricter watch was kept on his movements in Korea. All foreigners are objects of suspicion there, according to this traveler.

Bur's military service began at the age of 16, when he enlisted in the Czecho-Slovakian Legion and for two years served in Siberia against Hungarian and bolshevik forces. He was wounded and decorated. While in Siberia he became acquainted with Americans in the vicinity of Vladivostok, and has renewed his acquaintance with some of them in recent months. One was David P. Barrows, now president of the University of California, who has written a cordial little letter in the book which Bur carries.

DORRIS STOCKHOLDERS TO DISCUSS FINANCES

Meeting Called Because of Failure to Complete Proposed Consolidation.

Stockholders of the Dorris Motor Car Co. will meet Oct. 5 at the company's office, 4100 Laclede avenue, to discuss the company's condition and affairs, its business prospects and financial needs. The meeting has been called as a result of the failure to complete the proposed merger of the company's assets with those of the Winton company of Cleveland and the Haynes Automobile Co. of Kokomo, Ind., into a single company, which was to have been known as the Consolidated Motors Corporation. The combined assets were estimated at $19,000,000.

The Eastern banking interests behind the proposed consolidation are still acting on the theory that the merger will become effective, the stockholders of the three companies involved having ratified the proposal, but because of present conditions in the stock market it had been deemed advisable not to float securities of the merged companies at this time. The merger proposition has been pending since May, and it was in June that the stockholders of the Dorris company, following favorable action by the stockholders of the two other concerns, ratified the proposal.

It is possible, officers of the Dorris company say, that at the October meeting the stockholders may adopt a plan for refinancing the company.

125 Maine Visitors Here Today.

Approximately 125 residents of Portland, Me., will be in St. Louis today and be entertained by city officials and a committee from the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. The party is en route to Portland, Ore. A breakfast will be served at Hotel Jefferson and luncheon will be given there at 11:45 a. m., Mayor Kiel delivering an address of welcome and Melville L. Wilkinson delivering a welcoming address on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce. P. V. Bunn, general secretary of the Chamber, and Mrs. John S. Payne also will address the luncheon. At 1:30 p. m. the delegates will be taken for an automobile tour of the city. The delegates will depart at 4:30 p. m.

I Spent $100,000

To find these ways to youth and beauty

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My mother was rich and ambitious. She went with me to search the world for the greatest beauty helps in existence. They cost us a fortune and many years of time. But they made me a famous beauty. I became the rage. And now, at the age of 62, they keep me a beauty still.

I have seen those same helps bring to many plain girls multiplied attractions. To some they brought careers of beauty. I have seen them bring to countless women decades of added youth. So now I have placed these matchless helps at every woman's call. And I am doing my best to urge women to employ them.

You need but four

I found 32 great beauty helps. But French experts combined them in four preparations. So these results came very easy to me.

One is a super-clay. Not like the crude and muddy clays you read about today. This clay is white, refined and dainty. It has been perfected by 20 years of scientific study. I call it my White Youth Clay. Before I found it, I never knew one-tenth what clay could do.

Clay is a beauty essential. It purges the skin of all that clogs or mars it. It creates a rosy glow. It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. It has brought to millions new complexions. But my White Youth Clay vastly excels the old types. The cost is 50 cents and $1.

My Youth Cream

My Youth Cream combines both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best French experts know to foster the fine texture of the skin.

I use it after the clay. Also as a night cream, also daytime as a powder base. I am never without it, to whiten, soften, feed and smooth the skin. I have never known another cold cream to bring comparable results. My Youth Cream costs 60 cents.

My Facial Youth is a liquid cleanser which does what nothing else can do. The greatest beauty experts now employ this formula, but they charge for it a price which few can pay.

Facial Youth contains no animal, no vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. It simply cleans to the depths, then departs. All the refuse, grime and dirt go with it. No other method cleans the skin like Facial Youth. The cost is $1.

My wonderful hair

Millions of women envy my hair. It is thick, silky and luxuriant. I have never had dandruff or falling hair, never a touch of gray.

The reason lies in my Hair Youth. I apply it daily with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. It removes the hardened oil and dandruff which stifle the hair roots. It stimulates and fortifies. You will be amazed to see how hair thrives when the scalp is kept in vigor.

My Hair Youth costs 50 cents and $1 with eye dropper. The results are quickly. I hope you will learn what it means to your hair.

To those four products I owe my beauty and my youth. Now all druggists and toilet counters supply them to all who want like results. For the sake of all you prize most, go learn what they can do. ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA AND THE MOVIES.

PART FIVE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 23, 1923. PAGES 1—12.

Jane Cowl as Juliet, Trixie Friganza and "Nice People" Billed

"Sally" Indicated as an Early Arrival at American—Abe-Mawruss Play on Jefferson's Future List.

JANE COWL, whose tears have fallen on many stages, and whose beauty has brought success to plays of varying merit, will be seen at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater this week, beginning tomorrow night, as Juliet in the Selwyn production of "Romeo and Juliet." Her present tour, in the Shakspearean production, is to be followed, it is announced, by a classical repertoire enterprise in New York.

Miss Cowl was last seen by a St. Louis audience in "Smilin' Through," in which she appeared here in two successive seasons. Her previous notable roles were those of Mary Turner in "Within the Law, and Jeannine in "Lilac Time." In these and other roles, she found the qualities of romance and charm which she has sought to combine in her presentation of Shakspeare's lovely anl loving maiden of tender years.

Of the famous Juliets of the last half century, those whom St. Louis has seen most recently are Julia Marlow and, at the Century Theater a quarter of a century ago, Margaret Mather. The present production, with Miss Cowl as star and the cast which will be seen here, ended an eminently successful run at the Henry Miller Theater, New York, June 9 last.

Coming Attractions.

"Partners Again," a Montague Glass Abe-and-Mawruss comedy, with the dependable Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr heading the cast, will be seen at the Jefferson next week, beginning Sunday night, Sept. 30. For the week of Oct. 7, the Jefferson's attraction will be Chauncey Olcott (yes, himself) in "The Heart of Paddy Whack."

The American Theater has not announced the name or date of its premier attraction, but it is known that "Sally" is coming this way, after a brief revival at the New Amsterdam Theater, New York, which began Monday night. "Sally" originally ran for almost a year and a half at the New Amsterdam. Marilynn Miller, Leon Errol and Walter Catlett are still in the cast.

"Nice People" is the Woodward Players' offering for this week, opening at the Empress Theater this afternoon. Rachel Crothers is the author, and the play which contains the lines and situations of a satirical comedy, has also its serious side. Theodora is the spoiled daughter of a wealthy man, who knows of his affair with a divorcee, and who insists on her own right to what she considers a good time. Her all-night absence from her home is followed by a storm scene with her father. He knows that a youth of her own set was with her when she disappeared from a party, but he does not know of the other youth who, driven by a storm to the house where she was, guarded her room and watched the drunken slumber of the youth who had been her companion. This second youth figures in the latter and nicer part of "Nice People." Hazel Whitmore and Alexis Luce have the chief roles.

Her Bag o' Tricks.

Trixie Friganza, one of the most popular headliners in vaudeville, will have a premiere part in the entertaining at the Orpheum Theater this week. She was in the movies last summer, and may have some allusions to this experience in the "bag o' tricks" which composes her act, and which includes songs, costumes and quips.

Three Fords, Dora, Edwin and Lottie of that name, will give a dance program. The Metropolitan Orchestra, Moody and Duncan in "Opera and Jazz, Inc.," Hegedus sisters, violinistes, and "Thank You, Doctor," will be other items.

The Northern Collegians will head the bill opening today at the Grand Opera House. At the Rialto, Dolly Connely, offering some new songs will head the bill, Deagon and Mack being another featured act. At the Columbia, the International Entertainers will do Hawaiian stuff.

"Let's Go" is the week's attraction at the Gayety, with Pat White and his trick dog and Manny King as leading comedians, and with Sonny Thompson's group of negro entertainers.

Jane Cowl, in "Romeo and Juliet"—Shubert-Jefferson.

Pat O'Malley and Renee Adoree, in "The Eternal Struggle"—Delmonte.

Trixie Friganza, vaudeville —Orpheum.

Corinne Griffith, in "Six Days"—Kings.

Leatrice Joy and Owen Moore, in "The Silent Partner—Missouri."

Agnes Ayres, in "The Marriage Maker"—Grand Central and West End Lyric.

Baby Peggy in "Nobody's Darling"—Rivoli.

Hazel Whitmore of the Woodward Players, in "Nice People"—Empress.

Ernest Torrence and Tully Marshall, in "The Covered Wagon"—American.

"The Marriage Maker," "The Silent Partner," "The Eternal Struggle"

"The Covered Wagon" at the American and Harold Lloyd in "Why Worry?" at the Capitol Hold Over Another Week.

WILLIAM de Mille's Paramount production, "The Marriage Maker" has its world premiere at the Grand Central and West End Lyric theaters this week. It was announced that the initial showing in St. Louis will be a test to determine the public's attitude toward the picture, which is based on Edward Knobloch's play, "The Faun." In the cast are Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Charles de Roche, Mary Astor and Robert Agnew. The advance notice gives no inkling as to the plot, but says thrills are supplied by a storm and a fire. On the bill also are a Buster Keaton comedy, "The Balloonatic." Stage attractions are Rodeglio Baldrich, South American tenor and Carsello, an accordeon player. Harold Lloyd's "Why Worry?" goes into its second week at the Capitol. The feature for the latter half of the week at the West End Lyric will be "Temporary Marriage," with Kenneth Harlan and Mildred Davis in the leading roles.

"The Silent Pardner" featuring Leatrice Joy and Owen Moore is featured at the Missouri Theater. This is a story of a stock broker's clerk and his adventures with the bulls and bears and a frugal wife who was his silent pardner.

Robert Edeson is a broker that employs Owen Moore as a clerk and later accomplishes his downfall in the street. Leatrice Joy is the wife who seeks to dissuade her husband from speculating in stocks. She takes measures to provide for a rainy day.

Other attractions on the bill include, Joseph Littau and his orchestra, Raymond Kock, baritone, Polly Lou Dee with Harry Stover at the piano. A comedy "The Gown Shop" features Larry Semon.

Jesse L. Lasky's presentation of James Cruze's "The Covered Wagon" at the American Theater goes into its second week. There will be 14 more performances of this American epic in St. Louis. It is announced that this engagement at the American Theater will positively be the last in this city during the season of 1923-1924.

Corinne Griffith in "Six Days," a new story by Elinor Glyn is the feature at the Kings. The film recites the adventures in love of Lalise Kingston whose mother, left penniless, plans to marry her daughter to a wealthy old aristocrat. The daughter agrees, much against her will, and shortly after, on a trip to Paris meets Dion Leslie. It is a case of love at first sight with both. While on a visit through the neighboring country with a priest as guide they are imprisoned by a sudden cave-in. Escape seems impossible. Realizing their love for each other they prevail upon the priest to marry them. Thus the couple live as man and wife for six days, separated from the world and all other humans, the priest having died from fatigue. In an attempt to escape they are separated and are rescued singly. The girl returns to her mother and Leslie is unheard of and is given up, but returns in time to claim his bride.

The principal attraction at the Delmonte Theater for the week is "The Eternal Struggle," a Reginald Barker production from O. B. Lancaster's novel, "The Law Bringers." Among the thrillers are a buffalo stampede, a life-and-death dog-team race across the snow, an ice jam and a dash in a canoe through swirling rapids. In the cast are Earle Williams, Barbara La Marr, Renee Adoree, Pat O'Malley, Josef Swickard and Wallace Beery.

The features on the Rivoli bill are Renee Adoree and Orville Caldwell in "The Six-Fifty" and Baby Peggy in her latest comedy "Nobody's Darling." The Six-Fifty is a melodramatic story of love and life on the rail. A realistic train wreck is said to be one of the exciting features.

Dodd's New Play Pretty Good, That's All.

By HEYWOOD BROUN.
Dramatic Editor of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.

BEFORE expressing an opinion as to whether an author has done well or ill, it is helpful to know what he was trying to do. That is our chief difficulty in reviewing "The Changelings," the new play by Lee Wilson Dodd, which opened the Henry Miller Theater.

Mr. Dodd has printed a motto on the program as a clew but unfortunately it is in French, which we do not understand. We believe it means that the more evidence of change one sees the more surely do things remain the same. Or something like that. From this, and from certain incidents in the play, we might draw the conclusion that Mr. Dodd wants to say that opinions do not make a liberal, or fine words a free spirit. In fact, the point to which the comedy appears to be devoted is that opinions are of very little consequence anyway, since they bear no relation whatsoever to human conduct in time of stress.

We don't happen to believe that, even after watching "The Changelings." In the beginning we were shown a group of people who stated their standards of conduct in life, particularly with reference to love and marriage, and then proceeded to act in complete contravention to their expresed convictions. We doubt whether that is so. If we know what a person thinks, or even what he thinks he thinks, we believe we can predict his actions in any given situation with some fair degree of accuracy. To speak specifically, we should say that 60 per cent would be a fair average. Last night the people did what we expected them to do only about 20 per cent of the time, and so from our point of view they were not quite real people. The unexpected is unusual in human conduct, according to our notion. Maybe that is why it is called the unexpected.

Manages to Amuse.

Perhaps Lee Wilson Dodd has no intention of proving or arguing anything in "The Changelings." He may have desired nothing more than to write an entertaining play by piecing various humorous lines and situations together. This isn't a terribly good system, but it has succeeded moderately well—if, of course, that was the intent. There is a good deal of bright dialogue and several interesting situations. Only a few bits are tiresome. The play puts its best foot forward and then lags behind. At the end of the first act we would not have been at all surprised to find ourself at one of the most brilliant comedies yet written by an American. After two more acts and an epilokue, it seemed a good deal less than that.

The chief factor in dampening our interest was the excessive wealth of action. People pop in and out as rapidly as in any farce. In the beginning they sat and talked, and the talk was good. Indeed, some of it was thrilling. After that no serious conversation got any distance at all without somebody coming along to interrupt it and develop a dramatic situation. Good talk is worth more than almost all the situations in the world, and anyhow, Dodd does talk better than he does situations.

The changelings of the play are two liberal-minded people of middle age and two conservative ones. A liberal man is married to a conservative wife, and vice versa. And descending from the group are a son and daughter, also married. At the beginning of the play, we find the four middle-aged characters chatting comfortably after dinner when suddenly they learn that the boy and girl have broken. The young woman has left her husband. Immediately factions develop. The liberals side with the girl, sight unseen, and the conservatives mass against her. Or at any rate they are bent upon arranging that she shall return to her husband. During the emotion thus engendered a marital realignment of the group is threatened. At any rate the two liberals begin to feel much drawn to each other, and likewise the two conservatives.

Jumps at Conclusion.

However, the process of change partners is so inconsiderable that some of Mr. Dodd's play seems rather tumultuous under the circumstances. For instance, the eloping daughter comes in and sees her mother embracing a friend, and immediately dashes out of the house, suspecting the worst. This seemed to us less than plausible. We felt that the young woman might have remained long enough to ask "Mother, why are you embracing Mr. Faber?"

Indeed the play could not go on very well without rather an excessive amount of thinking and talking at cross purposes. Here again we feel that Mr. Dodd has departed somewhat from life, for it is our experience that most of the troubles which afflict us come rather from a tendency to ask people too many questions than too few. On the other hand, we are inclined to blame Mr. Dodd for using repetition of speech and incident so often as a formula for humorous effect. Life, we understand, does repeat, but a dramatist's obligation to nature is only binding when fidelity is effective. When he can think up something better than life generally affords, he would be foolish not to jilt her.

Actor Gets a Chance.

We are, then, disappointed in Mr. Dodd's play. It is just pretty good. The chief purpose which it serves is to show that Geoffrey Kerr is one of the best young actors in America. It isn't the first time he has given indications of that, but a good many of his roles have burdened him with the responsibility of being merely likable and pleasant. This part affords him much greater opportunities. It is the least comic part in the piece, as well as the best one. Indeed it is somewhat self-consciously and strainedly comic for our taste. As we remember, it is Mr. Kerr's first mature role in this country. He acts with great force and drive as well as extreme simplicity. This is the best performance of the lot by all odds, although the company is extremely distinguished.

Ruth Chatterton seems to us a much improved actress. She seems to be getting her mannerisms under control, and last night she played excellently. Henry Miller's work suffers a good deal with faulty enunciation, and Reginald Mason is somewhat miscast. Blanche Bates and Laura Hope Crews (it is really an extraordinary cast) are highly competent in roles which require quite a little less than their best, and there is a capital bit of work by Walter Baldwin in a small part.

THIS WEEK'S CROP OF NEW YORK PLAYS

Monday—"A Lesson in Love" by Rudolf Besier and May Edgington, with William Faversham and Emily Stevens in the cast, Thirty-ninth Street Theater.

"Chicken Feed," by Guy Bolton featuring Robert W. Arnold, Little Theater.

Tuesday—"Bernard and Collier's Nifties of 1923," a revue with Hazel Dawn, Vanl and Schenck, Ray Dooley, Cortex a d Peggy, and Bernard and Collier, Fulton Theater.

Wednesday — "Casanova," a play from the Spanish of Lorenzo de Azertis adapted by Sidney Howard, with Lowell Sherman and Katherine Cornell, Empire Theater.

Elmo Lincoln has been added to the cast of Mae Murray's forthcoming Metro-Tiffany picture, "Fashion Row," now in the course of filming in Hollywood under the direction of Robert Z. Leonard. The supporting cast also includes Earle Fox, Freeman Wood and Mathilde Brundage.

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

Fifty carpenters have finished building at the Paramount Long Island studio the main street of Junction City, the mythical Mid-Western town which is the locale for "West of the Water Town," the novel of small-town life which is being produced as a picture with Glenn Hunter starring.

George Melford's next production for Paramount will be "Flaming Barriers," an original story by Byron Morgan. The cast will include Jacqueline Logan, Antonio Moreno, Theadore Roberts, Walter Hiers, Sigrid Holmquist and Robert McKim. Emmett Flynn, Goldwyn director, has gone to New York to film the old melodrama, "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," with Corinne Griffith in the role of Nellie. Others in the cast are Lew Cody, Edmund Lowe and Mae Busch.

Universal announces that Hobart Henley's next production will be "The Turmoil," adapted from a Booth Tarkington novel. George Hackathorne, Eileen Percy and Emmett Corrigan have been selected for parts in the production. Jack Hoxie will begin work next week in "Wyoming," under the direction of Robert North Bradbury. Robert Hill will direct Herbert Rawlinson in "All for the Love of Gloria," his next production for Universal.

Norma and Constance Talmadge will have for their next vehicles screen adaptations of recent New York stage successes. Upon completion of "Dust of Desire," her first Oriental drama, Norma will begin work upon "Secrets," the adaptation of which has just been prepared by Willard Mack. Frances Marion, who is co-directing "Dust of Desire" with Chester Franklin, will write the continuity. Constance Talmadge will start filming "The Mirage," Edgar Selwyn's stage success, which has been adapted for screen use by C. Gardner Sullivan.

Buster Keaton's second feature-length production, "Hospitality," is nearly completion and he will begin within a few weeks upon the third of the series, which is now being written by the Keaton scenario staff.

Back in the old days, when they played the English music halls, Syd Chaplin was the older, more successful brother, who was trying to help Charlie, "the kid," get a start. In fact, it was the insistence of the vaudeville managers that Syd stay in London which gave Charlie to this country—and thus to the film world. Later, Syd came over here too, acted in a few pictures and directed some more—but most of his time was devoted to managing brother Charlie's affairs. Thus, too, Syd became interested in other business ventures, so that his screen appearances were spasmodic. Now, Syd Chaplin real-

"EAST OF SUEZ"

Making the Dream Come True

There is an especial longing for "East of Suez" nowadays. The temple bells of Mandalay call with irresistible persistence. Pagodas, heathen idols, Christian kisses, sunshine, palm trees, flying fishes, elephants a piling teak—all call with Kipling magic—over the Seven Seas—"East of Suez." Especially, next winter, will the freezing drizzle "wake the fever in your bones"—for, "if you've 'eard the East a calling you won't never 'eed naught else."

PRICES OUT OF REACH OF MOST IN BERLIN

Suffering Described as Increasing as Shops Go Upon Gold Basis.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—In a general price panic, the shops here have gone on a gold basis, setting prices above the reach of the great mass of residents. As a result, two starving mobs, the middle class and working class face each other and civil war.

Germans who have not seen gold for nearly ten years have forgotten its value and often fix prices that are absurd. Almost universally prices are above the American level, but the employers cannot pay wages in accordance. A workman who before the war could buy a suit of clothes with the wages of 70 hours, must now labor 580 hours for the same suit. A pair of shoes cost 10 hours of work then as against 125 now. A better paid actor last week earned the equivalent of three pounds of butter.

Suffering Increasing.

More than 100,000 workers in Berlin are without employment. With their families they constitute about one-eighth of the population. Factories continue to discharge employes. The big Siemens electrical works belonging to the Stinnes group of industries will close down completely.

The suffering in Berlin is becoming frightful. The correspondent visited a family of six persons and a week-old baby living in two rooms which were almost without furniture. The men had been unemployed for more than a year, and all were living solely on a daily pot of soup from a nearby kitchen municipally run. The city is limiting the funds for this institution, hence the quality of the food is deteriorating. Thousands of such cases exist among the workers.

For middle-class people, the situation is even worse. The noted author, Maxmilian Bern, died recently of starvation, according to his physician's statement.

Incomes Under $1 a Week.

Incomes of less than $1 a week are usual. Hence, the shops which raised their prices to escape threatened ruin are now worse off than ever. They present a strange picture. Curious shoppers wonder through them asking prices and expressing consternation, but nobody buys. Prices are the sole topic of conversation. Exasperation is increasing among all classes, with openly expressed desire to resort to violence.

The people are sharply divided according to class, each blaming the other for their misery. They are organized and armed, and already the clashes between them and with the intervening police are so frequent that they arouse only passing interest. In the newspapers they are recorded in small type between long articles on prices.

SWIFTER JUSTICE FOR CHICAGO LAW VIOLATORS REPORTED

Record of 1227 Convictions for 11 Months Up to Aug. 1, 1923, Is Cited.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Chicago has finally shaken off the appellation of "Crime Capital" of the country and swift justice for the law violator is rapidly reviving, according to a report of the Criminal Court of Cook County displaying a record of 1227 convictions for the 11 months up to Aug. 1, 1923. The report was submitted to the Illinois Bar Association by Chief Justice M. L. McKinley.

A total of 2745 indictments were disposed of in the period covered by the report. Defendants sent to penal institutions by the court numbered 953, while 231 were fined for minor offenses and 324 first offenders were placed on probation.

Robbery, burglary, larceny and murder are the four leading crimes as represented by the number of convictions. Of the 48 convictions for murder nine of the defendants were sentenced to hang.

"Apart from the personal pride which I owe to in the work of my associates of the Criminal Court bench during my incumbency as Chief Justice," wrote Judge McKinley, "I am prompted by a motive more impellent in making this report to the Illinois Bar—the desire to dispel the deep impression prevailing in the profession that Chicago is the 'Crime Capital' of the country."

"With a jail, built to house 800 prisoners, slightly more than half-filled, court calendars cleared of all emergency cases, an army of 953 serving sentences and 10 condemned murderers awaiting execution," continued Judge McKinley, "the results of this determined drive against major crime is reflected in a remarkable reduction in every classification of criminal law violations. A still more significant effect has been the awakening sence of civic responsibility among citizens of Chicago and Cook County with regard to jury service, and the caliber of jurors has steadily risen."

Trade Congress Postponed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. — The Southern Trade Congress convention, which was to have been held here early in October, has been postponed until next May, it was announced today. The action was taken because of serious illness of Mayor Hylan, honorary chairman of the New York Convention Committee and requests from Southern business men.

18 Miles For Adler-i-ka!

"For years I could not eat, my stomach was so weak. We went 18 miles for Adler-i-ka. After a few doses I began to feel better and now do my own housework." (Signed) Mrs. L. A. Austin.

Adler-i-ka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing foul matter which poisoned stomach. Brings out all gases, relieving pressure on heart and other organs. EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach or sour stomach. Removes surprising amount of foul, decaying matter which you never thought was in your system. Tends to CURE constipation and prevent appendicitis. DESCRIBES MECCA AS REALLY MODERN TOWN

"Forbidden City" Not Held So Secret as Is Supposed, Says British Moslem Peer.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Mecca, the so-called Forbidden City of the Mohammedans has all the aspects of a modern American or British settlement, says Lord Headley, the British Moslem peer, who was the first Englishman permitted to enter undisguised the sacred precincts of the Arabic holy of holies.

Describing his stay in the kingdom of the Hedjaz as the guest of King Hussein, Lord Headley, who is now in London, says Mecca has telephones, telegraphs, automobiles, airplanes and wireless equipment just like any modern town of the Western world. It even has newspapers which print all the latest news from the United States.

Lord Headley asserted that much of the secrecy about Mecca was legendary, as the city was open to all who professed Mohammedan beliefs. He referred to the enterprise of an American lecturer who obtained excellent motion picture films depicting the entire life of the city.

When he was in Mecca, Lord Headley continued, there were 70,000 pilgrims en route to the city over the sandy road from Jeddah on the Red Sea. The way is marked by the bleached bones of the dead camels that had succumbed to the terrible heat. He praised the sanitary arrangements provided for the pilgrims by the Hedjaz Government and said there never was a pilgrimage freer from illness.

One of the great camps provided along the route for the comfort of pious travelers, he said, was in charge of an Irish woman who has looked after more than 30,000 weary and hungry pilgrims from many lands.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

izes that he must concentrate, so he has come back to his old love, comedy acting, and is determined to devote himself to it exclusively.

James Cruze's next Paramount picture will be based on the Broadway success, "To the Ladies," by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly.

Rex Beach's latest novel, "Big Brother," is to be produced for Paramount by Allan Dwan. It is a story of New York gangdom and the work of the Big Brother movement in protecting and rescuing boys from evil surroundings.

Because of her devotion to her art, Mary Alden, screen actress, suffers under the widespread false impression that she is an elderly woman. But Miss Alden is quite young. Makeup and her brilliant ability to play motherly roles are responsible for the false impression the public has of her.

"America" is the title selected for W. D. Griffith's Revolutionary film, which he is preparing to make at the suggestion of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Robert McKim has been added to the cast of "Maytime" now in production at the Schulberg Studios. He will play Monte Mitchell, the heavy in the modern episode. Cleo, the chorus girl, will be enacted by Bess True and not by Edna Tichenor, as originally announced.

It is reported that the Preferred Pictures Corporation is negotiating for the motion picture rights to "We've Got to Have Money," Edward Laska's comedy success.

Kenneth Harlan has been put through an intensive course of training by 25 real working cowboys, and will be seen in the actual work of punching cows in "The Virginian."

Pat O'Malley will play "Steve" in "The Virginian," Owen Wister's story, now being produced by B. P. Schulberg for Preferred Pictures.

What appears to be the most important assemblage of traditional dramatic personalities ever gathered for any one film production, is that which Samuel Goldwyn has assembled for the making of "Potash and Perlmutter." Not content with securing most of the favored members of the original stage production, which includes Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr the costars, Mr. Goldwyn signed Vera Gordon and Lee Kohlmar, two film celebrities. Carr, Bernard and Vera Gordon will play their original parts, supported by Martha Mansfield, recent star; Lupe Sutherland, De Sacia Mooers, Adolph Miller, Ben Lyons and Edward Durand.

Mlle. Andree Lafayette, noted French cinema beauty who has arrived in Hollywood to portray the title role of Du Maurier's "Trilby," a Richard Walton Tully production, directed by James Young for First National release, comes from a long line of famous beauties. She is a dazzling blonde—hair of finely-spun gold, and limpid blue eyes, characteristics which proclaim her pure Norman ancestry. The grandmother of this charming actress was the beautiful and noble Valtesse de la Bigne, whose portrait now hangs in the Luxemburg Museum. Valtesse de la Bigne, a reigning beauty in the 1840s when Du Maurier wrote "Trilby," was much admired by the novelist. So it is only fitting that her granddaughter should play the title role in the screen adaptation of his well-known literary work.

Herring Block Norway's Fjords.

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 1.—The fjords in the extreme north, in the region of Tana and Vadsoe, have been literally blocked into a semi-solid state by herring shoals. The shoals often penetrate to the narrow heads of the fjords where they wedge tight into the jetties of small villages and fishing stations. Several ships have been sent to the north to take advantage of the harvest, and others have arrived at the herring-oil factories, heavily laden.

Voice of Union Labor and the Radical Press

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of the labor unions and the Communist and Socialist Parties showing the tendency of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizen and indicating causes of social unrest.

ANOTHER ORDER OF STAND-PATTERS.
(From the Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

Not to be outdone by Hell and Maria Dawes and his Minute Men—or any of the other mushroom organizations too numerous to mention which are going to "save" the country—a new country-saving group called Sentinels of the Republic has sprung up in the classic city of Boston.

The Chairman is Louis A. Coolidge, whose name sounds suspiciously like that of a certain reactionary who hails from the same State. One of the prominent officials is Alice M. Robertson, former Congresswoman from Oklahoma, who spoke against the Maternity Bill and for reaction generally.

The purported main object of the organization, of course, is "to maintain the fundamental principles of the American Constitution." That's what they all say. Another avowed object is "to stop the growth of Socialism." Well say that's some job.

Doubtless they are sincere in wanting to stop the growth of Socialism—but we do not believe they are sincere in wanting to maintain the fundamental principles of the Constitution.

If they were, their officials would have been active in securing the release of political prisoners who were convicted in violation of the first amendment. That amendment embodies one of the most fundamentals of all the principles of the Constitution. They say handsome is that handsome does—and, paraphrastically, patriotism is that patriotism does. A true lover of the fundamentals of the Constitution would rush to the rescue when it is being violated in specific cases, instead of calmly approving of the violation.

As for stopping the growth of Socialism, they are welcome to try. They will succeed as well as they would in keeping back the tide of the sea.

WHY THE PRICE OF BREAD ADVANCED.
(From Labor, Organ of the Rail Unions.)

The union bakers of Washington recently compelled their employers to give them a 10 per cent advance in wages. The wholesale bakers immediately raised the price of bread 20 per cent—a cent a loaf wholesale. Then the majority of the retail bakers tacked on 2 cents to the retail price.

A Washington statistician has figured out that a 10 per cent increase in the wages of the working bakers increased the labor cost of 1000 loaves of bread just $1.25, or about one-eighth of a cent a load. He also discovered that while the working bakers were getting this 10 per cent increase the price of flour had dropped so that the cost of flour needed to make 1000 loaves had decreased $1.07.

So, according to this statistician, the actual increase in the cost of producing 1000 loaves of bread had been 18 cents.

On the strength of this increase of 18 cents the wholesale dealers added $10 to the wholesale price, and some retailers added from $20 to $30 to the retail price.

And the retailers and wholesalers united in declaring that the cost of labor was entirely responsible for the increase in the price of bread!

HUNT FOR METEORITES IN ILLINOIS HAS BEEN VAIN

State Museum Curator Has No Record of One Being Found in the State.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 22.—Meteorites have been contributed to the Illinois State Museum by other States, but there is no record of one having been found in this State, according to Prof. A. R. Crook, curator of the museum.

"Kentucky, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa and several Western States have contributed meteorites to this museum," said Prof. Clark, "but I have been looking for them in Illinois without success for 20 years."

The most prized meteorite in the museum is from South Africa.

Numerous reports have reached the museum that meteorites have been found in the State. Prof. Crook, upon investigating the report, has found in each case that the "stones" is the result of "drifts" during the glacial period.

Prof. Crook values iron meteorites at $1 to $2 a pound. He suggests that any person discovering one should call it to the attention of the museum or State geologists at Urbana.

Display of Ancient Cotton Fabrics.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—A collection of ancient bits of cotton fabric will form a part of an exhibit of the cotton industry which will be presented by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, at the International Textile Exposition in this city beginning Oct. 29. It will include pieces of cloth woven in Peru before the Christian era and others from ancient Java, India and China and Fifteenth Century Sicily.

ADVERTISING AND TRADE NIGHT SCHOOL TO BEGIN OCT. 8

Classes Will Be Conducted by Advertising Club for Third Successive Season.

For the third season the Advertising Club will conduct a night school of advertising and merchandising in its quarters at Hotel Statler, starting Oct. 8. Members of the club or the Junior Advertising Club, Chamber of Commerce Sales Managers' Bureau, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Associated Retailers or Women's Advertising Club, or any other person recommended by a member of one of these organizations, may take the courses.

There was an enrollment of 450 last year and a larger enrollment is expected this year. The courses to be given are: Copy writing, production—the mechanics of advertising, principles of retail selling, showcard writing, general principles of advertising, psychology of advertising and selling, direct-by-mail advertising, better English, letter writing, sales promotion methods and public speaking. Tuition charges are $10 or $15 a course, except that one costs $8. A 10 per cent reduction from the total charge will be allowed to students entering two or more classes. Class hours are set for early evening.

FRANCE HAS POOREST WINE CROP SINCE ARMISTICE

No Shortage Found, However, Since Stock on Hand in Vaults Totals 182,511,000 Gallons.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—The gathering of grapes for wine-making is now in full sway in France, but the outlook gives promise of the poorest wine crop since the armistice. The prolonged excessive heat waves, and the ravages of plant lice, followed by tremendous storms, played havoc with what remained of the standing vineyards.

No wine shortage is feared, however, as the stock on hand in the vaults of the wholesale wine merchants Sept. 1, amounted to 182,511,000 gallons. Bordeaux wines led with nearly 23,000,000 gallons. Champagnes were second with 27,000,000 gallons, while Burgundy was third along the better known vintages, with 8,000,000 gallons.

Returns from four benefit shows, a lemonade stand and two direct cash donations, increased the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund $73.50 during the past week, bringing it to a total of $5109.29.

Two of the shows netted $20 each. The affair at 4636 Vernon avenue was conducted under the direction of Eleanor Chrisman of 4713 Vernon avenue, assisted by the following children: Ethel Mitauer, Kitty Simons, Rosalye and Dorris Wright, Susie McCarthy, Raymond Meyer, Pauline Wise, Rebecca Freeman, Annette Shank and Martha Freeman.

The show given at 2717 Dayton street on Sept. 15, which also earned $20, was managed by the following children: Julius Wilson, Mollie Holtzman, Esther Holtzman, Edith Wilson, Morris Barnhold, Abe Stein, Edith Shanker and Freda Shanker.

Neighborhood children presented a show at 3938 Natural Bridge avenue recently and cleared $9 for the Ice Fund. The workers were: Evelyn, Hugh Hazel and Junior Flori, Gladys and Vero Mohr, Frederick Kuhlman and Edith McGrath.

Six children sold lemonade from a stand at 5901 Delmar boulevard, and added $7.30 to the fund for the babies. The names follow: Richard Meyers, Eugene and Elliner Cafferata, Virginia Plank, Herbert Fletcher and Edward Canepa.

Eight little girls of Lindenwood gave a show at 6628 Hancock avenue Monday evening, Sept. 17, and earned $5.20, which they donated to the Ice Fund. The performers were: Loraine Cunningham, Grace Olsen, Karan and Frieda Tuck, Ruth Carr, Marybelle Carson, Ruth Olsen and Charlotte Myers.

Ten dollars was received from the Ernest Endeavor Society through Mrs. J. R. Booth of 1120 Lawn avenue, and $2 came from Mrs. H. S. Hartzog of 5807 Bartmer avenue.

RECORD SHIPMENT OF SILK THROUGH SEATTLE IN AUGUST

Estimates for September Upset By Earthquake That Destroyed Stocks in Yokohama.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEATTLE, Wash.—Silk shipments passing through here during August made a record for one month and just as this valuable cargo was expected to exceed all estimates for September the earthquake destroyed mammoth stocks in Yokohama warehouses. During August silk valued at $40,000,000 arrived here and was rushed in special silk express trains to eastern mills. The bales filled 120 cars.

With the arrival here of three ships now in mid-Pacific Orient. It is expected a lull will come in the silk industry in this country followed by a sudden raise in price of manufactured goods. Just how serious the silk shortage may be cannot be foretold, according to northwest shippers.

In Husband's Place as Sheriff.

SLAYTON, Minn.—Mrs. Annie Lowe, appointed ot succeed her husband, James Lowe, in the office of sheriff, is 62 years old and has been a resident of this county since 1869, when her father came to this section. She is the mother of nine children, one of whom died in infancy. One son, John W., has been his father's deputy for a number of years. He is expected to continue as his mother's chief deputy.

OLD AT 40?

IRON STARVATION

of the blood, perhaps, and your worn-out, exhausted nerves need to be revitalized.

Nuxated Iron, 69c

For this purpose there is nothing better than Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

Over four million people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich the blood.

Nature Put Iron for Your Blood

In the husks of grains and the peels and skins of fruits and vegetables but modern methods of cookery throw all these things away—hence the alarming increase in anemia—iron starvation of the blood, with its never ending trend of symptoms of nervous irritability, general weakness fatigue, disturbed digestion, headaches, pains across the back, etc.

Either go back to Nature or take Organic Iron — Nuxated Iron — to help enrich your blood and revitalize your worn-out, exhausted nerves

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads; that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

SPANISH WORKERS AVOID PROVOKING CONFLICT

Leaders Believe Military Dictatorship Would Welcome Chance to Use Force.

By the Associated Press.

PORT VENDRES, Spanish Frontier, Sept. 22.—There is widespread discussion concerning the attitude of the workers of Spain in view of the complete change in the Government effected by the advent of the military dictatorship.

The first impression in the minds of the majority of the people was that workers would resist the incursion of the military into politics. This view received some support when the fiery communist section demanded immediate declaration of a general strike and cessation of industrial activity. The more moderate counsels of the majority of the workers, however, prevailed.

The explanation of the peaceable acceptance of the new conditions, according to the workers' leaders, lies in the fact that the Socialist element considers the time has not come when the workers can carry out a revolution in order to introduce their system with any prospect of success.

They contend that the incitement to resistance comes from quarters desiring to make them "food for cannon," and, in the event of their triumph, to take advantage of the opportunity to gain political power for themselves at the expense of the workers. The Socialists ask whether those inciting them to resistance are ready to accept a Socialist regime in the event of success and say no reply to this question has been forthcoming. One of the leading Socialists, whose name cannot be given owing to cidcumstances, said today:

"The German Socialist, Rebel, always resisted attempts to make Socialists confront armed forces, because such efforts were ridiculous, unless they were well armed. Rebel believed that the best method to secure their ends was reasoning, and the Spanish Socialists generally have accepted a similar viewpoint."

"The proletariat of Spain," he added, "is quite disposed to sacrifice itself, but not in order to permit the return to power of those who have shown themselves incapable of governing.

"The workers' headquarters has issued a note counseling serenity and avoidance of any act which might give the military an opportunity to employ force, which would inevitably cause useless bloodshed. The note hints that the military hope such an opportunity will be given.

"The Syndicalists, who never have participated in politics, as they believe in direct action, have refrained from any utterance, but it is notable that quiet reigns in Barcelona and their other centers of activity. This is taken to indicate that they are aware any disturbance will result in severe repressive measures."

RIGINAL SHAKSPEARE QUAINT PICTURE BOOK

ewberry Library at Chicago Has 97th of 180 Copies That Now Exist.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Printed in quaint old picture-book type, a copy of the original edition of Shakspeare's complete works, 12⅝x8⅛ inches and about two inches thick—$6,000 worth, the custodian says—is the Newberry library here, is the collection of hundreds who are preparing to honor the famed Elizabethan playwright on the occasion of the 300th anniversary of his first printed folio.

Although the tercentennary of the first folio already has been widely observed, special interest centers about the approaching date of Nov. 8, according to George B. Utley, librarian, for it was on that day, in 1623, that the official license was granted for incorporating into the Shakspearean folio 16 hitherto unpublished plays.

Extent of Library.

The Newberry library contains among its 400,000 volumes, most of which deal with history and literature, one of the best collections of material on Shakspeare. In addition to original copies of each of the immortal four folios, it has more than 200 separate editions of the plays ranging in time of publication from the seventeenth century down to recent years.

Of the 500 printed copies of the first folio, the Newberry copy was ranked ninety-seventh among the 180 copies that now exist, in a census completed by Sir Sidney Lee, an English authority. Originally placed on the market at five pounds, this unique edition has so gained in significance that the most recent sale of a copy, in 1921, involved the figure of 4200 pounds. Utley said. The record selling price for a set of the four pioneer folios, all of which were printed in the seventeenth century, was $75,000, Nov. 1919, he added.

The Newberry copy is firmly bound but is considered a poor specimen of printing and abounds in typographical errors. Marked differences have been noted between various copies of the first folio, showing that corrections were made from time to time while the work was in process of publication.

Large, Legible Type.

Distinguishing features of the work include its very large, legible type, the dedication to William, Earl of Pembroke, and Phillip, Earl of Montgomery, and the preface "to a great variety of Readers." There also is a copper plate engraving of Shakspeare as a frontispiece, the only authentic likeness of the author, according to Utley. The succeeding three folios are patterned closely after the original.

Curious variations are to be noted among the editions of Shakspeare. Alexander Pope's edition, published in 1723-5 and which was very popular for the time, also was printed in large characters. It contained six volumes and is literally embellished with many copper plate engravings.

Another edition, published in 1765 by Samuel Johnson, is prepared in small type, but is regarded as a scholarly work and bears the further distinction of a portrait of the playwright made by George Vertue, a noted engraver of the time.

ORIGINAL SHAKSPEARE QUAINT PICTURE BOOK

Newberry Library at Chicago Has 97th of 180 Copies That Now Exist.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Printed in quaint old picture-book type, a copy of the original edition of Shakspeare's complete works, 12⅝x8½ inches and about two inches thick—$1,000 worth, the custodian says—in the Newberry library here, is the object of hundreds who are preparing to honor the famed Elizabethan playwright on the occasion of the 300th anniversary of his first printed folio.

Although the tercentennary of the first folio already has been widely observed, special interest centers about the approaching date of Nov. 4, according to George B. Utley, librarian, for it was on that day, in 1623, that the official license was granted for incorporating into the Shakspearean folio 16 hitherto unpublished plays.

Extent of Library.

The Newberry library contains among its 400,000 volumes, most of which deal with history and literature, one of the best collections of material on Shakspeare. In addition to original copies of each of the immortal four folios, it has more than 200 separate editions of the plays ranging in time of publication from the seventeenth century down to recent years.

Of the 500 printed copies of the first folio, the Newberry copy was ranked ninety-seventh among the 180 copies that now exist, in a census completed by Sir Sidney Lee, an English authority. Originally placed on the market at five pounds, this unique edition has so gained in significance that the most recent sale of a copy, in 1921, involved the figure of 4200 pounds, Utley said. The record selling price for a set of the four pioneer folios, all of which were printed in the seventeenth century, was $75,000, Nov. 1, 1919, he added.

The Newberry copy is firmly bound but is considered a poor specimen of printing and abounds in typographical errors. Marked differences have been noted between various copies of the first folio, showing that corrections were made from time to time while the work was in process of publication.

Large, Legible Type.

Distinguishing features of the folio include its very large, legible type, the dedication to William, Earl of Pembroke, and Phillip, Earl of Montgomery, and the preface "to a great variety of Readers." There also is a copper plate engraving of Shakspeare as a frontispiece, the only authentic likeness of the author, according to Utley. The succeeding plates of the folios are patterned closely after the original.

Curious variations are to be noted among the editions of Shakspeare. Alexander Pope's edition, published in 1723-5 and which was very popular at the time, also was printed in large characters. It contained six plates and is literally embellished with many copper plate engravings. Another edition, published in 1765 by Samuel Johnson, is prepared in small type, but is regarded as a scholarly work and bears the further distinction of a portrait of the playwright made by George Vertue, a noted engraver of the time.

Straw Show Work of Birds.

TECUMSEH, Neb.—A half ton of straw was taken from the tower of the Presbyterian Church here by Dan Fisher, who is repairing the building. There were but three small holes through which the birds, carrying one straw at a time, had accumulated this great pile. It is believed the birds had been busy at the job ever since the church was erected, 23 years ago. It was necessary to take out one side of the tower in order to remove the hay.

PRINCESSES TO TRY AMERICA

They Are Leaving Russia as the Brides of Men Born Here.

MOSCOW—Russia soon will be the poorer by 24 women, for this is the number of brides who are, or soon will be, on their way to the United States with their American husbands, men who came out to Russia with the American Relief Administration. Many of the marriages were precipitated by the withdrawal of the A R A from the Russian field.

Most of the brides speak English. With two or three exceptions, they come from old and well-known Russian families, reduced to meagre circumstances by the revolution, and have enjoyed exceptional educational advantages. They include two princesses and several countesses.

CRIMINAL MAKES PLEA FOR LAW

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 21.—Although a "habitual" criminal, as he characterized himself, B. Clark, an inmate at the state penitentiary here, pleaded to all Americans to "let the reverence of the law become the political religion of the nation."

The plea was contained in a letter to the county attorney, who recently addressed the prisoners on the constitution. Clark is serving a 15-year sentence for robbery.

PHILADELPHIA 'RING' ASTONISHED AT ITS SWEEPING VICTORY

Republican Organization Actually Has Thrown Clean Government Men Out of City Hall, 5 to 1.

MARGIN IN PRIMARY OVER 200,000 VOTES

But Machine Candidate for Mayoralty Got 268,000 to 51,000 for His Nearest Independent Opponent.

(Copyright, 1923.)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22.—It was certain that the pendulum was going to swing here in Philadelphia after four years of "reform" and independent rule, but not even the most astute of the political leaders dreamed what the force of the reaction would be. The "organization" won at Tuesday's primaries an unprecedented victory. When the first returns began to come in it seemed that the regulars had routed the independents within the Republican fold by about 100,000 votes. But all day Wednesday the totals continued to swell until at last it is shown that the organization's sweep is by a margin of more than 200,000.

Even this does not tell the whole story. The organization actually has thrown "independent" and "clean government" forces out of the City Hall by a vote of more than 5 to 1. W. Freeland Kendrick, the organization's candidate for Mayor, received approximately 268,000 votes. His nearest independent opponent received 51,000.

Tired of Reform.

Not only did the "old gang" capture the mayoralty nomination, which here in rock-ribbed Philadelphia is equivalent to election, but it carried into office 19 out of 20 candidates for the City Council.

The extent of the victory has both the independents and regulars in a state of gasping amazement. Gov. Pinchot, it should be remembered, belongs to the independent element in the Republican party. What the effect of the "old gang's" victory in this city may be upon his political future is merely a matter of conjecture. The "machine" has the State's biggest city completely at its mercy. For four years it will own Philadelphia body and soul. Its opponents for both good and evil are unprecedented. Philadelphia is to have another spell of organization government. It is all too evident that it was tired of the other kind.

Effecton Pinchot's Future.

In a consideration of the effort of the city's vote on the prospects of Gov. Pinchot, it must be remembered of course that he never has counted upon much strength in this city. In the primary of 1922, when the former Roosevelt Forester and Bull Moose won the Republican nomination for Governor, he lost Philadelphia by something like 90,000 votes.

What the politicians are counting upon, however, is the psychology of the "Machine's" victory over the reform element, not alone in this State but in the neighboring States, where efforts recently have been made to amalgamate the so-called "liberal" elements of political life into a solid phalanx against the rising tide of sumptuary legislation.

The independents are explaining the machine sweep by statements to the effect that they never were satisfied with the independent nominee, Powell Evans, and that the independent campaign was bungled from the start. Evans, none the less, had the active support of Mayor J. Hampton Moore, who defeated the organization in the primaries four years ago by fewer than 3000 votes.

Tide Carried Women Along.

The women of Philadelphia voted for the first time in a mayoralty primary. The independent and reform elements counted largely upon them. But they made a poor showing and demonstrated once more that when a political tide sets in a certain direction it carries the women voters along with the men.

Politicians in the Western States where women have voted for many years always have contended that the woman vote made no difference. It was swayed by the same emotions and reasonings as the male vote, they said. The women who ran for Council on the independent ticket were snowed under here on Tuesday.

The Philadelphia newspapers are warning the victors in their celebration that they must not accept their success as license for the "contractors' combine" to run amuck with the half billion dollars of tax money they will have to spend in the next four years. The papers insist that Philadelphia is not "corrupt and contented," as has been charged, and will not submit to a "thralldom of crooked misrule while there is a fighting chance for liberty and good government."

Back of this is a threat of a coalition against the Republicans at the election, but such talk is not yet regarded as serious.

Stomach Pump Gave Evidence.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Because a stomach pump was used to extract morphine he had swallowed when Government agents arrested him as an alleged drug peddler, George Bennett has filed in Federal Court a petition for a writ of habeas corpus charging he is detained illegally since he was forced to give evidence against himself in "violation of his constitutional rights."

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 22.

CLAUDE HEATHERINGTON CLARKE, late of Sparkhill, Birmingham, England, played with death and adventure five years in the World War, but the prosaic times of peace brought him his chance to be a modern Don Quixote.

Nancy Jordan, late of London, the young unmarried mother who figured in the international love tragedy and who came to America to live in the home of the divorced wife of her child's father, was the "lady in the tower" whom he rescued.

Frankie, her 4-year-old son, was the "innocent babe" whom the modern knight saved from the cold stares of a conventional world by giving him a name and, as Frankie says, "a Daddy like Buster's." Buster is his playmate.

Instead of killing dragons for his lady fair, Clarke stepped before a marriage altar last Saturday night and gave her a wedding ring, his love and protection and a name for her child.

Thus ended for Nancy Jordan her long night of unhappiness and disillusionment in a strange land. Thus opened for her the "new day" she came to America seeking.

Came to U. S. 10 Months Ago

Ten months ago Nancy Jordan left the scenes of her unfortunate love affair and came to this country to remove her fatherless child from the gaze of unsympathetic eyes, to give him a chance in life as other children have, free from the stigma attaching to his birth. She was to live in the home of her benefactress in Kansas City and she was to have financial aid in bringing up and educating the boy as she wished to do.

For days she matched wits with unfriendly immigration officials at Ellis Island, appealing for an opportunity to correct her "one mistake" amid surroundings more friendly than those at home afforded. Finally she won the fight, only to lose her hope of realizing her dream after all.

Then, a few days ago, Clarke, who had not previously entered her unhappy drama, stepped into her life. Though he had met her on the ship that brought her to America, he was not one of those who figured last fall in her case, which attracted nation-wide interest on account of its similarity to the famous Perley Spiker case. (Mrs. Spiker, it will be recalled, took another unmarried English girl, Emily Knowles, and the latter's baby into her home following a war romance between the girl and Spiker.)

But all those 10 months, Clarke selling bonds in Grand Rapids, Mich., and later insurance in Chicago, secretly carried about with him his dream. It was one born of a pledge he made when he first saw the fair-haired, soft-voiced, sad-eyed girl on the liner President Monroe.

"Nancy Jordan shall one day be mine," he swore to himself.

The girl, looking out across the tumultuous waves of the Atlantic, too, had dreamed her dreams. They were of happiness and forgetfulness in the new world.

Both dreams were to be sidetracked temporarily before their realization.

Nancy's War Romance

Nancy Jordan was another of those who suffered from the backfire of the volley of human emotions unleashed by the World War.

Employed as a bookkeeper in the offices of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in London, she met and loved Maj. Frank Warren of the American Army. Nancy was 19 years old then, a typical English girl with her flyaway blond hair forming a soft frame about her face, with big eyes which sometimes were blue, sometimes gray and sometimes a light hazel, and she had the slow, precise, soft speech of her countrywomen. She easily attracted the young American officer and their association continued until the American forces returned home. Then her baby was born.

Only recently has Nancy named Maj. Warren, now a practicing attorney in Kansas City, as the father of her child.

While she was detained at Ellis Island last fall by immigration authorities she persisted in the story that her baby, Frankie, was the son of an English soldier named "John Smith."

Nancy came to America last November at the invitation of Major Warren and the latter's wife. Although the two had been divorced following Maj. Warren's return from the war, Mrs. Warren had heard from her husband the story of Nancy's tragedy and she suggested that the girl be brought here and given a new start away from the scene of her "girlish folly." Mrs. Warren met the young English woman at Ellis Island and brought her to Kansas City, keeping her several weeks in her own home.

But Nancy's dream of happiness and forgetfulness in America had been blasted almost as soon as the President Monroe got in sight of the Statue of Liberty. Through some misunderstanding about her entry she was detained at Ellis Island and had to appeal to the Secretary of Labor in order to be permitted to land with her son.

Her story became public and was flashed from one end of the country to the other. With it was broadcast the word that Mrs. Warren intended to adopt little Frankie.

The terror-stricken young mother announced that she would return to England before she would give up Frankie. Mrs. Warren did not press her wishes and the girl, after being admitted to this country, was brought to Kansas City by her benefactress.

Although she was treated with the utmost courtesy in the home of Mrs. Warren, Nancy

CLAUDE HEATHERINGTON CLARKE.
The young English war veteran who first met Nancy on the ship bringing her to America, and then, when her hope of finding a satisfactory home in Kansas City had proved futile, induced her to marry him just as she was about to return to her native country defeated.

MRS. FRANK VAN TRUMP WARREN.
Kansas City woman, who, upon being told by her former husband of the English girl's plight, invited Nancy to live in her home and interceded in her behalf when immigration authorities threatened to prevent the girl from landing. The home arrangements soon failed, however, and Mrs. Warren has since married Lieut. Thomas E. Whitehead, a cavalry officer stationed at Fort Myer, Va.

MAJOR FRANK WARREN.
Kansas City attorney whom Nancy has only recently named as the father of her child. The romance developed when Maj. Warren was stationed in England during the war. The financial aid which he promised to provide for the girl and her baby, it is said, has not been forthcoming.

STORY OF LEGLESS, ONE-ARMED COWBOY WHO BECAME POWER IN POLITICS AND FINANCE

Michael J. Dowling School for Crippled Children Is Memorial to Man Who Refused to Become a County Charge After Storm Had Disabled Him—Became a Wealthy Banker and Contributor to Charity, Served in State Legislature and Once Was Boomed for Governor, But Withdrew From Race —"Thank God I'm Not a Cripple," He Used to Say, "No Man Is a Cripple So Long as He Has a Good Mind."

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 22.

TWO years ago, a little while before his death, Michael J. Dowling, Minnesota's one-armed and legless philanthropist, stood before an extraordinary audience in the school for crippled children here which bears his name. Some of the little ones in that assemblage couldn't sit up straight. Their backs were twisted and hopelessly deformed. Others could hold their backs with soldierly erectness, wiggle their arms and shoulders as children do and keep their fingers in constant action, but with their legs helpless in rigid forms in front of them. Numerous pairs of little crutches lay near the small classroom chairs.

But there were 41 eager faces turned toward Michael Dowling as he hobbled before them, faces that bore fulsome quotas of healthy freckles and that lighted with new determination as he told of his life, as he laughed at his missing hands and convinced them that the lack of a leg or an arm can never make a boy a cripple.

Man Who Conquered Handicaps

Today the name of Michael Dowling means to the pupil-patients of the Michael J. Dowling School for Crippled Children a man with the kindest eyes and the merriest smile, a man who made opportunity when there was none and rose to a position of wealth and influence in spite of handicaps that to most men would have seemed insurmountable. No boy or girl who heard him is likely soon to forget his words.

"I've never seen more happy faces in any schoolroom I have visited," he said to them that day. "There isn't anything the matter with anyone in this room, is there?"

"No," came the quick response, accompanied by shakes of the 41 heads and an equal number of grins.

Then he told them a story—a story of a boy who was lost in a storm on a night when the icy winds were heavy with snow. He described the fight of that boy against the freezing blasts, the drifts that caught at his feet, then at last his exhaustion and his defeat. Worn out beyond all endurance, with his legs aching from the cold and his own weariness, the boy found a sheltering tree, leaned against it for comfort, and slept. When he was found in the morning his hands and feet were frozen.

Dowling pointed to his maimed right hand and to the artificial left hand he wore. He told the children that because of that night in the storm, both of his legs had been amputated six inches below the knee.

"Measure that on your own legs," he said.

There was a scramble for rulers. Even the legs that were rigidly encased in supports were measured.

"No Worse Off Than He"

"Are any of you worse off than I am?" questioned Dowling.

"No," was the answer again. And there was profound conviction in it, too.

Then the man who had conquered the loss of his hands and his feet talked to the hearts of the crippled children who faced him.

"There is nothing the matter with your minds and your hearts," he told them. "The fact that you have something the matter with your bodies is an advantage that you will learn about later in life, provided you do two or three things that are essential to making good in this world. One is to keep busy, to stick to your job. Never forget that. The second is to forget that there is anything wrong with your foot or your hand or your back. Your mind or your imagination are not crippled. With imagination you can do anything. You can run great ships at sea and sail high in the sky in airplanes.

"Every time you rise above a physical handicap, you are that much better prepared, that much stronger, for the conquering of other obstacles. That is one of the advantages of not having everything the other fellow has."

School Named for Him

In Minneapolis, as in other cities, there are school buildings named for men and women who have become great in many walks of life. Statesmen, poets, great teachers, explorers, presidents and characters from Indian tradition have been honored by perpetuation of their memories through the educational institutions of the city. But in the hearts of the city's residents, in the vividness of their recollections, not one of these names stands out as does that of the Minnesota banker, whose name has been given to the school for crippled children maintained by the Minneapolis Board of Education.

When this school was established a few years ago there was an immediate demand, at first city-wide, then practically statewide, that it be named for "Mike" Dowling, and this was the more striking because at that time M. J. Dowling was still alive. Starting from humble beginnings and overcoming physical handicaps that would discourage most men from effort, he reached by the prime of life the enviable station of a man of whom they could think of no finer things to say after he was dead than had been said of him, and to him, while he was still alive.

Ground has recently been broken for a new home for the Dowling School for Crippled Children which the Board of Education will erect on a beautifully wooded tract overlooking the Mississippi River, which was given to the city by another cripple, William Henry Eustis, a former Mayor of Minneapolis. Ground has also been given by Mr. Eustis to the University of Minnesota for a Home for Convalescents near the Dowling school site, and the University has been given money to build and endow a hospital for crippled children in which the handicapped children of the Northwest will receive the most expert medical care that science can provide. There is little doubt that these later benefactions have been suggested in part by the career of Michael Dowling and the story of his life and its monument in the Dowling school.

An Object Lesson to the Wounded

The story of Michael Dowling is told and prized all over the world. It brought comfort to broken poilus during the World War. It was known to thousands of Canadians and British soldiers. But the Northwest claims Michael Dowling for its own and his story, which is woven into the history of the Northwest, is worth telling.

There were two Michael J. Dowlings. The first one lived but 14 years. He was born in Huntington, Mass., up towards Pittsfield, in the Westfield River valley. When the lad was 10, the father, John Jerome Dowling, a carpenter with a disposition to roving, went West. The mother was dead. Father and son went to St. Louis, then back to Chicago. By now Mike had begun to earn his living. Daytimes, he went to school. At night he sold papers and flowers in front of the famous McVicker's Theater. But that was not the career this young man had planned for himself. Maybe it was due to the influence of dime novels—there is some doubt about it—but anyway he decided to be a cowboy, and in 1880, at the age of 14, he cut loose from his father and went to Minnesota.

So the scene was laid for the death of the first of the Mike Dowlings and his rebirth as a different individual. Young Dowling got a job with a man who handled a large number of cattle. One evening, in the winter of 1880, he was with an outfit in central Minnesota when a terrific blizzard came up. The boy became separated from the others, was numbed with cold, and lay all night in the storm. When the blizzard cleared next morning, he dragged himself to a house, not more than 100 yards away. When medical attention reached him, it was found that both feet, one hand, the left, and most of his right hand, would have to be cut away. In a few hours the cold had imposed on Michael Dowling the handicap that he was to bear through life, but which was destined to enable him to discover his fighting spirit and rise to greatness.

Refused to be a County Charge

All his hard-earned savings now had gone to meet the doctor's bills and other expenses arising from his disability. The county offered to support him, but Michael Dowling was not of the type to become an ordinary county charge. He bargained with the Commissioners. If they would fit him out with artificial limbs, he told them, and pay the cost of two terms in college, he would fight his own way after that. The bargain was struck. After completing the two terms, Dowling got a job teaching country school. Later he painted fences, ran a roller skating rink, was principal of a school at East Granite Falls, wrote life insurance, edited a newspaper, sold real estate, became a banker, and entered politics. Even with all this said, only a fraction of the man's career has been accounted for. At the time of his death in April, 1921, Dowling's principal business connection was the presidency of the State Bank of Olivia, Minn., and throughout the State he was known as "Mike Dowling of Olivia."

Even more than his meteoric career, it was the splendid attitude of cheerfulness and his wholehearted eagerness to inspire and help other persons afflicted with physical handicaps that made Michael Dowling known and loved. During the war years he devoted practically his entire time to inspirational addresses in the United States, snatching a week here and there to assist in Liberty Loan campaigns. The fighting over, he was permitted to go to France in 1919 as the guest of the British Red Cross, and on the Continent and in England, he carried a message of cheer to thousands of disabled soldiers who gave Mike Dowling an evidence of appreciation that they did not always display. They showed him that they believed what he said, liked it, and were helped by it. After his tour through England he was received by King George and Queen Mary in Buckingham Palace.

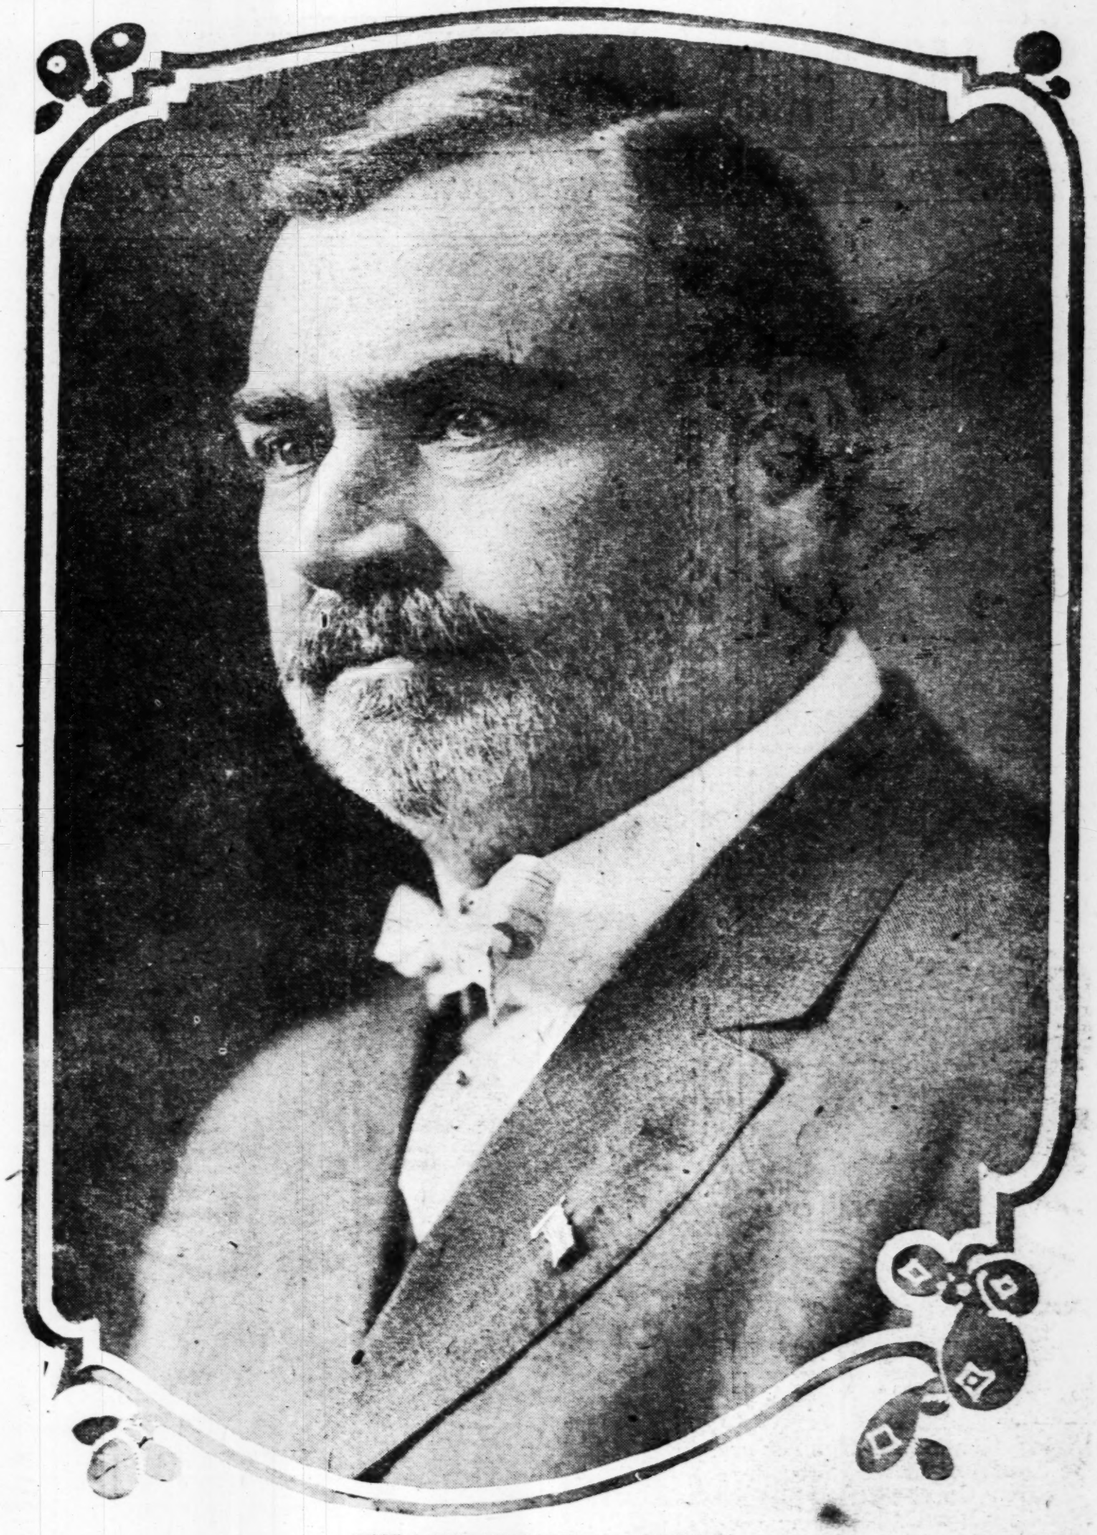
Typical of the Dowling speeches before the soldiers and the child cripples whom he loved is the following excerpt from one of his talks:

"Thank God I am not a cripple. Our bodies—what do they count? A good deal, of course, and yet, as I often say, a man may be worth $100,000 from the neck up and not worth a dollar from the neck down.

"Life is just as rich for me in the things that really count as for any man. Far more so than for some men. I have a wife, family, business and a dozen interests besides. Handicap? Why a handicap is just a chance for a good honest fight. There is only one insurmountable handicap, so far as I can determine. That is the loss of the inner power which we call the mind. Nothing else is unconquerable."

Two decades ago Michael Dowling made his first venture into Minnesota politics. He was elected to the House of Representatives in 1900 and in 1901 became Speaker of the House. When he returned from Europe in 1919 he was widely mentioned for Governor and was a candidate in the early part of the campaign, later withdrawing in favor of J. A. O. Preus, who was elected.

One of the most famous stories told in connection with Dowling has to do with his service as member of an educational commission sent to the Philippine Islands in 1909. It seems that he was one of a group who held a parley, or pow-wow, with a certain wild, very wild, chieftain, in certain Philippine wilds. There were points on which it was extremely difficult to convince the savage monarch. Dowling signaled to other members of the party that he thought he could turn the trick.



THE LATE MICHAEL J. DOWLING.

Chief Thought He Was Going, Too

One by one, he took off the artificial members of his body. As he removed a leg, he would skid it rattling across the floor. The same with a hand. Finally, both feet and one hand had been removed and Dowling reached up, with seriousness on his face, took hold of his neck, and began twisting it as if he were about to remove his head.

That was too much for his sultanship.

"No, no, stop," cried the Sultan. "You know very great deal. Keep on your head, for there are many things you must tell me."

Perhaps the fact that though he was a banker with considerable property interests, Mike Dowling always retained his "touch with folks," and his sympathy with the everyday individual, had as much to do with his popularity as anything else. He had an intensely human touch. His own like for others was reflected in their liking for himself.

"Biologists say blockheads are transmitted from generation to generation, but no one ever heard of a hereditary wooden leg," was one of the statements he used when talking to the British soldiers. It always made a tremendous hit.

The suggestion that the Minneapolis school for crippled children be named after Michael J. Dowling was made in 1929 by Charles R. Adams, chairman of the State Central Republican Committee. In a communication to the Minneapolis Board of Education, Adams wrote:

"I understand that a school for crippled children is about to be opened by the board of education and that thus far a name for this particular school has not been selected. If my understanding is correct, I should like to respectfully suggest that no more appropriate name could be given such a school than that of 'Dowling' in honor of Hon. Michael J. Dowling of Olivia, Minn., whose life is a constant inspiration to those unfortunate children who are handicapped in life by physical disabilities.

"I cannot too stongly recommend and urge that this institution be named in honor of Mr. Dowling, who is a living and sterling example of the ability of an individual to triumph over seemingly insurmountable obstacles by an unusual display of initiative and perseverance, possible only under our form of government, founded as it is, on the conception that every individual may rise to that position to which his initiative and abilities may point."

Liabilities Made Into Assets.

Michael Dowling saw in the school for crippled children in Minneapolis a place where the State of Minnesota was turning its liabilities into assets and where the children who had spent their lives gazing out of the windows at other children, could play games, develop their minds and their bodies and learn how to master their handicaps.

From the very beginning the value of the school became apparent to all. Little children who were formerly shy and reticent opened up and became happy young human beings. They weren't different anymore, you see. They were among their own kind. Upon visiting the school one may see a boy with a shrunken, helpless leg climbing a rope ladder. He would never attempt that feat in a school where only normal children were present.

The whole purpose of the Michael Dowling School, according to William F. Webster, superintendent of schools, is to give to the handicapped future citizen of the State the same sort of physical and mental training as is given to the normal. In order to insure the best physical care to the students, nurses are always in attendance among the pupils and a doctor reports every day to see that children are not over-exerting themselves. Busses fetch the children to and from school. Luncheon is served at noon in the school.

UNWED MOTHER AT LAST FINDS HAPPINESS SHE CAME TO U. S. SEEKING

desired to be independent and to make her own way for herself and her son. It was a trying task keeping a frolicsome boy from scarring the furniture in Mrs. Warren's handsome apartment.

With her bookkeeping knowledge, Nancy obtained a position with a business firm, working under an assumed name. She placed her baby in a private home and went to see him nights after work and on Sundays. But his cries when she left him rent her heart.

"I want my very own mamma," he would weep when she went away. He gave her this title to distinguish her from the "mamma" with whom he lived.

Then there was loneliness. Working under an assumed name, the young woman could not make the friends she might have desired. Besides there was the economic struggle. Boarding a baby, clothing him and supporting herself in a strange city was not an easy task. Financial help which she had expected when she came here was not forthcoming.

Shortly after those first dull days began, however, there came a letter. It was postmarked "Grand Rapids." Curiously she tore it open and looked at the signature. "Claude Heatherington Clarke." "Oh, Claude, of course. He said he would write."

It was the gay, sunny young Englishman she had met on the President Monroe, the one who was so kind to Frankie, who spent his days riding the obstreperous boy about the deck, playing horse. Clarke had begged her for her address and asked to be permitted to write. He also had cajoled her into giving him her passport photograph.

It was a cheerful, friendly letter. It warmed the lonely girl's heart. But she was puzzled as to how to reply to it.

On the ship she had told Clarke nothing of herself beyond that she was a "Mrs. Nancy Jordan," and was bringing her son to America. What would he think now if he knew the truth?

Letter of Newspaper Clippings.

As a solution to her problem, she put the newspaper clippings containing the account of her tragic love affair and her entrance to the United States into an envelope, and on a slip of paper with them she wrote the single sentence, "Draw your own conclusions." She mailed it to Clarke.

Almost on the return mail came an answer. Clarke wrote even with more friendliness than before.

"This makes no difference to me," he said. "I knew there was something on your mind on the ship. Why didn't you tell me before?"

He begged her to call on him for any help and, "I'll always be waiting for you," he wrote in conclusion.

Nancy read and reread the letter and then tore it up. He had begged her to keep him informed as to her address, but she did not reply.

"I thought, 'what was the use,'" she said.

So the English girl went on with her dull, gray days of loneliness in Kansas City and Clarke, in Grand Rapids, and later in Chicago, waited for the letter that never came.

From here, let Clarke, who believes in romance and dreams and the pre-ordinations of love, tell his own story.

"There is one thing as sure as life and death itself," he says, "and that is that dreams come true—if you hold on to them hard enough.

"I knew the minute I saw Nancy Jordan that it was my hope in life to win her. I was on my way to America like herself to make a new start. I had been pretty much shot up after five years of war. I enlisted when I was 17—and my brother, who is connected with a brokerage firm in Grand Rapids, wanted me to come out to the States and get a start in business.

"The second day out I met Frankie on the deck. Say, but he's a great boy, a regular husky, and I'm going to make a second Babe Ruth out of him. It was pretty rough and most of the passengers stayed in their cabins. But Frankie would stay on deck and of course he dragged his mother with him.

"Good Pals on Ship."

"For 10 days on the ship we three were good pals. Frankie's mother said she was a 'Mrs. Jordan.' At times she seemed downcast about something and I longed to help her, especially as she was a countrywoman of mine. We ate

HOW TEXAS WIFE BROKE UP HUSBAND'S AFFAIR WITH OTHER WOMAN BY 'LOVE' INJUNCTION

Erring Pair Sent to Jail When They Violate Writ Forbidding Them to Talk to Each Other

Fort Worth Judge, in Imposing Prison Term in Addition to Fines of $100 Each, Heeds Appeal of Offending Man's Parents Who Appeared Against Him at Trial Along With the Complaining Wife—Both Prisoners Declare They Are Through With Love Affairs in General and With Each Other in Particular—Injunction and the Penalty Its Violation Incurred Constitute One of First Cases of Kind on Record.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 22.

BACK with his wife and two children after serving three days in the county jail here for violation of a "love" injunction, Jack Waynock bids fair, if his own declarations may be taken as indicative of his future conduct, to become a model husband. He has had enough of philandering and, incidentally sufficient experience with the consequences of violating injunctions, especially when they are obtained by his wife and have to do with his conduct with other women.

As for the "other woman" in the triangle, 21-year-old Ethel Gumm, she, too, is through with clandestine associations and most of all she is through with Jack Waynock, for it was he, she says, and her "double-crossing" by him that caused her to land behind prison bars where for three days she wore prison garb and shared a cell with a notorious woman shoplifter and drug addict. Moreover, if he violates the writ a second time by trying to communicate with her she intends to turn law enforcer herself and tell on him to the Judge.

Jail sentences growing out of domestic difficulties are not new to this State, with its laws providing severe punishment for wife or child abandonment, but in this Waynock-Gumm affair there is novelty enough in spite of the fact that it is the second time their conduct in defiance of convention has brought them before the court on the complaint of Mrs. Waynock. Court attaches here declare that so far as they have been able to learn, the penalty imposed upon the pair was the first ever decreed by any court in the United States for the violation of an injunction forbidding a man to talk to a woman. And the writ itself represents only the third of its kind ever issued in the entire country.

Parents Aided in Prosecution

Upon the first appearance of the pair after a complaint had been filed by Mrs. Waynock the Judge was inclined to be lenient, but, as a matter of form, imposed a fine of $100 each, later suspending it. When they were brought in only a week later for a second offense, however, and the man's parents appeared along with his wife as prosecuting witnesses, the court decided that something more drastic than suspended fines was appropriate, so the jail term was resorted to and the fines reimposed besides.

"Why do you want to see your son put behind prison bars?" inquired the Judge of the father when the latter appealed for a jail penalty.

"Because I have tried in every conceivable way to stop my son from seeing this woman," the elder Waynock responded. "I have pleaded with him with tears in my eyes and warned him repeatedly. I have pointed out to him the contemptible appearance of his conduct in spending his money on Ethel Gumm and associating with her openly when he had a faithful wife and two little children at home. All he did was laugh at me and go out again to see this woman. The only way I can think of to stop him is to put him in jail where he will have an opportunity to realize the seriousness of his offense."

Even the mother testified against her son and expressed a hope that he would be sent to prison "if such a sentence will break up his association with this woman."

"Do you know, Mrs. Waynock," asked the Judge, "what it means for a young man of 27 to be put behind the bars with criminals?"

"Jail Only Way to Cure Him"

"I have spent a sleepless night thinking about it," the mother replied, "but I agree with his father that it is the only way to convince him of the enormity of his actions."

So Jack Waynock went to jail and Ethel Gumm went along with him.

During the second trial Miss Gumm's attorney, seeing a possibility of saving his client from a prison sentence through an appeal to the man's chivalry, had attempted to bring out through his testimony that he was to blame for the whole affair. But Waynock had left his chivalry, if he ever had any, outside.

"Didn't you attempt to kidnap this girl the day you took her out riding?" asked the attorney, Walter B. Scott.

"No," answered Waynock.

"Isn't it true that you have pursued this woman for years and would not let her alone?"

"No," answered Waynock again, and then he proceeded to place upon the girl the responsibility for his offense.

Later the lawyer asserted he had asked the question with the expectation that if the man was "red blooded" he would assume responsibility enough to lighten the girl's sentence. "But it was useless to expect that," he declared. "That man was yellow through and through. After she had defied the conventions of society that she might be with him and then put up an alibi of his own devising in order to protect him he deliberately turned his back on her."

Citizens who are familiar with the case are inclined to agree with him regarding Waynock's "yellow streak" and sentiment has turned rapidly in the girl's favor.

It was not until after she had been locked in a cell that Ethel Gumm abandoned her loyalty to the man who, she asserted, had promised "to go to the end of the world to save her." With the realization that her lover had proved false there came a flood of tears and she cursed the name of Jack Waynock. "I never want to see him again. I do not even want him mentioned again in my presence," she sobbed.

Waynock Not Worried Over Girl

In prison Waynock gave little evidence of worry over the plight of the girl lodged two floors beneath him, but there was evidence of a change of heart with regard to his domestic obligations.

"I love my wife and children," he declared. "My duty is to them. When I get out of jail I am going to take a long trip and endeavor to forget all about Ethel Gumm. I am sorry for what has happened, but I am no worse than lots of other married men who associate with women not their wives. It happened that I was caught."

It was three years ago that Waynock and Miss Gumm met. A casual friendship at first, it developed to a stage that involved complications at home. One quarrel over the girl led to another in the Waynock household until finally the husband sued for divorce, alleging cruel treatment, and he won it.

A lovers' quarrel then interfered with the wedding plans of Waynock and Miss Gumm and their relationship was broken off for several months. Before it was patched up Waynock remarried his former wife.

Father Had to Make Checks Good

Not long after that, however, Waynock and Miss Gumm met again and the old association was renewed. This time Waynock made no attempt to regain his freedom, but neither did he display any effort to cover up his attentions to the girl. The two drove about the city together on automobile rides almost daily and it was asserted by Mrs. Waynock when she sought the injunction that the two had lived together as man and wife for days at a time at various hotels in the city.

During this time the elder Waynock, who is proprietor of a large tin manufacturing business in Fort Worth and employer of his son, contributed to the support of the younger man's family and joined the neglected wife in appeals to the wayward husband's conscience, forbearing to resort to official action. Soon however, there arose a necessity for a greater outlay of cash than care of a neglected family demanded. The younger man, it seems, finding himself short of funds, had adopted the expedient of obtaining them with worthless checks, and his father, in order to keep him out of the penitentiary, was compelled to make them good. That bit of paternal intervention, the older man testified at the trial, cost him $10,000.

Matters could not continue in such a state. The prodigal had to be curbed. The wife's complaint, backed by her father-in-law's approval, was filed and the injunction was issued. The second arrest of the pair within a week told how much it had been heeded.

Waynock had met the Gumm girl in Dallas and the two were returning by automobile to Fort Worth when they met Waynock's wife and parents in another car. Each party recognized the other and a spectacular chase ensued. The younger man sped away, gaining such an advantage while the other car was turning around that he was able to reach Arlington, a suburb of Fort Worth, and put the girl out before he was overtaken. But it was useless for him to persist in the story that the woman who had been with him was not Miss Gumm. Mrs. Waynock and his parents were certain in their identification, and they reported to the Court.

When the trial was over and these bits of evidence reviewed, the Judge had this to say to the prisoners:

"I blame you, Waynock, for the fact that this girl has been led astray. You are old enough to know that a married man with two babies has no business running around with a single girl. She is to blame for the fact that she let you talk her into it. However, I will have to sentence you both to the county jail because you have violated the order of this court. It is therefore my order that you, Jack Waynock, and you, Ethel Gumm, serve three days in the county jail, and in addition I will place a fine of $100 on each of you."

The man and woman were taken into custody immediately by the Sheriff. With tears streaming down her cheeks the girl was led from the courtroom to the jail. Waynock, his face pale and his mother by his side, walked from the courtroom to his cell.

Girl Forced to Don Prison Garb

The girl, who was attired in an expensive coat suit, while she was on trial was forced by the matron of the jail to discard her clothes and don prison garb. The man was subjected to the same procedure. While Miss Gumm had to make the best of a cell partnership with a shoplifter, Waynock was placed in a cell with two automobile thieves, and, in accordance with the custom in jails, the new prisoner was given a "kangaroo court" trial by the other prisoners. Waynock did not approve of this fun making and refused to pay a fine of $5 which had been imposed upon him by the "court." However, prisoners have their own methods of making other prisoners pay "court" fines and one of these methods was used on Waynock, with the result that he "paid off."

The first day of incarceration for the man and woman was a new experience for them. Neither Wanock nor the girl would have anything to say about the case. But on the second day, when a newspaper man asked Waynock what he had to say, the prisoner was more talkative. In addition to other statements he declared: "When I get out of here I am going back to my wife and babies."

"What about Ethel Gumm," he was asked.

"Well, I have decided that it was all a big mistake. I am sorry she had to go to jail, but it couldn't be helped."

"Well, don't you think that you are to blame for the fact that she is in jail?" questioned the reporter.

"No, I do not think I am any more to blame than she is," was the answer.

Ethel Gumm at first refused to make any statement. But when told what Waynock had said, she opened up and some of the statements she made about her former lover would not look well in print. However, she did say: "The dirty, low-down dog! He double-crossed me during his testimony in the trial. When he discovered that we had been caught together, he told me to make up an alibi, which I did. Then he told me what he was going to say. I stuck to my story and he told the Judge that we had arranged to meet in Dallas. Naturally, I was made out a liar and the Judge remembered the fact, that I had not told the truth, when he made his decision."

Would Tell Judge on Him

The newspaper man then asked the woman if she would ever have anything to do with Waynock again. "I don't care to associate with double-crossing yellow dogs," she said. "So far as I am concerned, Jack Waynock has passed out of my life. I never want to see him again and if he attempts to communicate with me I am going to tell the Judge."

While he was in jail, Waynock's wife called on him every day. In a statement to the newspaper men, Mrs. Waynock said that she still loved her husband and that for the sake of the babies she would continue to live with him. "I suppose in every man's married life some woman will try and take him away from his wife. Most men have strong wills and do not pay any attention to any woman who attempts to break up his home. Jack has been sick and due to the fact that this woman would not leave him alone, his will was not strong enough to withstand the advances of Ethel Gumm," Mrs. Waynock asserted.

When Ethel Gumm was released from jail after serving her three days' sentence, the first question she asked was, "where is my mother?" Mrs. Gumm was waiting for her daughter outside the jail door and greeted the girl with tears streaming down her cheeks.

Waynock was met at the jail door by his wife and his father. He told a newspaper man that he would bet anything he possessed he would never be put in jail again for violating any kind of an injunction.

Jack Waynock and Ethel Gumm never did go to a lot of trouble to keep their association a secret, and this snapshot shows them in an attitude more or less familiar to persons about town in Fort Worth.

UNWED MOTHER AT LAST FINDS HAPPINESS SHE CAME TO U. S. SEEKING

at the same table on the ship and I remember my first impression was that she seemed sad and discouraged.

"We became such good friends that I finally induced her to give me a passport photograph before we parted and I have carried it constantly ever since.

"I hated to leave her and the little boy, even if he had caused me to wear out the knees of a pair of trousers playing horse on deck, but I had no idea that I would lose track of them when I took the train to Grand Rapids."

After Clark received no reply from his letter to Miss Jordan he wrote again several times but the letters did not reach her. She had changed her address. Four months ago the young man went to Chicago to enter the employ of an insurance company. He formed new friends there, but always the memory of the English girl persisted.

Read of Her Plan in Newspaper.

"Recently I had been worried considerably as to whether she was being cared for in Kansas City," he said. "But there was nothing I could do but wait. The dream that she would some day be mine would not leave me and down deep in my heart something told me that the dream would come true. Last Wednesday I had been working especially hard on a 'prospect' for insurance. About midnight, tired out, I stepped into a restaurant in Chicago and picked up a newspaper to read while I waited for my coffee. Mechanically I turned the pages and then, suddenly I thought my heart would stop. There was a picture of Miss Jordan and underneath it the report that she intended to return to England."

Clarke did not wait for his coffee. He rushed to a telephone and called the newspaper office.

"Get me the address of Nancy Jordan of Kansas City right away quick," he requested.

No Reply to Proposal.

The newspaper made inquiries for him in Kansas City. The young man telegraphed a proposal to Miss Jordan asking her to reconsider her plans to sail for England until he could see her. But he received no reply.

Friday night of last week he took a train to Kansas City, arriving there Saturday morning. Miss Jordan, who had quit her position, was staying at the home of a friend and making her final arrangements preparatory to starting for England.

The financial struggle here, her loneliness and the fear that her boy would be taken from her had caused her to decide, against her wishes, to return to the scenes of her former unhappiness.

She was down town shopping when Clarke reached the home of the friend with whom she was staying. Coming up the sidewalk, bundle laden, she heards the strains of a song wafted from the windows. A man's voice was singing.

She opened the door and a young man sprang up from the piano with outstretched arms.

"Why Claude," she exclaimed.

Hurried to Get License.

For an hour Clarke pleaded with her to abandon her plans for returning to England and to marry him. In the end she consented for a wedding at 7 o'clock that night. The bridegroom-to-be hastened away to get a license and wedding ring.

Before her wedding hour arrived the young woman sent for Frankie. He had been told by his foster father that he was to have a new parent.

"I'm goin' to have a new Daddy," were his first words of greeting to his mother as he entered her embrace.

Frankie's greeting of his "new Daddy" whom he remembered as his ship playmate was uproarious. The two romped on the floor and Frankie's cries of laughter echoed through the house while the wedding arrangements were being completed. When the couple finally stood before Dr. Burris A. Jenkins of the Linwood Boulevard Christian Church for the service to be read, Frankie would not leave his mother's side.

Wanted to Be Married, Too.

"I want my very own mamma," he cried when taken from her. Later he pleaded with her saying, "I want to be married too."

"Sure, old top, come on," said Clarke, "We'll make an eternal triangle of it."

So, holding fast to his mother's hand, Frankie stood by her side and heard the words pronounced which gave him a "daddy." A few seconds later, with his mother, he was folded in Clarke's embrace. After the ceremony the exuberant Clarke was at the piano again playing and singing.

Clarke, a spontaneous, joyous young man beams his happiness over the realization of his dream "If you want anything badly enough, you'll always get it," he philosophizes.

Nancy, who is more quiet in her joy, says, "I thought all my love was wrapped up in my boy, Frankie, but I see now that I was wrong—that my heart is big enough for both of them. And I am glad, so glad, to stay in America."

Wants to Forget Warren.

Major Warren, Nancy says, she wants only to forget. "That is all over now," she says, "and I harbor no ill feelings toward any one."

Mrs. Warren, since, has remarried and now is the wife of Lieut. Thomas E. Whitehead, an army officer stationed at Fort Meyer, Va., near Washington, D. C.

Clarke also desires to remain in America. His father, William Haywood Clarke, is a shirt manufacturer in Sparkhill, Birmingham, England, but he believes the business opportunities greater in America. The couple will make their home in Kansas City.

Full of high hopes, Clarke predicts a happy future for all, but especially for Frankie.

"Oh, I'm going to make a great man out of that boy," he says, "a Babe Ruth at least."

To which the mother smiles a bit doubtfully.

Healthy Kidneys are Important

The hustle and bustle of modern life often cause weak kidneys. Overwork and worry invariably create poison in the kidneys faster than the weakened kidneys can filter it from the blood. Pains in the back, nervousness, and lack of ambition are some of the many warnings that the kidneys may not be functioning properly. When such is the case, serious digestive and eliminative troubles occur.

AMERICANS IN FRANCE FEEL EFFECT OF DRIVE FOR TAXES

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—Americans living in France are feeling the effects of the drive of Minister of Finance de Lasteyrie, to collect 5,000,000,000 francs in excess taxes in 1923. They are being asked to pay two years' income tax in one year. Some of them heretofore have been overlooked by the tax gatherers and are now requested to settle for three years back.

Foreigners in France are not obliged to declare incomes if they prefer the tax department arbitrarily to fix the amount they owe, computed on an equivalent of seven times their yearly rent. The tax collector is greatly behind on the tax rolls, and many foreigners have been altogether overlooked during the past three or four years. The Finance Minister, therefore, is now determined to bring tax collections up to date, and, if he succeeds, the present year's revenue will be increased 3,000,000,000 francs by income tax alone and by 2,000,000,000 francs on direct taxes.

The Finance Ministry lost 3000 employes in killed or incapacitated during the World War and the tax gathering machinery, therefore, was crippled just at a time when its duties became complicated by the enactment of new imposts, including the income tax. But a trained staff now once more is on the job and tax notices are being sent through the mails with extraordinary rapidity. In consequence there are many long faces to be seen of persons who thought the tax collector had overlooked them entirely.

Peel Off Your Freckles

To remove freckles, blotches or any complexion difficulty, the best thing to do is to remove the skin itself. This is easily and harmlessly done by the application of ordinary mercolized wax. The wax peels off the defective outer skin, a little each day, gradually bringing the second layer of skin to view. The new skin is beautifully soft, clear, white and young. Just procure an ounce of mercolized wax at any drug store and use like cold cream.

"You get the girl —We'll do the rest"

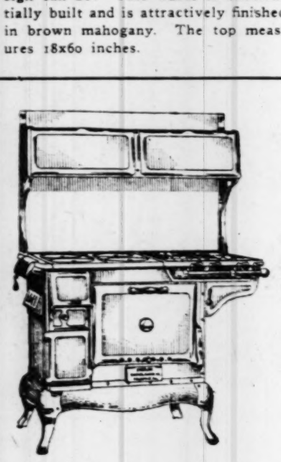
Davenport Table

$14.75

A striking example of how beautiful and distinctive the Queen Anne design can be! This Table is substantially built and is attractively finished in brown mahogany. The top measures 18x60 inches.



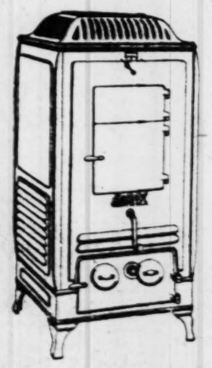
Combination Range

White, Blue or Gray—a Wonderful Value at $124

A Range that is both good and good-looking. It is built of high-grade steel and is porcelain enameled in white, blue or gray. And it has all the conveniences you demand of a good Range; four coal holes, and four gas burners with pilot light. Its 18-inch oven is triple lined, and inside enameled with porcelain. The double warming ovens are also porcelain lined.

Trimmings are of the finest nickel plate. There are porcelain handles on the gas burners and a handy thermometer on the oven door.

All in all, it's a Range you can depend on for perfect cooking and baking and a lifetime of service. An exceptional value, indeed, at $124.



Estate Heatrola

The Parlor Pipeless Furnace

A truly ornamental Heating Stove—as graceefully designed as a phonograph and attractively finished in mahogany. Economical to use, too. Supplies as much warmth as a furnace, yet it burns no more fuel than an ordinary heater.

Latest Hits

Double-Faced Records, 55c each, or 2 Records for $1.00. Play on any Phonograph.

A Very Special Value

American Walnut Dining Suite

Complete Eight-Piece Suite ... $128.50

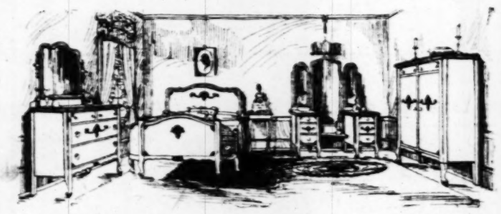
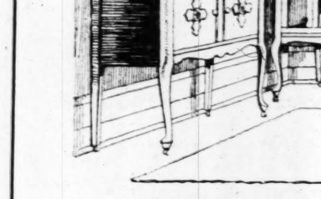
Your pride in your home, your desire to have it beautifully and tastefully furnished—both will be satisfied by this splendid Suite. Substantial, yet graceful in design, and exquisitely fashioned in American walnut, it is one of the best values we have ever offered. The buffet, 60 inches long, rests on six legs; it has a removable velvet-lined silver tray and drawer with mahogany bottom. The china cabinet is 43 inches wide. The oblong extension table measures 54x44 inches when closed. There is also a 36-inch serving table. The six chairs—one of them an armchair—have full slip seats of tapestry or genuine leather in brown or blue. This Suite can be chosen with 8, 9 or 10 pieces.

8 pieces—table, buffet and six chairs	$128.50
9 pieces—table, buffet, china cabinet, six chairs	$163.50
10 pieces—table, buffet, china cabinet, serving table and six chairs	$185.50



4-Piece Bedroom Suite, $249.50

Built of American walnut—Queen Anne style—all four pieces large, gracefully proportioned and finely finished—this Suite is a rare value indeed at $249.50. It consists of a bow-end double bed, 48-in. dresser, 44-in. chifforobe and a 50-in. full vanity dresser with six drawers. To see it is to want it—and the price makes it easy to own.

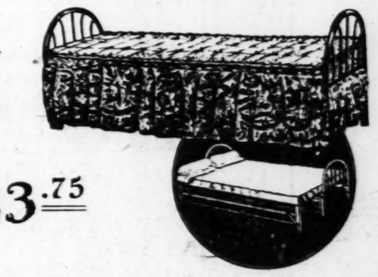


Bungalow Bed

$10.75

A Windsor Bed, 2 feet 6 inches wide and full length. Head and foot pieces fold under, so that it can be stored conveniently, if desired. The frame is of metal, strong and rigid, and is finished in American walnut. Heavy fabric spring is included at $10.75.

Day Bed



$23.75

A handsome couch that will be right in keeping with the rest of your living-room or sun-parlor furniture. Yet it opens into a full-size double bed. Has good fabric woven springs and a heavy mattress covered with cretonne. The finish is American walnut.

Royal Reclining Chairs

You can't beat them for good old-fashioned comfort. When you're tired, your Royal Chair says: "Come on and take a real rest." We have a complete showing of these celebrated Chairs.

A very handsome model is specially priced at

$22.75

Choice of golden oak, fumed oak or mahogany finish, upholstered in blue or brown imitation Spanish leather. If you want a truly friendly Chair, get a Royal.

Stabbed by Neuritis

Many people suffer attacks by this diabolical pain commonly called "nerve inflammation." The first warning is usually a sharp stabbing pain, which may "come and go" or hurt constantly. You may feel it in the shoulder, neck, forearm, small of the back, or down the thigh and leg to the heel. It is sometimes mistaken for sciatica, rheumatism or neuralgia, which often end in neuritis.

No matter where you have nerve pains or what caused them, you can get quick relief without using narcotics or poison. Simply rub Pyramol on the part that hurts, and the pain will be gone.

Pyramol is absorbed through the pores of the skin. It has a soothing, healing effect upon the diseased nerves, gradually helping to restore them to healthy condition.

Don't suffer any longer. Price $1 at your reliable druggist.

Pyramol Company, Mfg. Chemists, 400 Bush St., San Francisco.

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and it never fails to do the work.

RIVIERA COUP RECALLS BRIEF SPANISH REPUBLIC

Franco-Prussian War Grew Out of Overthrow of Queen in 1868.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—German newspapers are recalling the fact that it was an incident similar to Gen. Primo Rivera's coup d'etat in Spain from which the Franco-Prussian war sprang.

Primo Rivera and Benito Mussolini, the Italian Premier, both are emulating Juan Prim, the Spanish statesman and General, who was the original Fascista and overthrew Queen Isabella II in 1868, forcing her and her corrupt court to flee to France. The republic which Gen. Prim and his associates established was short-lived and soon the monarchy was restored.

Prince Leopold, a Southern Hohenzollern, was asked to become Spain's King. France immediately charged this was an effort by Germany to undermine France's power, and the French Ambassador, Count Vincent Benedetti, met King Wilhelm I. at Ems, and asked him to order Leopold not to accept the Spanish offer. Wilhelm's treatment of Count Benedetti enraged the French public and although Leopold declined the Spanish throne, France insisted that William give a pledge that no German prince would ascend the Castilian throne. The general confusion and indignation which resulted were the immediate causes of the war which ended so disastrously for France.

Gen. Prim's movement was against the monarch as well as the Government, while Primo Rivera is not trying to upset King Alfonso, having apparently learned from Prim's experiment that a complete overturning of a governmental system is hazardous and may involve interference by other European Powers.

Gen. Prim and his associates finally induced Prince Amadeo, second son of King Emmanuel of Italy, to accept the Spanish throne in 1870; Gen. Prim was assassinated immediately after King Amadeo was crowned.

Spain escaped being involved in the Franco-Prussian war, but Amadeo was allowed to rule for only two years, as the Spaniards did not relish having an Italian as their King.

Matters of Current Interest to St. Louis Lovers of Art

INCLUDING the paintings of Eugene Higgins, F. Smith Chase and Richard Miller, native St. Louisans who have been away from the city for a number of years, one-fifth of the Exhibition of American Paintings now in progress at the City Art Museum is composed of the works of St. Louis artists. Seventeen pictures by local painters accepted into the show this year comprise, independent of the additional three just mentioned, a larger number of St. Louis pictures than were entered in any of the preceding 17 annual American shows, and far the greatest ratio in proportion to the numbers of pictures exhibited. This is splendid testimony to the artistic progress of St. Louis and its painters.

One of the most conscientiously painted pictures of the local group is "The Mandarin's Coat," by F. Humphrey Woolrych. It is a conventional portrait study, and is an unusually nice working out of values. The handling of the flesh tones of the model is exceptionally well managed in relation to the red mandarin robe she wears, and the dull green backgrounds against which she is posed. It is a serious picture striving for perfection in technical points rather than startling effect, and bespeaks much skill and sincere work.

Marcel Olis, the young Frenchman whose group of charming little Grand Canyon pictures took second prize at the Thumb Box last year, and whose nicely painted still life was included in the St. Louis painters' exhibition at the Artists' Guild in the spring, gives us now a brilliant reminiscence of a scene in Morocco. The dramatic effect of the actuality seems to have impressed the artist to the extent of his inspiring the spectator with the feeling of looking upon a magnificent stage set fro mthe back of a theater. A number of white-robed, brightly turbaned figures gather before the beautiful arched gateway of a great Moresque wall of white stone that reflects the blazing heat of the scorching African sun. The picture is cleverly done in palette knife, and is an interesting manipulation of white. His management of conveying the impression of figures through the use of small bits of paint can be appreciated by examining the picture at close range.

It has been reported that a one-man exhibition of Olis' paintings will be held at the Artists' Guild some time during the coming season.

"Barren Acres" has impressed several persons as being an incongruous title for E. H. Wuerple's lovely study in blues and grays that is in this exhibition. From the title alone, one would suppose the scene to be a dull, brown, forsaken pasture of deadened grass, without trees or vegetation to vary the horizon line of a flat, barren plain. Instead the picture bearing this title is a soft, delightful pastoral belonging in the same category with music which induces reverie. On a gentle hillside and backgrounded by a gray yet not murky sky, a clump of trees in full foliage bends slightly as if to see itself reflected in the quiet pasture pool that lies motionless in the little valley. Lightly, yet firmly painted, and kept down in key, this picture is to the majority of holders a soothing expression of a mood of restfulness.

Oscar Thalinger's beach scene, "The Morning Plunge," is the only marine in this exhibition by a St. Louis painter. This little picture, nicely proportioned and well painted, has successfully achieved the difficult feat of indicating the horizon line, differentiating between the sky and water, yet avoiding abruptness. The introduction of several figures along the beach gives a dash of life to the composition which is welcome in comparison with the peacefulness of the water at low tide. Unfortunately the installation of this picture does not permit the close scrutiny it deserves.

One of Walter Rousseff's pictures included in his exhibition at the Art Department of the Public Library some time back, "A Chicago Blizzard," represents this artist in the American show. Many persons consider this the best of his works shown in St. Louis, and much superior to his landscapes. It arouses a sensation as none of his other pictures has done. It rises from insipidity and actually clutches at the senses of the beholder.

"The Busy Elf," Gisella Loeffler's entry in the exhibit, is her first attempt at painting in oil. Quite naturally her own individuality remains intact, none of the charm of her clever decorations being lost in the change of medium. The greatest perceptible difference in her use of oil rather than opaque water color, is an added brilliance. Her colors and their relation to one another remain the same, but the oil colors take on a luster and zest and stand out in a manner of which the opaque colors are incapable. How much longer is it going to be before the publishers of children's books discover that St. Louis has someone capable of some of the cleverest illustrations for that variety of publication?

Mr. Nuderscher's "Enchanted Barrier" is a glowing autumn scene which far surpasses the majority of his work that we have seen within the last few months. His choice of season affords opportunity for vivid coloring, and he has used it delightfully.

THE Art League is occupied at the present time in arranging its plans for activity this season, definitely listing the purpose and advantages of the league, for presentation to prospective members. A revival of some of the activities of previous years which have been suspended for a time, will take place this season, and a number of new ideas put into effect. Announcement concerning these will be made shortly.

MRS. EMILY PHELIPS is still at her summer home in Kimmswick. Besides some floral still lifes and landscapes, she is now engaged in painting some Mississippi River scenes. A daily three-mile walk to the river signifies her sincerity of purpose.

New to Speak in St. Louis.

Postmaster-General Harry S. New tentatively has accepted an invitation to speak at the International Direct Mail Advertising Convention here next month. President Harding, before his death, is said to have asked New to accept the invitation. He is scheduled to speak at the annual banquet at the Hotel Statler Friday evening, Oct. 26.

A SELECT LIST of persons SEEKING WORK is printed in the POST-DISPATCH SITUATION WANT pages. Many give their TELEPHONE NUMBERS and can be called IMMEDIATELY.

MARMON

Reduced to $2785

The fact that the Marmon now sells for $2785 needs no comment.

The Marmon organization has always had one aim—to place in the hands of the owner a piece of mechanism which would render the lowest operating and maintenance costs for a given standard of comfort and performance.

Marmon has never strayed from this original purpose. Nine years of unrelenting concentration on one type have produced a car which beyond all doubt delivers the finest transportation at the lowest cost per mile.

The growing success of Marmon which has been so apparent for more than a year made it inevitable that the Marmon could be made an even finer car and sell at an even lower price.

The lowest priced car to operate and maintain now becomes the lowest in first cost, in its quality class.

No greater motor car and surely no greater value were ever offered to the motor car investors of America.

New prices effective September 24, 1923. Seven-Passenger Phaeton $2785, (former price $3185) f.o.b. factory; government tax additional. Corresponding reductions on all other models.

FOUR-WHEEL BRAKES

Optional Equipment at Moderate Additional Cost

It is characteristic of Marmon engineering that the four-wheel brakes now available on the Marmon should follow a design of the utmost simplicity. In producing brakes of tremendous power and safety Marmon engineers have avoided with unusual success, the complications common to many types.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

STANDARDIZATION OF RADIO NOMENCLATURE

Government Adopts Terms to Be Used in Designation of Apparatus.

With the rapid development of radio apparatus and practice, radio terminology has expanded and become so complicated that very soon the nomenclature of this world-wide service will have to be standardized. Such steps have already been taken in another growing art and industry—aeronautics.

As early as 1920 the Institute of Radio Engineers began clarifying and systematizing the terms used in radio communication and for designating the instruments and apparatus. Two years later the first published report was issued by the institute. Since then no revison has been announced, although the body has a standing Nomenclature Committee, in which the Government is represented.

The first step by any individual governmental department toward the elimination of obsolete terms and the adoption of a standard nomenclature for radio apparatus has just been taken by the Bureau of Engineering of the Navy Department. Orders issued to the entire naval personnel define the terminology to be used in making requisitions and in correspondence pertaining to radio instruments. The matter of terminology is of interest not only to the navy and the radio industry, but to all users of radio apparatus as well, in order that amateurs and others may always be assured of securing the exact instrument desired.

Among the terms which are declared obsolete by the navy are the commonly accepted names for batteries "A," "B" and "C." In lieu of the term "A battery," the Navy Department will hereafter require the more definite expression, "filament battery." Similarly, the term "plate battery" is to be substituted for "B battery," and "grid battery" for "C battery."

The term "vacuum tube" is proper, but all such names as "audion," "pliotron," "radiotron," etc., are incorrect, the navy claims. Also, the term "receiver" has no place in radio terminology with reference to head phones, the expression "telephone headset" being declared standard for navy use. A receiver, it is explained, is a complete receiving circuit.

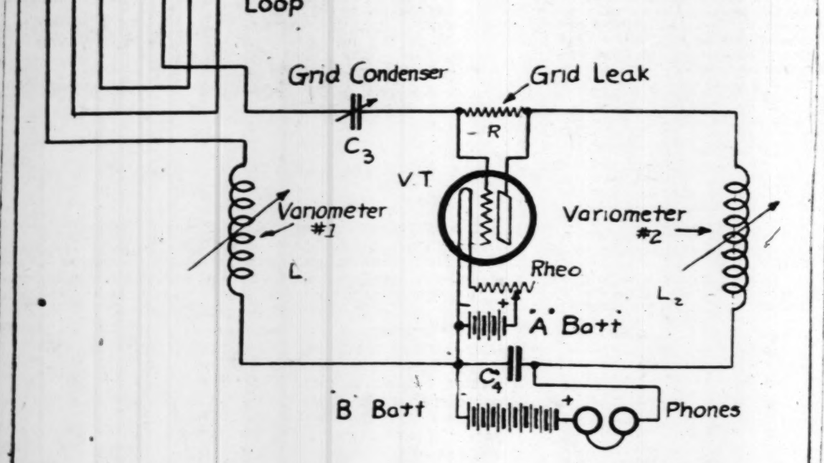
There is no such thing as a "spark tube transmitter," the proper term for a vacuum-tube transmitter in which high voltage A. C. is used, being "A. C. tube transmitter." The designation "flat top aerial" is superseded by "antenna," the term "aerial" being declared obsolete for all purposes. "Antenna ammeter" is the authorized term for what has been commonly known as a "radiation ammeter," and "antenna resistance," is given as the correct definition of what has been popularly called "radiation resistance."

All telegraph keys manually operated are "hand keys," but the small key used for signaling circuits or for controlling relays is hereafter to be known in the navy as the "Morse key." The old direction finder is now known officially as the "radio compass," and no longer as "radio goniometer."

The navy orders also clarify the terminology heretofore used in connection with radio and audio amplification, the proper term for radio amplifying apparatus being "radio frequency amplifier."

It is expected that the orders of the Navy Department, which are the first efforts made by the Government to arrive at a standard terminology of radio apparatus, will be reflected in the radio industry, where the more popular but less definite terms have been largely used. It is probable that the matter of standard nomenclature will be brought before the Interdepartmental Radio Communication Board by the Navy Department. The standardization of radio terms by the Government will make it obligatory upon the industry to follow such nomenclature in bidding for Government contracts, resulting in the gradual adoption of such terminology generally. Recently efforts were made toward the standardization of apparatus; and the next move will be to simplify the terminology of the standard sets, apparatus and parts, it is believed.

Long Distance One-Tube Hook-Up



Zahorsky Circuit Brings in Distant Stations With or Without Loop.

CIRCUIT BRINGS IN DISTANT STATIONS

Hook-Up Developed in the Zahorsky Laboratory Gives Unusual Results.

By STUART C. MAHANAY, Radio Staff, Post-Dispatch.

The circuit shown herewith, has very selective tuning qualities, may be easily constructed, and is very simple in operation. Under favorable conditions and without either antenna or ground connections, it has responded to signals from broadcasting stations more than 1000 miles distant, according to A. R. Zahorsky, an electrical engineer of this city, who offers it as the result of a long series of experiments.

Coils L1 and L2 may be variometers having approximately 125 turns of silk-covered wire on the rotor and an equal number on the stator—a tube four inches in diameter. The lower illustration is self-explanatory and shows a completed instrument of this type. If the variometers are built larger in size, still maintaining the same inductance, better and louder signals are obtained. If a tube smaller than four inches in diameter is used, then the amount of wire on both the rotor and stator must be increased.

The condenser (C3) may be a 23-plate variable; however, an 11-plate size will give somewhat better results. Grid-leak (R) may be a pencil line on a piece of bakelite or hard rubber, placed where it may be readily accessible so that its resistance may be changed at will. Some of the variable grid-leaks on the market serve the purpose quite well. Fixed condenser (C4) may be an ordinary phone condenser, preferably of .002 or .003 mfd. capacity.

The loop for use with this circuit may consist of 7 to 10 turns of wire spaced one-half inch apart on a frame two feet square. This will enable the set to tune to 600 meters.

In place of the loop aerial, very satisfactory results may be had by short-circuiting the leads to the loop and in its place, run one wire to an outside antenna, an electric light socket aerial plug, or to a ground connection with a 5-plate air variable condenser in series.

The vacuum tube should be a "hard" or amplifying tube with 90 volts on the plate.

To tune the set, the following suggestions are offered:

1. Turn variometer dial so that they stand at 90 degrees.

2. Turn condenser so that its capacity is of the nature of .0001 mfd. (this means about one-tenth of the scale on a 23-plate variable).

3. If there is little or no graphite on the grid-leak, or if the resistance is infinite, a succession of dull thumps will be heard in the receivers. Applying graphite with a lead pencil will cause the thumps to increase in number per second, until a musical note is heard. Adjust this note by means of the pencil, erasing or adding more lines, until it has about the same pitch as the highest note on a piano.

4. Turn the grid variometer back and forth until the characteristic whistle is heard.

5. Adjust the plate variometer for loudest signals.

It is best to attempt the operation of this set by tuning in some near-by station until one becomes familiar with the operation of the circuit. The writer has heard signals from Chicago, Detroit and Fort Worth, reproduced with a loud-speaker, and with sufficient intensity to be heard in a room of moderate size.

Variometer Used in the Circuit Described Herewith.

Italian Broadcasting Soon.

An agreement between a number of Italian radio manufacturers whereby a broadcasting station is to be constructed and put in operation has been announced. Up to the end of July, there had not been any regular broadcasting in Italy.

Radiograms.

Philadelphia, Pa., is recognized as one of the greatest wireless cities in the country. It is estimated thate every third person is a radio fan.

SEARCHLIGHT DIMS BROADCAST WAVES

Crystal Set User Near Forest Park Reports Music Faded When Rays Crossed K S D Radiation.

An interesting radio phenomenon was reported to the Post-Dispatch last Tuesday by Louis Robin of 6727 Clayton avenue who said that while listening to the program broadcast from a theater by Station KSD Monday night he observed that the radio waves from time to time were intercepted and dimmed by the big electric searchlight which was being tested on Art Hill in Forest Park for use at the international aviation meet.

Robin was listening in on a crystal set while the light was being directed to various parts of the park. He noticed that whenever the beam of light was turned toward his house there was marked fading out of the broadcast music. When the beam was turned away to the east or west or when the beam was thrown upward the music again came in with full strength.

These observations will be of interest as seemingly sustaining the view of many scientists who hold that there is close relation between light waves and electrical waves.

Tubes and Their Care.

Amplifier tubes become "soft" with use. This means that they lose their original vacuum, and as such become less effective as amplifiers. Detectors that are already soft absorb air and lose their natural sensitiveness. But these changes come about very slowly. The four contact prongs on the base of the vacuum should be brushed occasionally with fine sandpaper.

The "B" Battery.

The life of a "B" battery is limited, whether it is actually used or not. In hot weather usually the life of a battery is shorter than in winter. Batteries of small or medium size should last from two to five months, depending on how much they are used and on how many tubes. The larger batteries ordinarily last four or five months; many operators can get a year's service out of a high-grade battery, especially on a single tube set. It is advisable to buy and use only high-grade "B" batteries. They are economical in the long run, and usually insure more quiet operation.

For the Notebook.

The average life of a standard "B" battery is from six to nine months.

Exceptionally long distances are heard late at night or early in the morning.

Good headphones will detect a current as weak as 16 billionths of an ampere.

When soldering connections to jacks do not let the flux run into the insulating segments, as it will form a leak for radio currents.

The "radio drama," a new form of entertainment developed by large broadcasting stations, has an audience of nearly 1,000,000 persons.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

St. Louis agents for De Forest products announce a new supply of Reflex Radiophone sets. The chief features claimed for the receiver are extreme simplicity of operation, the elimination of extraneous noises, a high degree of selectivity and supersensitivity, making possible unusual reception range. Use or a small loop aerial and a vernier variable condenser are responsible for the extreme selectivity claimed for the set. Other De Forest products announced are the 180-degree variocoupler unit and a cobination rheostat and potentiometer. They have also developed a new vacuum tube, DV-6-A, similar to the original DV-6. The tube is of the metallic vapor type and operates on 2½ to 6 volts — (either dry batteries or storage cells). It is also an amplifying tube, operating satisfactorily in power amplifiers of a well-known make. The tube consumes 25 amperes.

Latest of the Dictograph Products is the new Dictogrand, the perfect loud speaker." The horn is of spun copper, similar to the preceding models, mounted over an ebony-finished hardwood cabinet.

This latest type of loud speaker is provided with a means of adjusting the distance between the pole and shoes, thus varying the pull of the magnet on the diaphragm and enabling the instrument to be tuned in complete harmony and resonance with the incoming signals. Each loud speaker is equipped with a 5-foot flexible silk cord and is guaranteed for a period of one year against all electrical or mechanical defects.

A booklet, "How to Build Hazeltine's Neutrodyne Radio Receiver," by E. H. Stark, will be of particular interest to present and future neutrodyne enthusiasts. The descriptive matter is complete, and in the back of the book are to be found actual size panel drilling templates for a five-tube set.

Manufacturers of the Filkostat believe that they have perfected a filament rheostat which will permit perfect regulation of filament current. Use of this rheostat means a longer life for vacuum tubes in its circuit, according to the manufacturers.

The instrument consists of a hollow cylinder containing a special resistant material (so finely divided that no further division is possible) placed between two large adjustable contacts controlled by turning the knob. It is claimed that the operation is absolutely silent, the resistance remaining constant at any position eliminating current variations when the rheostat is once set.

"Teleradio," the smallest of lightning arresters, approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, are now on the St. Louis market.

Some means of testing storage batteries is absolutely necessary for efficient and satisfactory operation of a radio set. The only correct test for a storage battery is by means of a hydrometer, an instrument for determining the specific gravity of the electrolyte. Heretofore, hydrometers have been graduated with a scale of figures, but the Chaslyn is an instrument which is an interesting departure from the ordinary. In place of the usual leaded float the Chaslyn is supplied with three colored balls and their position at the bottom or at the top of the solution in the hydrometer indicates the condition of the battery.

A five-circuit switch plug, known as the "G. W.," is a desirable adjunct to any receiving set. By rotating the dial switch five circuits are obtainable without removing the plug from the jack. They are as follows: "phones" (circuit through the head set alone), "loud speaker" (circuit through the loud speaker alone), "series" (circuit through both loud speaker and head set-in series, "Parallel" (circuit through both loud speaker and head set-in parallel), "Silent" (to silence the loud speaker, avoiding the necessity of "tuning in" again, which is necessary if the plug is withdrawn from the set.

Broadcasting in Sweden.

The status of broadcasting in Sweden is a curious one; the Government has now decided that transmitting stations will be constructed by the State, but will be leased to operating companies. Receiving stations may be established by private persons upon obtaining a license from the Government, Com. Attache H. Sorensen at Copenhagen reports.

Importance of Good Connections.

When making a portable set an amateur should remember that it takes only one good knock to loosen a half dozen connections. Solder them tight and strong.

DENVER SELECTED FOR THIRD G. E. BROADCASTING STATION

Equipment to Have Same Power and Sending Radius as WGY at Schenectady.

Denver, Col., has been selected as the site of a powerful radio broadcasting station by the General Electric Co., according to an announcement made recently by Martin P. Rice, director of broadcasting for that company. Work on the Denver station will be started as soon as the new General Electric Co. station at Oakland, Cal., gets in the air, sometime in December.

Denver will have the third and last station in the G-E program of broadcasting stations. The first, WGY, at Schenectady, N. Y., has been in operation for the past 18 months, and has won a reputation for exceptional quality. Oakland, the second station, is the first to be housed in a structure erected exclusively for broadcasting equipment.

Both the Oakland and Denver stations will be modeled after WGY, so far as equipment is concerned. They will have the same power and sending radius as WGY which, under favorable atmospheric conditions, has been heard on a single transmission in every state in the Union, in England, Hawaii and countries of South America.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Sender.

Q. Would a variable condenser on a crystal set make it possible to tune out unwanted stations? Our aerial is 180 feet long and 50 feet high. I).

A. This can best be determined by experiment. The probabilities are that it would, if connected in series with your aerial.

Q. (1) I have a detector and two stage audio-frequency amplifier made up of standard parts. Do I need a 22½-volt "B" battery for the detector tube and a separate 45-volt "B" battery for the amplifier, or can I use one 45-volt unit for both the detector and amplifier? (2) Are there any 45-volt wet "B" batteries on the market? I have a rectifier and could charge them. (3) If there are no 45-volt wet batteries made, could I use two 24-volt wet batteries? E. A. B.

A. (1) Use one 45-volt unit taking off a tap at 18 or 22½ volts for the plate of the detector. (2) If by "wet" you mean storage cells—yes. What is commonly known as a "wet battery" cannot satisfactorily be used for radio purposes. (3) There are a number of different types of storage "B" batteries on the market which can be recharged the same as a filament battery. Local radio dealers can supply you with details concerning them.

Q. There is a high-tension line carrying 2300 volts which passes over my house, making it impossible to erect an aerial without using a lead-in at least 100 feet in length. How will I manage it? G.S.

A. Use several stages of radio frequency and a loop aerial. However, you might first experiment with an electric light socket plug "antenna" for construction of a cty broadcast-By ths means farly satsfactory results may be obtained.

Q. I am unable to hear distant stations with my set using a WD-11 tube in a regenerative set. A six-volt tube brings in distant signals very well, but when I change to the WD-11 tube, they cannot be heard. The tube works in other sets, and brings in local stations when in my set. The "A" and "B" batteries are new. What is the trouble? R. S.

A. It is possible that you have a very critical tube. Try the 18-volt tap on your plate battery instead of the 22½, and if this does not give the desired results, try varying your grid-leak resistance, which may overcome the difficulty.

Q. (1) I have a single tube reflex set and hear all local stations clearly, but I cannot get any distant stations. I can hear the carrier-wave but cannot tune them in loud enough to understand. My 45-volt "B" battery is new. The aerial is 100 feet long, connected by a 65-foot lead-in. What is the trouble? (2) Which set of taps should the aerial be connected to, the tens or units switch?

R. V. B.

A. (1) Add another 45-volt "B" battery to the one you are using, making a total of 90 volts on the plate. You might also try connecting at 43-plate variable condenser in series with your aerial. (2) Either.

Q. (1) How would a spark coil be connected to be used to test the sensitivity of a crystal detector? (2) Is No. 10 bare copper wire better for an antenna than No. 14 bare copper?

J. McA.

A. (1) Connect a battery to the primary binding posts, and run a wire from one of the secondary terminals in such a manner that it will be in inductive relation to the ground lead of the set. (2) Yes, because of the greater surface presented and consequent less resistance offered to the flow of high frequency currents. No. 10 is seldom used, however, because of its weight. Stranded copper or phosphor bronze wire is preferable to a large-sized solid conductor.

Q. Would it be all right to cover the top of my "A" battery with tar?

V. F.

A. Yes.

Q. Is a grid leak used for "hard" or "soft" tubes? H. A. K.

A. A grid-leak is used in the grid lead of a detector circuit.

Q. Where is station WMAD?

W. A. B.

A. Atchison County Mayor, Rockport, Mo.

Q. Would the crystal manufactured by the company who make reflex transformers work any better in a reflex set than galena? L. M.

A. Yes, because it was designed to withstand heavy voltages.

Q. How many 22½-volt "B" batteries may be connected together in series, with safety? R. R. J.

A. For an amplifier, there is no need of connecting more than four or five in series.

Remove Surplus Solder.

In many cases annoying sounds occurring in the receiver may be due to an excess of soldering paste remaining on the soldered joints. This remaining paste should be carefully wiped off and the connections examined to be certain that all loose pieces of solder are removed, as these are liable to cause short circuits which effectually prevent operation of the set. The soldered connections on the jacks in particular may be easily cleaned of any remaining paste by washing the joints with a soft brush dipped in wood alcohol.

Crystal Amplification.

One or two stages of amplification may be added to a crystal set with good results, but if this installation is contemplated it is advisable also to use a vacuum tube to replace the crystal detector, as batteries for filament heating and plate voltage must be provided for the amplifying stages and are therefore available for use with a detector tube. Sometimes, however, the crystal detector is desirable as the signals are clearer, and reception is less distorted.

When High Notes "Squeak."

A receiving set is not always to blame when some singer "squeaks" on a high note. It frequently happens that the transmitter is at fault, as it is incapable of properly picking up these high notes.

RADIO OF ZR-1 USED DURING TEST FLIGHT

In Constant Communication With Navy Department in Washington During Trip.

The chief purpose of the American-built ZR-1 as an aerial naval scout was demonstrated to the edification of all during the recent test flights when practically every move of the giant Zeppelin was sent to Admiral Moffett by radio. This great helium airship is to be used for scouting and reporting to her base what she sees, one navy expert explained recently, adding that her radio worked perfectly over both short and long distances.

On the day of the initial flight over her home at Lakehurst, Commander McCrary sent the first radio message to Admiral Moffett, Chief of Naval Aeronautics, who was on the ground far below the great airship. The message was picked up in the field radio shack and delivered to the Admiral within a few moments. On the recent trip to New York and return, Admiral Moffett, then at his desk in the Navy Building in Washington, was advised periodically by radio of her progress by radio. "It is of special interest," Secretary Denby said in an interview, "that the Navy Department was in constant communication with the ZR-1 by radio." Her position was accurately reported at frequent intervals and full information was given of operating conditions aboard.

In this connection, it is of further interest to realize what this will mean when she journeys farther afield on exploration work. Admiral Moffett has reiterated the program planned after her trials are completed, including a flight to the North Pole, if practical. This it is now hoped can be undertaken by next spring. Such flights to hitherto unaccessible parts of the world for exploration and discovery, Admiral Moffett has not doubt can be made with success, if she is handled carefully. Continued communication with the Navy Department would insure quick aid from airplanes in the event of accidents. Further flights are planned in the immediate future to cities of the East and it is expected that the Capital will be among the cities soon to be visited. Radio will again serve in these flights to keep the ZR-1 in touch with headquarters either at Lakehurst or Washington.

ACTING SECRETARY OF NAVY MAKES RADIO ADDRESS

The following abstract is from an address recently delivered in Washington, D. C., by Col. Roosevelt, Acting Secretary of the Navy. The occasion was the opening of the new broadcasting station WRC.

"The navy started its experiments on radio about the time Marconi gave his first public demonstrations. More than 20 years ago a radio station was installed at the Navy Yard here in Washington. The flag pole by the commandant's house was used to support the antenna, and messages were sent from there to Annapolis, where a flag pole likewise was used to receive. After this, the development went by leaps and bounds.

"Our first big radio station, built to communicate with the fleet, was the Arlington Station. Like all other developments, it took a considerable length of time to get under way.

"At the present day, radio telephony is considered the ordinary thing. I don't suppose there is a member in the audience tonight who knows that the first modern radio telephone broadcast was transmitted from our station at Arlington as long ago as 1915. This broadcasting has not been the result of one brilliant idea by some genius; it has been developed step by step through laborious investigation and experiment. In 1915 the radio messages broadcasted by Arlington were picked up in Paris on the one hand and in Honolulu on the other. The success of the experiment largely contributed to the development of the science. These are only a few striking instances of what the navy has done for radio from day to day during the past 20 years."

For the Notebook.

Spark signals from Arlington can easily be heard over 200 miles with a crystal detector.

It requires a lot of skill and practice to intelligently work a three-circuit receiving set.

Large guns on battleships of the American navy can now be discharged by means of radio from shore or airplane.

The audion bulb, one type of detector used in radio sets, is said to be the modern "Aladdin's Lamp" of science.

An ingenous radio receiving set has been developed that makes a written record of code signals that come in during the operator's absence by means of an ordinary fountain pen.

A radio set will act differently at different times and under varying conditions, but this is the time of the year when reception is good.

Clogged-Up? Here's Quick Aid

NEVER mind what you are using now for constipation. For all you know there is a better remedy! The next time you are clogged-up try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a laxative successfully used for 30 years, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Mrs. John A. Goins of Butlerville, Ind., constipated all her life, her stomach injured from years of pill taking, is now functioning daily since taking Syrup Pepsin; and Mr. David O'Connor of Canton, Ohio, suffering steadily for three years, got relief after a few doses. The list of successful users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is naturally large as over 10 million bottles are sold annually.

Formula on Every Package

Get yourself a bottle at a drug store, the cost being less than a cent a dose. Take a spoonful at bedtime for a few nights and we guarantee that the most chronic constipation will be relieved, or refund your money. A few doses in succession soon train the stomach muscles to act for themselves. Many, however, take it once a week and in that way keep the bowels regularly open. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, unlike harsh physics such as calomel, "candy cathartics," salt waters and powders, is a simple vegetable laxative composed of Egyptian senna and pepsin with tasty aromatics, which are entirely harmless.

This Remedy Guaranteed

It has been accurately proven that a constipated person is only 75 per cent efficient. It slows you up; makes you dull and lazy. Take Syrup Pepsin the first day you do not have complete bowel movement. Take it, guaranteed, for constipation, torpid liver, dyspepsia, biliousness, sour stomach, headache, lack of appetite. A spoonful at the first sneeze or sniffle will kill a cold overnight. Half the ailments of winter start with constipation followed by a cold.

COLUMBIA CONTINUES LIBERTY PRODUCTION

DETROIT, Sept. 22.—Having acquired the plant and assets of the Liberty Motor Car Co., Detroit, the Columbia Motor Car Co. is to go into immediate production on a full line of 1924 models of Columbia and Liberty sixes. Liberty models will be priced above Columbia so as to avoid competition. Delivery of Liberty cars by Oct. 1 is planned.

The new combination merchandising plan evolved by the company gives present Columbia dealers a wide range of sales opportunities, prices on the double line ranging from $985 up to $2000.

In all, nine models of Columbia cars and six models on Liberty chassis will be offered.

TRAFFIC TRANSMISSION NEW CHANDLER FEATURE

Clash-Proof Gearset on 1924 Models Said to End "Shifting" Difficulties; Works at Any Speed.

"Greatest Advance in Motor Car Engineering" —J. D. Perry Lewis

J. D. Perry Lewis, president of the Lewis Automobile Co., Chandler distributors in this territory, returned last Wednesday morning from a trip to the factory at Cleveland, where he had the unusual experience of riding in the 1924 Chandler with Traffic transmission. "In my more than 20 years of experience with the motor car business, I have never seen anything to equal this new traffic transmission, as an advancement in motor car engineering," said Lewis upon his return. "The performance is marvelous. Just think, no more fumbling of gears, no bad shifting, no clashing. It's the most wonderful improvement I ever saw."

"A transmission that absolutely ends clashing and stripping of gears in changing speed, and enables the most inexperienced driver to change instantly from high gear to second or low, regardless of car and engine speed, is the feature of the Chandler Six for 1924," says J. D. Perry Lewis president of the Lewis Automobile Co. Lewis mades public today the announcement of the new models.

The 1924 Chandler brings improvements in the Pikes Peak Motor, which has won a foremost place in performance records since it was introduced last January, and enhanced body styles in a great variety of colors. The price remains unchanged.

Because the new Chandler gear masters city traffic difficulties, it has been named the "Traffic Transmission." Like the Pikes Peak motor, it is built in its entirety at the Chandler factory, licensed under the Campbell patents.

It is generally admitted that the shifting of gears is the most difficult operation that a driver must perform. It is particularly a hardship for women, but even the most experienced driver occasionally clashes gears in shifting, while the number of drivers skillful enough to shift infallibly from high gear into second while going at good speed is extremely small.

The Chandler engineers assert flatly that the Traffic Transmission not only makes gear changing as easy as steering, but that it introduces new elements of safety, convenience and comfort in motoring.

Chief of the advantages of the new unit is its availability in emergencies. In descending a steep hill, the safest way to keep the car under control is to have the car in gear, either in second or low. Most drivers know this, yet this expedient cannot be used unless the necessity for it is forseen before the descent is begun, as once the car attains any considerable speed, it is impossible with the ordinary transmission to change to a lower gear. Then, if the brakes fail to hold, or burn out, the descent is uncontrolled. With the Traffic Transmission, however, second or low speed gears may be thrown in action at any time, effectively holding the car.

Clashing or grinding of gears, with the consequent chipping or stripping of the gear teeth, cannot occur with the new transmission because the gears are always in mesh. The change of speeds is effected by causing any desired gear to take hold of the shaft, and this action is obtained by moving the gear shift lever exactly as heretofore. The change is made silently, positively, and as quickly as one can operate the shifting lever.

The principal improvement in the famous Pikes Peak motor announced by Chandler consists of a change in the oiling system, which is now entirely a pressure feed. The change has a notable silencing effect, as the connecting rods now operate against a cushioning film of oil under high pressure, and vibrations are deadened. Increased power is gained, with longer life for the bearings. Other changes are mainly slight modifications in design to effect greater silence, power and smoothness, or to provide for easier maintenance.

Though all Chandler bodies were brand new last January, the 1924 line has been considerably improved in appearance. The characteristic Chandler lines remain the same, but a few deft touches have greatly enhanced their beauty. The distinguishing mark of the 1924 model is a polished aluminum bead between the cowl and the hood. The bead is attached to the cowl, and besides adding to the looks of the car, it serves as protection to the body finish when the hood is raised and lowered.

On all open models, guard pads of polished aluminum have been added, to save the apron from being scuffed by the feet of passengers.

It is in the colors and striping that the newest effects are to be seen. Besides the two dark colors that have been standard during the present year, the purchaser is given the option of additional colors for almost any model. The colors now used are dark blue, dark green, maroon, light blue, red, and light green. Each model now has distinctive striping in gold.

All models have been continued. The closed cars include the limousine and three sedans—the chummy, two-door five passenger; Metropolitan, four door, five passengers; and the seven passenger sedan. The open cars are the four-passenger roadster, the four-passenger Royal Dispatch, sports model; and two touring cars, five-passengers and seven passengers.

The Traffic transmission, despite its revolutionary advance, makes no difference in the appearance of the cars, and no difference in the manners of shifting gears. In fact, were a driver to start off in one of the new Chandlers without any knowledge that the new device had been adopted, he would note no difference except the extraordinary ease with which he can change gears.

The Traffic transmission is not in the least similar to any other device, such as mechanical gear shifts, which move sliding gears of the ordinary transmission by mechanical power.

Is is remarkable that the improvement has been attained so simply. In the old transmission, the gears were free to slide along the shaft, but the shaft was squared or grooved so that the gears always turned with it. In the Traffic transmission, the arrangement is reversed. The gears are always in mesh, and do not slide lengthwise on the shaft, but the shaft is left free to turn within the gears. Any desired gear is thrown into operation by the shifting lever, which locks the selected gear wheel to the shaft, causing the latter to revolve.

HUDSON ANNOUNCES PRICE REDUCTION

The Hudson Motor Car Co. last week announced reduced prices on the Hudson super-six models. In making the announcement through the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., the Hudson factory also stated, in order to kill rumors that "the only Hudson we will produce in 1924 will be the car you know so well, the famous Hudson super-six."

108 Cities Have Bus Lines.

There are 108 cities in the country that use bus lines and at the present time more than 40,000 busses are in operation. Twelve thousand schools make use of them. Fifty-six street railways, together with 40 railroads have them as adjunets to their main lines.

Double Braking Efficiency
Buick Four-Wheel Brakes

Buick four-wheel brakes, because they double the braking service brought into action, increase the braking efficiency of the car practically 100 per cent.

The action is simple, positive and rapid. A slight pressure on the service pedal (the method of operation is unchanged) and all four wheels are retarded—the car is quickly, smoothly and safely brought to a stop. With these proved Buick four-wheel brakes a stop is made in a much shorter distance with a minimum of skidding danger.

Obtaining braking friction at four contacts with the road increases the braking power and lessens the wear on each brake lining and each tire.

The 1924 Buick Models, with four-wheel brakes, a more powerful engine, beautiful new bodies and numerous other advantages and features fully exemplify the Buick policy of incorporating every improvement that will give greater safety, comfort and satisfaction to the owner.

DODGE BROTHERS TOURING CAR

In city traffic or on the open road, this new touring car impresses you instantly with its exceptional riding comfort.

The seats are deeper and lower. The body has been lengthened to afford more leg-room. Its low-swung design reduces side sway and increases the car's stability at all speeds.

The front springs are wider, and built of more, and thinner leaves; the rear springs—now underslung—have been materially increased in length.

In fact, the comfort of the car is comparable in every way with its good looks and the well known character of its performance.

By taking out the inner tubes once in every two months and reversing their position in the tire, the danger of having the tubes rubbed through by the edges of the rim, or by other slight projections in the casing, is removed.

An old-time safety director of an automobile driver's school recommends that all motorists should test their brakes at least bi-weekly. Brakes in poor shape can usually be told by squeaks and a loose feeling.

No Makeshift Seating Arrangement

THERE is no makeshift seating arrangement to the Gardner Brougham.

In the wide, solid front seat the driver and the extra occupant ride in real comfort. No inconvenient, uncomfortable and complicated folding-chair or camp-stool contrivances.

A wide rear door permits easy and direct access to the roomy, comfortable rear seat, where there is ample room for three people.

The superiority of this seating arrangement and riding comfort of the Gardner Brougham are distinctly noticeable when compared with the so-called Coach or close-coupled body, 2-door car. Ride in both types of cars and be impressed with that fact.

MILTON IN H. C. S. BREAKS RECORDS

H. C. S. won another victory on Saturday, Sept. 15, when Tommy Milton broke the world's records for a one-mile dirt track, in the 100-mile race held at the New York State fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y. All records from 25 to 100 miles were broken in Milton's sensational drive, the time for the 100 miles being 1 hour, 15 minutes and .33 of a second, making an average of 79.994 miles per hour, or practically 80 miles per hour for the 100 miles.

Only one H. C. S. car was entered in a field consisting of 10 cars.

Milton took the lead in the twenty-third lap and was never headed off throughout the balance of the race, finishing over two and one-half laps ahead of Harts in a Durant Special.

At the conclusion of the 100-mile race Milton ran an exhibition mile in an attempt to break the world's dirt track record, which he did very handily on his second lap, running a mile in the remarkable time of 42.28 seconds, or an average speed of 85.14 miles per hour. This is more than 14 minutes faster than the previous dirt-track record, made by Hearne in 1919 with a car of larger cubic displacement than the H. C. S. Special.

HEADLIGHT TESTS DRAW BIG CROWDS

For four evenings last week, from Monday to Thursday, Sept. 17 to 20, Joseph Burns, official State auto light inspector, has been working with Manager John O. Lowell of the Vesper Buick maintenance division between the hours of 7 and 9 p. m. inspecting and approving headlights on Buick automobiles.

Manager Lowell has had a staff of 12 mechanics on duty between those two hours and the adjustment and focusing of headlights has been done free of all cost to Buick owners.

The official stickers have been applied to the headlights showing that they comply with the city and county regulations.

Beginning with Monday night a continuous stream of Buick cars drove into the Vesper Buick maintenance division and at one time the cars were lined up from Vandeventer to Sarah street, although the headlights were being adjusted as rapidly as the large force could handle them. The average attendance each night has been over 200 cars.

VICTOR'S "LIGHTNIN'" SHOWN AT SPRINGFIELD

Victor trucks, manufactured by Victor Motors, Inc., of St. Louis, entered the Illinois field last week through the medium of the State Fair at Springfield, and attracted much attention from the merchants, farmers and visitors in that territory, according to advice received by the Victor officials here.

"Lightnin," the speed job of the Victor company, was driven to Springfield in charge of two company representatives in time to be placed on exhibit at the Fair Grounds.

According to a wire received Friday from J. H. Corray, one of the Victor representatives, visitors at the fair were very favorably impressed with "Lightnin." Corray, in his wire, stated "Seldom in this district has the appearance of a new truck created as much comment and enthusiasm, according to truck men here. Hundreds of visitors examined it carefully and complimented highly. A number of retail orders placed, and several dealer contracts taken."

Rickenbacker
A CAR WORTHY OF ITS NAME

For The Safety Of Yourself and Loved Ones

Now comes the season of skidding.

The fall and winter months, with the frequent rains and sleet are just ahead—and winter cold only a little farther beyond.

4-Wheel Brakes afford you a sense of security you have never known before.

Just think!—Is there a more helpless feeling than that you experience when your car starts to skid and you are unable to control it?

How much greater then is your concern when "she" is driving. In this latest Rickenbacker Six with 4-Wheel Brakes there is not the slightest tendency to skid.

4-Wheel Brakes prevent skidding.

Even when brakes are vigorously—even viciously—applied on a wet asphalt pavement the car stops in an amazingly short space and always headed in the way you want to go.

That last is the most important of all, perhaps—that your car continue to go wherever you direct—until you stop it.

For, after all, brakes are not your only safety factor.

Easy steering is of equal importance.

For example—you suddenly meet another car. You may be able to stop—but the other fellow may have only two brakes and poor ones at that.

So, you turn aside at the same time that you apply your brakes.

That's when you best appreciate your Rickenbacker 4-Wheel Brakes.

For—so perfect is the equalization—these brakes do not in the slightest interfere with steering.

You simply do not know they are there—so far as the steering goes.

Rickenbacker always was "the easiest car in the world to steer."

Because Rickenbacker was the first to use ball bearings in steering spindles.

With 4-Wheel Brakes, Rickenbacker steers just as easily.

That's the ideal all engineers are seeking.

Rickenbacker first found the solution.

That is why Rickenbacker leads in this as in so many other features of advanced engineering.

Which fact is important to you at this time.

You need a better—a warmer—a safer—car for the coming fall and winter months.

Very well, select the one that, a year from now, will still be the height of fashion.

Rickenbacker always has been a year ahead of all others.

Not only in design and finish—though you will agree that Rickenbacker enclosed models are the smartest you have ever seen, as well as the most comfortable you have ever ridden in.

But also in engineering refinements. This product is still one to three years in advance of all others.

For example; it is two years since Rickenbacker first called attention to "Periods of Vibration"—and stated it had at last been eliminated by a Rickenbacker invention the "Tandem Fly Wheel."

And now—in the last few weeks—other makers are featuring various substitutes for this same "Tandem Fly Wheel."

In this, rival engineers pay the highest compliment to Rickenbacker.

—the Air Cleaner—which doubles the life of the motor and prevents excessive deposits of carbon.

—the "Double Depth" frame (8" side rails) which affords better support and therefore makes a closed body noiseless.

—ball bearings in steering spindles—first criticized as "too sensitive," and now copied by those very critics because this Rickenbacker proved "the easiest steering car in the world."

July first Rickenbacker announced 4-Wheel Brakes as an essential, built-in feature of a motor car.

We said then that others must follow—for buyers, once informed, would refuse to accept any autombile without this safety factor.

Well!—to date four of the most prominent makers—of the most famous cars too—have announced. 4-Wheel Brakes.

So when you select this car, you know you are as far in advance of others in engineering improvements and in style, as is the lady just home from Paris by comparison with her neighbor whose gowns are made by the community seamstress.

For your own safety, convenience and comfort you need a new car—built to meet the traffic problems of today.

That car of yesterday will no longer serve your needs.

For the safety of your loved ones—and your own peace of mind—one of the latest Rickenbacker Six enclosed models is ideal.

No—nothing else will take the place of brakes on all four wheels.

Size of drums does not matter—nor tire size either.

If only two points in contact with the road can be controlled by brakes—that's all you have. And you have always had that!

4-Wheel Brakes—brakes on all points in contact with the road—is the only real solution of today's traffic problem.

Prove it for yourself—the proof is conclusive.

Two minutes at the wheel will give you the answer to all the "anti" propaganda of the "Tag-Alongs."

Drive this Rickenbacker once—and you will never be content until you own one.

But—don't delay Output is limited—demand tremendous.

Today—won't be a minute too soon.

USE OF AUTOMOBILES STEADILY INCREASING

Bureau of Public Roads Investigation Shows Registration Increases Are Steady—New York Still Largest User.

The report of the United States Bureau of Public Roads to the Department of Commerce at Washington just issued, shows the number of motor vehicles licensed in the United States during the first six months of 1923, in comparison with reports of previous years.

It was shown that in all but nine States the registration for the first six months of this year had exceeded that of the entire year 1922. It was clearly evidenced that no State would fail to exceed its 1922 registration quota.

The grand total on July 1, of motor vehicle registration throughout the Country was 13,002,247. This represents an increase of 764,052 since the first of the year. Registration and nonresident registration have been comensated for in the figures.

Trucks and commercial cars now number 1,371,059. The increase since January 1, is 92,254. The rate of increase is greater than that of the total registration for all vehicles.

Of the grand total, passenger cars number 11,571,181; taxicabs, buses and cars for hire 60,188; trailers number 24,111; and motorcycles 141,521, though these two classes are not included in the grand total.

New York still leads in total registration and Ohio is now second, superseding California. For the six months' period, New York registered 1,025,718, Ohio 965,000, and California 932,808 cars. Pennsylvania is next with 922,062, and Illinois follows with 833,920; Michigan with 624,590, and Texas with 571,981.

Total revenue from motor car registration was $167,240,937.76 for the first six months as compared with $152,047,823.74 for 1922. States collected in gasoline taxes $8,669,-174.03.

Taxi Figures.

From figures recently compiled, taxi transportation consumes nearly 1,000,000 casings per year in the United States; 325,000 inner tubes; 202,000,000 gallons of gasoline; 300,-000 demountable rims, with vast supplies of brake lining, spark plugs, batteries, oil, grease, piston rings, etc.

TENNIS CHAMPION RECEIVES A BUICK

That the American championship status of Helen Wills, whom Vincent Richards aptly designates "the diminutive California tennis marvel," is not unappreciated at home, is emphasized by the fact that Papa Wills has just presented her with a new 1924 Buick Six.

The little American 17-year-old queen of the courts, was, perhaps, influenced in her selection of a Buick by world's champion William M. Johnston, who also depends upon a Buick to take him "there and back."

GMC TRUCK TURNS INTO RAILWAY CAR

The most unique adaptation of the motor truck has been made by the Texas City Terminal Railway Co., in rebuilding the chassis of a GMC truck so that it becomes a railway car.

This chassis was rebuilt by the Houston distributers of General Motors Truck Co. of Pontiac, Mich., and has proved most effective.

A GMC chassis was taken, the wheels removed and regular flange railway wheels, including the pony trucks, were installed in place of the standard wheels.

Next a cow-catcher was built over the front end of the truck in the same manner that a locomotive was equipped. A special coach body, similar to that of a railway car, was then built. This coach accommodates 20 passengers, and there is a 3000-pound baggage compartment. The car has straight sides, arched roof, stationary top sashes, and the lower half of the windows drop into the body.

The truck was rebuilt as the result of a demand for increased railway equipment to carry employes to and from construction work outside of Houston.

Gasoline Being Economized.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Though the rate of increase in the registration of new cars is higher than at any time in the country's history, gasoline consumption, according to the U. S. Bureau of Mines, is not increasing on the same ratio. This is pointed to by Firestone tire men as indicating that car owners are becoming more economical in their use of gasoline and are watching their engines.

NEW DODGE BROTHERS CAR IS EASY RIDING

It doesn't take an owner long to detect the remarkable riding qualities of the new Dodge Bros. motor cars, according to Frank R. Tate, local Dodge Bros. dealer.

The cars have been tried out now by owners over every kind of going and the riding comfort has been demonstrated thoroughly. It is felt in both the front and rear seats, regardless of position or road conditions. There is no questioning the feeling of unusual comfort and the definite impression of stability and solidity which contribute so materially to satisfaction in driving.

The splendid riding comfort is due largely to the type of rear spring suspension employed. The rear springs, which are extremely long, are underslung. Also, the fact that the body has been lengthened and lowered tends to make the car cling more firmly to the road.

NEW TRUCK BUILT BY GRAY FACTORY

Milton L. Strauss of the Anderson-Strauss Co., has received the announcement of the new Gray truck. "Aside from its heavier construction for truck duty," says Strauss, "the general specifications of the new Gray truck are similar to those of Gray passenger cars.

"Several features of the Gray truck are unusual in light truck construction—such as the extra length and rigidity of the frame with two tubular cross members, unusually large brake drums, heavy construction of the rear axle and differential housing, the low speed, low compression motor, and many other features."

MOST ACCIDENTS AT FIVE O'CLOCK P. M.

Analysis of vehicular accident records obtained from various sources, and considered accurate, indicates that 5 o'clock in the evening is the hour of greatest danger to careless motorists in metropolitan centers, according to W. P. Herod, head of the Lexington Motor Co. at Connersville, Ind.

"More than 20 per cent of the major accidents occurring in city streets are reported between 5 and 7 o'clock in the evening," says the Lexington official.

"This is contrary to what is perhaps popular opinion. On first thought one would probably imagine that the greatest number of serious traffic accidents occurred after dark when low visibility, blinding headlights, joy riding and other conditions would combine to run up the total. The contrary, however, is true. The evening rush hours witness the climax of the day's mishaps.

"Fewest accidents occur between 3 and 7 o'clock in the morning. After 7 the accident curve starts abruptly upward until it reaches its morning peak between 10 and 11 o'clock, when .042 per cent of accidents happen.

"In the interest of safety—which is the interest of every man and woman who drives—drive carefully always, but be particularly careful after 5 o'clock. Even though dinner is waiting and the bridge club meets at your house in the evening."

Will Campbell, flying British colors, broke the world's auto speed records at Copenhagen recently with a speed of 126 miles per hour. He drove a 350-horses power car.

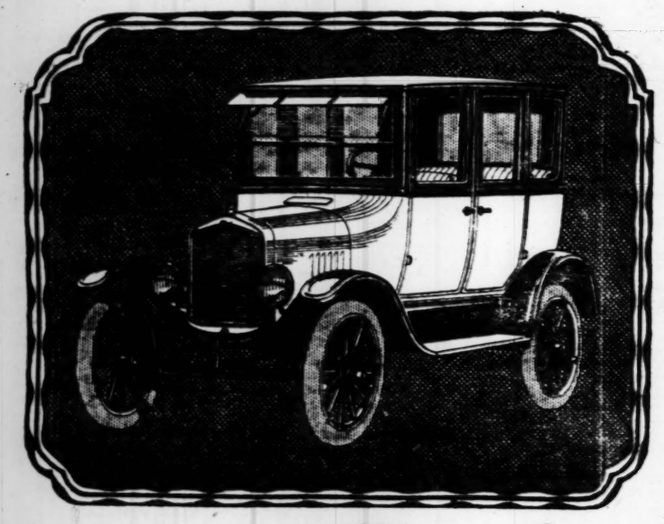
THE UNIVERSAL CAR



New Sedan

Changes featured in the new Ford Sedan make it a better looking, roomier car.

A higher radiator with a trim apron at its base lends dignity befitting a closed car. The higher hood and enlarged cowl curving gracefully to the dash give a stylish sweep to its body lines, and afford additional leg room for occupants of the front seat.

All body fittings—window regulators, door grips, door latch levers, door lock, dome light—are finished in nickel. The upholstery carries a fine dark line on a soft brown background that does not easily show dust or dirt. Silk window curtains to harmonize for the three rear windows enhance the style of the car and add to the comfort of its passengers. PAIGE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

All Women Envy Her this Paige Brougham

Irresistible Performance—Luxurious Comfort—Smart Style

The Paige Brougham glides through traffic at 2 miles an hour in high or as fast as you like over the open highway. So smooth—so silent—you scarcely know the big Paige motor is running until the light pressure of your foot brings instant response in flashing speed. Paige takes easily in "high" hills that stall most other cars. Paige pulls swiftly away from others in traffic—passes them on the road, if you please.

Paige performance is readily understood—more power for its weight than other cars, gives more ability. How Paige does perform for any driver!—with its non-stalling, smooth clutch; ball-bearing steering-spindles; and easy, quiet gear shifting.

Paige Brougham rides as you have probably never ridden before. Rear springs more than 5 feet long gently absorb shocks. Snubbers front and rear stop rebound. 131 inches of wheelbase ignore bumps. On any road Paige rides more smoothly than you ever thought any car could.

Five passengers find enjoyable roominess in this Paige Brougham. Soft, deeply cushioned seats give delightful ease. The right hand front chair moves to permit easy entrance to rear seats. What woman but would envy the rich finishings and perfect conveniences:

Upholstery of costly fabric; etched, silvered dome and quarter-lights; silk shades; elaborately fitted vanity case. Against the sudden onslaught of rain, the automatic windshield wiper preserves clear vision ahead. The backward panorama of the road and its traffic changes are duplicated in the rear view mirror; and when dainty foot presses the brake a red light warns those behind to greater caution.

Still more comforts for mind and body! A gasoline gauge on the dash warns of approaching need, a Waltham clock of fleeting time. A chartreuse colored glass visor protects view and softens glare. Electric cigarette lighter laughs at forgotten matches. Ample space in locked compartment for golf clubs or luggage—trunk rack in rear for heavy baggage. And Paige bodies never embarrass with squeaks or rattles for double strips of patent leather keep metal from touching metal or wood.

Look at the list below of standard equipment on Paige. All accessories you would want for any car. Most would charge $300 additional for them—no extra cost on Paige. Remember this when considering other cars. You will see that the Paige Brougham at $2850, Detroit, gives more than comparable cars at $3500. Quantity production on the Paige-built Jewett practically eliminates overhead on the Paige. This saving comes to you in value we believe unequalled.

Let us show you this Paige Brougham at your door or on our floor. Just telephone or call for a demonstration. You drive—mark its performance under your own guidance. There is no obligation to buy, of course. If desired—convenient purchase terms may be arranged. (su)

Jordan and Judson Fly.

Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Co., was the guest of R. W. Judson, president of the Continental Motors Corp., in a fishing expedition to the Upper Great Lakes in the flying boat of the latter. Jordan has a log book filled to repletion with the thrills and experiences of the trip. The last sportsman's frontier, in the region between Michipicoten Harbor and Heron Bay, was explored and fished. The region is not readily accessible excepting by the use of the flying boat.

NEW TEMPLAR COMPANY FORMED IN CLEVELAND

Announcement has just ben made of tre formation of a new automobile manufacturing concern to be known as The Templar Motor Car Co., incorporated under the laws of Ohio, with offices and factory located at Cleveland. The new company will have a paid-in capital of $2,500,000, preferred 7 per cent cumulative, and in addition 100,000 shares of non-par common.

The personnel of the organization consists of men thoroughly experienced in the automotive field, headed by T. L. Hausmann as president. Hausmann has been associated with the automobile industry for many years and is looked upon as a man of unusual ability along automotive lines. According to Hausmann the concern is entirely new in personnel, having no connection of any kind with the former company known as The Templar Motors Co. No official of the latter firm is interested in the new organization as on official or otherwise.

In addition to four-cylinder models, plans now practically mature call for the manufacture of a complete list of six-cylinder cars with four-wheel brakes as a prominent feature.

There are about 265,000 miles of railroad in the United States as against approximately 400,000 miles of highway.

HORSE'S POWER MORE THAN ONE HORSE POWER

Tests conducted at the experiment station of Iowa State College, also in England, show that some horses can generate eight horse-power when loaded with weights on their withers. Without such weight the horse's maximum pulling power has been gauged to be equal to six horse-power.

Tests are soon to be made by associations such as the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and the Horse Association of America, of the comparative power and efficiency of the draft horse and motor truck. So far it has been shown that road surfaces greatly affect pulling power and that teams can pull nearly three times as much on a concrete road as on a dirt highway.

One of the most impressive facts in the motor car world today is that no American motor car, regardless of price, excels the New Peerless Eight in performance, dependability, beauty and comfort.

It is a fact established, first, by the experience, skill and care with which the New Peerless is built.

Second, by the severest of all comparisons—the comparisons made by owners themselves.

And it is confirmed on every hand by the enthusiastic testimony of those who enjoy the satisfaction of New Peerless ownership.

Be as exacting in your demands as you like—we are confident that the New Peerless will not only meet all your expectations, but far surpass them, in every element of fine motoring.

SAM S. PRIMM, Pres.

Bomont 1840 Central 321

Seven months ago, I'll admit that I expected something extraordinary in the way of performance and service from my new Peerless, if it were to excel my previous eight cars, all costing more than my present Peerless car. I have driven automobiles for fourteen years and believe I have put them to the severest kinds of tests as I do a great deal of fishing and drive over many unmade, so-called roads.

In the seven months that I have owned my new Peerless, I have driven 14,803 miles. I have had to change but one tire. Perhaps the finest tribute I can pay this wonderful car is that after 11,000 miles of driving I made an eastern trip of 3228 miles without any preparation or any repair work having been done on the car other than oiling and greasing, and the car made the entire trip without my having seen the engine once. I used 261 gallons of gasoline, 8 gallons of engine oil and 4 gallons of water. 175 miles of this touring was through mountainous country, during which driving I didn't put a single drop of water in the radiator.

Each car I have owned has excelled in some one feature, but I have found in my experience with the new Peerless that it leads in every phase of performance. The biggest feature about the Peerless is the fact that it is economical to drive. It has cost me, I judge, 60% less to run than any other car I have ever used.

CLOSED CARS 62 PER CENT OF GARDNER SALES

"Shipments from the Gardner factory during August, were the largest single month's shipment since May, although production during the intervening months has been highly gratifying," says Russel E. Gardner Jr. of the Gardner Motor Co., Inc.

"Although there has been a very active demand for open car models, and particularly for the Radio Special touring, more closed cars were shipped in August than in any other one month during the history of our organization. This very substantial increase is largely attributable to the popularity of a complete line of 1924 closed models, consisting of a sedan, a business coupe, and an altogether new model, a three-four, five-passenger brougham.

Over 62 per cent of our August shipments," states Gardner, "were closed cars, and orders already on file at the factory indicate, that while shipments for the month of September will equal August records, there will be a further increase in the percentage of closed cars shipped."

COUNTY FAIRS SEE THE TRAFFIC TRUCK

The Traffic Truck Corporation has been showing their line of trucks at county fairs. C. A. Aldrich, city sales manager, reports that the Traffic Dual Transmission created quite a sensation with the crowds.

A dual transmission chassis with a 4500-pound concrete block mounted on it was used in the demonstration. The truck was started in a circular course, gears put in double low and the truck allowed to travel this circular course without a driver. At intervals of 12 feet there was a 12x12-inch block placed in the path of the truck, and the ease with which the truck climbed over these blocks without a driver or anyone near it amazed the crowds.

STUDEBAKER PASSES 1922 SALES RECORD

With four months remaining in 1923, the Studebaker Corporation has already surpassed its entire production for 1922, according to a report just received from the Studebaker factory by Ed. Weber, president of the Weber Motor Car Co., local Studebaker dealer. Production for the first eight months of 1923 was 110,540 cars as compared with 109,222 for the full calendar year of 1922.

August production was 15,700 cars, and broke all previous records. Production for the first eight months of 1923 was more than 32,000 in excess of the first eight months of last year.

Sales are expected to exceed 150,000 cars this year as against 110,268 last year. And they are well ahead of production which amounts to about 30,000 cars for the first two months of the present quarter as compared with 30,199 for the full third quarter last year.

All plants are running at capacity to meet the continuous, large demand for Studebaker cars from all sections of the country, and indications point to a heavy fall business. The sales of the last four months of this year will therefore represent this year's increase over the 1922 record.

My Earliest Recollections of Motor Cars

By R. C. FRAMPTON,
President Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co.

One of the first motor cars to be purchased and operated in the city of Pittsburg, Pa., was a small Pierce-Arrow car, which was bought by my chum in 1899 and which afforded us a great deal of lively entertainment at that time, as well as amusement for the entire neighborhood. This small car was built very much like a buggy or small brougham and the power plant was a small Delion French single-cylinder motor, which, together with the transmission, was mounted directly on the rear axle of the car. The steering was by means of a transverse shaft.

We first ran this car about the neighborhood on the level streets, but were greatly hampered by the crowds which would gather every time we stopped. Repairs and adjustments were frequently needed on the car and these were always followed with a great deal of interest by the onlookers.

We then decided to drive out in the country with this car to get away from the crowds and also to get a chance to open it up and see what speed could be attained. The country there is hilly in character and when we got back in the country we discovered it was necessary to help push the car up the hills.

Whe discovered this particularly on our return trip when we encountered the steepest hills. It was fine going down, but tough coming up. Of course, someone had to sit in the car and steer. We took turns about pushing until we were both exhausted by our hill-climbing exertions, and finally on the last hills we had to get a small boy to sit in the car and steer and we both had to help push in order to get the car up. I remember on one of the level stretches we opened the car up to its utmost speed and were greatly enthused when we reached the enormous speed of 20 miles per hour. The car had such a short wheelbase and the steering was so inadequate that even at this speed we actually ran great risks of turning the car over, yet for that time, which was in the year 1899, a 20-mile-per-hour speed was unusual.

I shall never forget the amount of interest created by this car every time we took it out. Sometimes hundreds of people would follow us and endeavor to keep up with the car, many of them, no doubt, hoping for a breakdown, so they could get another opportunity for a "close-up."

In 1922, class one railroads paid $800,000,000 in taxes as against special taxes paid by automotive transportation of $340,000,000.

AUGUST PRODUCTION A NEW BUICK RECORD

The wheels of the great Buick plant are humming as they never hummed before at this season of the year, according to word just received by F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Vesper-Buick Company, Buick distributers.

The demand for 1924 models has been so insistent that everybody in Flint bears that smile that only accompanies prosperity. For more than a year this condition has prevailed around the Buick plant.

In fact, the story of last fall, when all Buick daily, weekly, monthly and quarterly records were broken, is already being dwarfed. President H. H. Bassett states that in the month of August more than 16,250 automobiles were produced, this figure exceeding that of August, 1922, by nearly 5000. On Aug. 31 the Buick daily production record of all time was broken with 872 cars. In September it is predicted that the August record will be broken.

Turn Down Insurance Law.

Car owners who have been alarmed this year by a general report that the states almost universally have determined to adopt a compulsory automobile liability insurance law may breathe easier in the assurance, says a Firestone bulletin, that there is little chance for such legislation at this time. Not a single state has passed such a measure as applying to individually owner cars.

SCHNURE COMPANY TO HANDLE BUICK

The Vesper Buick Auto Co. has just announced, effective Sept. 24, the appointment of the Schnure Motor Co., 2938-50 Olive street as a Buick retail distributor in the St. Louis Metropolitan District.

Herman L. Schnure is president of the company and has with him the well organized sales and service force which has handled Velie and Westcott automobiles in the St. Louis territory for some time.

The distributorship of both of these lines has been given up by the Schnure organization, but for the present they will service such cars as they have sold in the past, in addition to Buicks. The Schnure company owns its own building and will continue operations in this same location which they have occupied for a number years.

Herman Schnure has been actively engaged in the automobile business in St. Louis since 1904. Between 1904 and 1915 he was associated at different times with dealers handling the Pierce-Arrow, Marmon and Cadillac automobiles. It is a strange coincident that he sold Buicks in 1904 for the Western Automobile Co., who had the Buick agency for a short time. In 1915 he took over the Velie agency in St. Louis and has handled this line as distributor in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois for the past eight years.

H. & H. Cylinder Grinding H. & H.

The reconditioning of the engine after the car has been driven about 15,000 miles is the primary factor in prolonging car life. The speed at which pistons travel wears the cylinders, pistons and rings, so that the compression is not maintained and the engine is consequently only developing a portion of its full efficiency and becomes NOISY.

The regrinding and truing up of the worn cylinders and the installation of new pistons, rings and pins restores the engine to its full power and maximum EFFICIENCY and QUIETNESS.

PRICE REDUCED TO $2785 BY MARMON

Indianapolis Factory Also Announces Four-Wheel Brakes as Optional Equipment.

A new schedule of prices, announced today, establishes a new base price of $2785 on Marmon cars. The seven-passenger phaeton model, which in the past has sold for $3185, f. o. b. factory, has been reduced $400, and other models have undergone corresponding reductions.

A statement from H. H. Brooks, sales manager of the Nordyke & Marmon Co., which accompanied the announcement to the More Automobile Co. of St. Louis and other Marmon distributors, points out that nine years of concentration on one type of car and the accelerated demand for Marmons, which has been particularly noticeable over the past year, made it inevitable that the Marmon could be sold for a lower price with no reduction in quality.

Reduced prices on other models are announced as follows: Four-passenger phaeton, $2785; two and four passenger speedsters, $2985; four-pasenger coupe, $3585; seven-passenger sedan, $3985; seven-passenger suburban, $4285; limousine and town car, $4285.

Paralleling the announcement of a price reduction comes the announcement of four-wheel brakes, which are now offered as optional equipment on the Marmon at a moderate additional cost. The new front wheel brakes, which are of the internal expanding type, are claimed to be particularly noteworthy in their simplicity and freedom from complications.

MERRILL IN CHARGE OF DIESING SERVICE

A. L. Merrill, a veteran in the automobile business, is now in charge of Rickenbacker service for the Diesing Motor Sales Co. Merrill has been in the automobile business and working with gasoline engines since 1896, 27½ years.

In 1903 he entered the automobile "game" in this city with Jesse French, who was building the St. Louis motor carriage, a one-cylinder motor buggy.

Later he served the National Motor Vehicle Co. at Indianapolis, the St. Louis Car Co., when they built the old American Mors and Standard Six cars, and the Stephens factory at Freeport, Ill. For the past five years Merrill has managed a service station at Springfield, Ill.

Merrill was a race driver for the National as early as 1911 and a teammate of Johnny Aitken. One of his principal competitors in racing was Eddie Rickenbacker, now Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president and director of sales of the Rickenbacker Motor Co. It was Rickenbacker who induced Merrill to join the Diesing forces.

TRAVELS 7500 MILES IN PACKARD "EIGHT"

C. W. Beck of C. W. Beck & Co. on July 1 last received his new Packard Straight "Eight" with four-wheel brakes, the first delivered in St. Louis. Since then, up to Sept. 15, Beck had traveled 7500 miles in this new car. "The performance has been wonderful," said Beck Saturday, "and I am more than pleased with my Packard."

George M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Car Co., Packard distributors, is pleased with the testimony of Beck and other owners who have had an opportunity to thoroughly test the Packard Straight "Eight" in actual service.

CADILLAC CONTEST PRIZE WON BY WEISS

Lester I. Weiss, salesman for the Cadillac Automobile Co. of St. Louis, was the proud recipient last week of a completely fitted suitcase. The suitcase was a prize offered in the monthly salesmen's contest of the Cadillac factory at eDtroit to those salesmen making the best record of sales figured on a quota basis. Weiss, in addition, received a cash prize from the company. He is the third of the local sales force to secure factory prizes in the past few months, John H. Ellis and Albert O'Nell having previously won prizes.

EVERY CITY NEEDS OFFICIAL MILESTONE

An official milestone for every city and town in the United States from which local distances can be measured is the suggestion made by the American Automobile Association. The designation of an official central point in each city and town by the proper municipal or town authorities will be of value commercially as well as a convenience to local and visiting motorists, points out the A. A. A.

"Every motorist will recall similar experiences in reading sign posts along almost any road in the United States," said an official of the A. A. A. "One sign may read 'eight miles to Jonesville.' A mile further on another sign may also read 'eight miles to Jonesville.' Both signs may be correct depending on the point in Jonesville from which the mileage was taken. With an official milestone and the mileage accurately measured, the motorist would know definitely the actual mileage to the center of the town to or from which he is traveling.

"From a commercial standpoint an official milestone would be of service in giving readers of advertisements of real estate, for example,

With the adoption of an official milestone by Jonesville the reader would know that the distance is six miles from a fixed point in Jonesville, which would be in the heart of the city."

HUDSON-FRAMPTON MEN EXPERT BASS ANGLERS

Joseph N. Kellerman, sales manager of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Mrs. Kellerman and two Hudson-Frampton salesmen, J. W. Lacy and R. R. Andrews spent four days last week at Hunt's Farm on the Black River bass fishing.

Guided by R. E. McKibbin, who is in charge at Hunt's Farm, the party of four were able to discover the best bass holes, and as a result 82 were landed in the four days. Fifty were brought back home, and it is said that plenty of Hudson prospects were eating small and large mouthed black bass last week.

According to some of the members of the party, the trip converted Lacy from an enthusiastic fisherman of the old-style cork kind to the wooden minnow type angler. Mrs. Kellerman waded the streams with the party and caught as many bass as any of the others, and her husband proved his ability to angle for bass as well as he can angle for prospects for Hudson sales.

TOURS 25,000 MILES IN HIS FRANKLIN CAR

"It's cheaper to travel in a Franklin car than to stay at home."

That is the declaration of C. B. Campbell of Seattle, who is thus quoted in a San Francisco newspaper. Mr. Campbell and his family have arrived in San Francisco on the last lap of a 25,000-mile journey, and they will soon be in Seattle again.

The Campbells, traveling in a 1916 Franklin, left Seattle 18 months ago, and during that period they have traveled all over the United States, from one coast to the other and from Canada to Mexico.

The Franklin in which Mr. and Mrs. Campbell and their children made the trip carried nearly a ton of camping equipment.

Since its establishment in 1916 the New York City Traffic Court has collected $2,390,626 in fines.

FIFTEEN YEARS OLD STILL GOING STRONG

The laurels for endurance are not always awarded to the young. Instance an Overland roadster, model 30, serial number 2675, built in 1908, successfully climbing Pike's Peak without a groan of protest, and arriving at the top purring like a peaceful kitten.

This car is owned by A. H. Brewer of Wichita, Kan., who recently completed a trip from his home town to Denver, Colo., and then immediately set about to view the glories of the State from the summit of Pike's Peak, that famous mecca of tourists.

The Overland hit the circling grades with wonderful pep and did the long, laborious 18-mile pull without a whimper; the only trouble encountered bting a punctured tire at the seventh mile post.

This Overland is still using the original carburetor that was put on it when it left the factory 15 years ago, though the original speedometer retired from active service seven years back after registering 62,000 miles.

About 12,000 schools now use motor buses to carry pupils to the country consolidated schools which have largely superseded the "little red schoolhouse."

In the last 15 years the United States has spent between $15,000,000,000 and $20,000,000,000 for passenger automobiles and trucks. More than $6,000,000,000 have been expended for improved roads.

ANOTHER DIVIDEND FOR RICKENBACKER

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Rickenbacker Motor Co., main office, Detroit, Mich., Sept. 10, a 2 per cent dividend was declared, payable Oct. 15 on all stock of record as of Sept. 30. This is the third quarterly dividend declared by this company this year, 1923.

Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president and director of sales, states that the output in sales for August exceeded that of any previous month in the company's history, and prospects are that the last six months of the year will exceed those of the first half.

Gasoline Tax Law to Voters.

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—The necessary signatures—15,000 in four counties—have been secured to prevent the Massachusetts 2-cent gasoline tax law from going into effect until the voters have a chance to pass upon it.

Announcement of the receipt of the signed petitions by Secretary of State Cook automatically will stop the law from becoming effective. It will not be voted on until a year from next fall.

Automobile Investment High.

It may not be generally realized, but the investment in the automobile industry is nearly twice as great as the total capitalization of all the national banks in the country, according to statisticians of the Firestone company. This computation is confirmed by Frank B. Anstead, automobile manufacturer of Indiana, who also recently pointed out that not only have the labor difficulties of the industry been negible, but that automobile producers have never made any special demands to Washington for tariff revision or

J. D. Cooper says their Cadillac car ran 30,000 miles without changing a tire after equipping with a new Puncture Proof inner tube invented by D. V. Milburn of Chicago. This amazing new puncture proof tube in actual test stands 500 nail holes without the loss of any air. Auto owners wanted everywhere to take orders for this wonder tube. Big opportunity for agents. 4 Wheel Brakes on the Brand New Oakland

The finest light-six is now also the safest! Four-wheel brakes are on the 1924 Oakland!

Think of it! The only six selling for less than a thousand dollars which gives you this safety feature.

Oakland's four-wheel brakes are the result of years of patient research and exhaustive tests on the part of Oakland and General Motors. They are sound, practical, simple—and unusually safe!

Come in and drive behind these four-wheel brakes. Test them yourself—their great superiority will instantly impress you under every driving condition. Steering is easier and less adjustment is required than with conventional two-wheel brakes.

The True Blue Oakland also has a brand new engine—smoother, quieter and more powerful.

The beautiful new blue bodies built by Fisher, are wider, and more luxuriously upholstered. Disc steel wheels are standard, at no added cost.

See this new car at our special showing! Compare it critically with others. Convince yourself that no other car offers so much at Oakland's new lower prices.

INTEGRITY Studebaker SERVICE

COMPARE

The Maximum of Proved Intrinsic Value VS. Many Extravagant Claims of Superiority

So many announcements of new model cars contain extravagant claims for the same superiorities that it is puzzling to the buyer to know which value is real and which is only a claim.

This year the issue has been confused by the introduction of mechanical changes, some of which have been rushed into production while still in the experimental stage—and then immediately given wide publicity.

Important considerations have been overlooked and great stress placed upon unimportant details.

But the man who intends to buy a motor car need not let this confusion or this glamour of publicity lead him to make a mistake or risk satisfaction in his purchase. The automobiles themselves are available for comparison.

See and be convinced. Riding is believing.

As an aid to intelligent buying we offer the following suggestions:

Place the 1924 model Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car at $995 alongside any car you may select as belonging in the same class. Every car looks well in the pictures—most cars make a good impression in their own show windows. The Studebaker Light-Six looks a winner alongside the best-looking competitor you can find. And it's larger, more substantial, roomier, more comfortable looking—and is more comfortable.

Compare the top. Look inside and out. The Studebaker top is sturdily built. Has four stout cross bows. Top material is same as is so satisfactorily used in the Big-Six. Notice the fit, feel the quality. The rear curtain is one-piece—has no seams—with a large rectangular window bound by an enameled moulding.

Compare the body. Studebaker has a roomy, substantial, carefully made body—all-steel even to its framework, which permits a finish in baked enamel. A depressed belt line runs around the body and through the hood and radiator, adding to its distinctive appearance.

Compare the one-piece, rain-proof windshield, with built-in cowl lamps, with the ordinary two-piece windshield with rubber strip that leaks in every rain and always obstructs the driver's vision. Notice the large cowl ventilator that is quickly operated by merely moving the regulator backward or forward.

Compare the Studebaker door trimmings and fittings with the door fittings of other cars. Notice that the door pocket flaps have weights to hold them in position. Man-sized door handles and latches, positive-action door locks that catch with a snap and stay closed. Heavy hinges properly located and proportioned. Highest grade trimming material instead of painted cardboard. Fastening nails concealed.

Compare the aluminum-bound linoleum that is neatly fitted and fastened to the floor boards of this $995 Studebaker Light-Six with the rubber mats that cover the cheap, loosely-fitted floor boards in many other cars.

Compare the cheap robe rail (sometimes hemp rope covered with imitation leather) with the Studebaker nickel-plated rail. Compare the forty-cent footrest with the comfortable, carpet-covered footrest, supported by polished aluminum brackets, in the Studebaker.

These comparisons are of features that can be seen. There are many more down under the surface that could be mentioned, such as the machining of all surfaces of the crankshaft and connecting rods of the Light-Six motor. This is largely responsible for the practical absence of vibration in the Studebaker Light-Six. This is an exclusive Studebaker practice on cars at this price.

If competition is so far inferior in its visible parts, it is a certainty that the hidden parts which really determine the satisfaction of a car will be equally inferior.

The Studebaker chassis is as far superior to any other motor car chassis in its price field as Studebaker upholstery is to other upholstery, as the Studebaker body is to any other motor car body in its price field.

For instance, Studebaker uses a six-inch frame with five cross-members instead of a five-inch frame with three or four cross-members.

The Studebaker Light-Six will ride longer, at less cost, we believe, than any other motor car built. A certain group of fleet owners in Los Angeles have found that Studebaker cars, averaging 35,000 miles each, saved their original cost one and one-half times over as compared with the average operating cost of various other makes.

In three years' time, more than 130,000 Studebaker Light-Sixes have delivered satisfaction. This gives the buyer a solid basis for his selection.

Come in and see the Light-Six. Test its performance and comfort yourself. Again—Riding is believing.

APPERSON

The Only Driver's Compartment With No Levers

AMONG the exclusive features of the Apperson Six and Eight is a driver's compartment with no levers—which permits easy entrance or egress on the curb side of the car. This is made possible by the adoption of the Mechanical Gear-Shift—the greatest invention in the automobile industry in the last ten years for easier, safer and more enjoyable driving.

It operates mechanically by merely moving the selector on the steering wheel post into the gear desired and throwing out the clutch. No long-handled levers, no chance of "clashing" gears and blocking traffic. It is simple and strong with nothing to get out of order.

The powerful emergency brake is operated by pull-handle on instrument board.

Regardless of the car you are driving you should see this Apperson and operate the mechanical gear-shift. It will be an interesting and instructive five minutes for you. Make appointment to-day.

REMEDIES ARE OFFERED FOR PARKING PROBLEM

Motor and Accessory Manufacturers Discuss Troubles of City Car Owner at Fall Meeting.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 22.—"Where can I park my car?"

This question, which according to Will Rogers and several million other American citizens, is the biggest problem worrying the average man, received the attention of several hundred leaders of the automotive industry assembled at the Copley-Plaza Hotel for the fall convention of the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association."

"Oh, yes, we are not meeting the need for improved traffic conditions," said H. W. Slauson, M. E., Engineering Service Manager of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co., New York, in opening the discussion. "In other words, we are and we aren't."

"We must get at the fundamentals," said Slauson, "and so arrange and design our cities that, as the city grows in population, its ability to accommodate stationary and moving traffic will grow in the necessary proportion."

"My proposal is merely that, as every modern building is required to devote a certain proportion of its area to elevator and fire escape requirements, so in the large buildings of the future we should require that they furnish adequate parking space within themselves. This will employ the third dimension—which is the cause of traffic congestion—as a means of relieving that very suggestion. This would of course reduce the rental return of the building 5 per cent but if department stores have found it advantageous to rent or construct free garages for the benefit of their patrons, the owner of an office building or apartment house would find it equally good business."

"Our cities have been built on a horse-car basis," said M. L. Heminway, general manager of the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association. "Stupendous development of automobile transportation has brought with it acute problems of traffic and safety. The situation is becoming more critical every day. Intelligent planning and co-ordination are necessary."

Mayors of the largest cities in the country, industrial leaders, and experts on civic planning were asked by Mr. Heminway to offer suggestions for meeting the traffic and parking problem.

Colonel Charles Clifton of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has suggested a program embracing the following points:

1. More playgrounds.
2. Stricter regulations and more scientific study of safety provisions.
3. New boulevards.
4. Detours for through traffic.
5. Parking spaces in basements of office buildings.
6. Use of open lots for parking.

George Gordon Battle of New York, noted lawyer and orater, summarized his views as follows:

"As president of the Parks and Playgrounds Association, I have been for many years deeply interested in providing greater playground facilities for children in this crowded center of population. There is no doubt that if more playgrounds were provided, there would be less children on the street and consequently less danger from traffic accidents.

"Furthermore, I am inclined to think that there should be further restriction of horse-drawn traffic. In many of our crowded streets I believe that vehicles drawn by horses should be prohibited, except during the less busy hours."

Barron Collier, Special Deputy Commissioner of the New York Police Department, offered these suggestions:

"The rapidly increasing number of motor vehicles in large cities makes it necessary that steps be taken to develop methods for controlling both pedestrians and vehicles. The problem must be worked out in such a way as to not only safeguard pedestrians, but permit the uninterrupted flow of traffic and the avoidance of congestion.

"Pedestrians therefore, should be so regulated that they will cross streets only at designated crossings. With these crossings protected on main thoroughfares, traffic should be permitted to move under such careful regulation at a speed that will give reasonable safety.

"Heavy cargo carrying trucks which impede the flow of traffic contribute largely to accidents. If, in large communities, such vehicles were operated only between midnight and 6 a. m. they would be able to do their work more efficiently and expeditiously and without impeding the movement of passenger carrying vehicles.

"More playgrounds are essential to keep the children safe in large communities. Playgrounds should be made attractive and so regulated and cared for that parents will not object to sending their childrtn to these spaces."

Five specific suggestions were recommended by Harold S. Buttenheim, editor "The American City Magazine:"

"1. Effective zoning ordinance.
"2. Widening narrow streets.
"3. Stricter time limits on parking of automobiles.
"4. Standardization of mechanical devices for traffic regulation.
"5. Efficient organization of off-rail movement of freight."

"Some streets are paved better than others and, of course, the well paved streets always draw the travel. If all streets were put in perfect condition then traffic would be evenly distributed.

"I do not believe that it is the duty of the city to furnish parking space for anyone, especially during the business hours of the day."

a Display Worth While and You Are Invited

¶ Every one of the new 1924 Studebaker Models is now here. To celebrate their coming, we are holding our Grand Fall Display of Studebakers during the coming week. Everyone interested is invited to call and see them. You will enjoy visiting our showroom; you will be delighted with the new Studebaker cars; you will admire the work of the engineers and motor car architects who have turned out such a beautiful and efficient line of motor cars.

¶ This is the first time we have been able to display all the models and you will enjoy inspecting them.

See the 1924 New Studebaker Line

¶ See all the models—see the Big Sixes, the 7-Passenger Sedan, 7-Passenger and 5-Passenger Touring Cars, the 5-Passenger Coupe, the 5-Passenger Speedster. Look over the good-looking Special Six line, the 5-Passenger Sedan, the 5-Passenger Coupe, the 5-Passenger Touring and 2-Passenger Roadster and view the Light Sixes, 5-Passenger Sedan, 3-Passenger Coupe, 5-Passenger Touring and a 2-Passenger Roadster. Thirteen models in all and each good-looking, good-running—a treat to see.

Fall Display Week Starts Monday

¶ On Monday morning, Sept. 24, Fall Display Week opens. You are most cordially invited to attend. Our showroom is specially decorated for the occasion and we urge you to come and visit us whether you are in the market for an automobile or not. We are so proud of the 1924 Studebaker models we want every St. Louisan to see them. So do come and you'll know why the 1924 Studebakers are the sensation of the motor car world.

REFORESTATION PROGRAM IN WASHINGTON STATE UNDER WAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OLYMPIA, Wash.—This state formally launched its big reforestation program this week with the planting by D. A. Scott, director of conservation and development, of young firs on a tract of 25,000 acres in Pacific and Grays Harbor counties. Of the total more than 15,000 acres belong to the state. The rest will probably be donated by large lumber interests.

The planting marks the initial step toward reforestation of Washington's logged off lands and was made possible through an appropriation by the 1921 legislature. Seeding of nurseries started immediately. The 1923 session allowed more money to plant the seedlings now ready to be lifted. Director Scott declares the land should reforest itself in 50 years if it can be kept free of fires. The planting of forest trees will follow as closely as possible the plan of nature in mixing up the species. More than a half million acres are ready for this development.

What a Home Could Prevent

A Little Sermon on Home Ownership by One of America's Best Known Ministers

There probably never was a soldier under fire who was not concerned about the preservation of his own life to a greater degree than anyone ever knew or suspected.

From the moment we join up until the moment we come out or go under, a fear complex enters the mind and stays there. This little fear streak may be as thin as a hair or as thick as a cable, but it is there. There is another streak, a companion to fear; they remain, side by side. This friend of fear is called luck, or chance, or the law of averages.

Going into battle we are all conscious that men will be killed. We are quite sure of that. We are equally sure that we shall not be in the list. Some men go through life as soldiers go through war.

Tens of thousands of men with moderate incomes or more pretentious salaries postpone from time to time the first step that leads to the possession of a home. They know, as the soldier knows, that disaster will come to many, but they figure, as the soldier figures, that they will not be among the casualties. They know that sickness, disease and death will incapacitate and carry off at short notice the strongest and finest of men, but they count on luck or chance to be on their side.

So, like chess players, they go until the game goes against them. Like a bolt from the blue comes the last move. An accident, an indisposition, an attack of disease and the breadwinner is out. He has saved nothing, he owns nothing and, owning nothing, he can borrow nothing. He has no collateral. His health was all he had anyway, and when that goes all goes. His name has no value.

The house that he intended to save for and secure would have prevented the disaster, but he put it off so often that he got the habit and it never materialized. He sees it all now when it is too late.

When disaster sweeps down on a man and finds him unprepared his first thought is for his family. If they are provided for he is consoled. If not, he is stung with remorse that in a few weeks or months they will have to move on—they know not where. He reflects that help must come from some direction, and no matter from whence it comes the family will be subjected to humiliation.

The descent from prosperity to pauperism takes some time. The earlier stages are almost imperceptible. Occasionally a recovery is made. That happens seldom. The process may take years, but it is down grade all the time.

Against the day of disaster a home is the best insurance. It becomes the cure for extravagance and blind optimism and the preserver of self-respect and financial independence.

Announcing—The Greatest Advance since the Self Starter

TRAFFIC TRANSMISSION an exclusive feature of the 1924 CHANDLER

Easiest and Safest Car to Drive

Change at Any Speed
Gears Cannot Clash
Anybody Can Do It
Safest Brake on Hills
Nothing New to Learn

AS the feature of its 1924 models, Chandler presents the biggest advance in motor car construction since the self-starter—the Traffic Transmission.

The starter overcame the evils of cranking. The Traffic Transmission does away with the terrors of shifting gears, eliminating completely the great trial of motoring—the difficulties of maneuvering through city traffic.

A totally new principle is involved. Its first appearance on passenger cars is made in the 1924 Chandler. So sound are its fundamentals that it seems destined for general adoption. For the present, however, only Chandler owners can enjoy the unusual delight it gives to driving. It is built complete in the Chandler plant.

Many manufacturers would have been content to give the public, in any one year, the

Pikes Peak Motor

But Chandler now adds to its triumphs the Traffic Transmission so that even the most inexperienced and timorous driver may fully enjoy the masterly performance powers of the motor which so rapidly won America's respect and admiration.

In the 1924 Chandler, the Pikes Peak Motor remains essentially unchanged, save for an important improvement in the oiling system and certain refinements that make its operation flawlessly smooth and noiseless. These changes are based on the experience of thousands of users, many of whom have driven Chandler cars with Pikes Peak Motors 15000, 18000, and 20000 miles, since January last.

All those who have vainly battled with the perplexities and noise of the old-fashioned gear shift, will naturally want to test for themselves the amazing improvement in driving convenience provided by the Traffic Transmission.

At all speeds in the normal driving range, whether going up hill or down, the change is made without clashing or grinding, and with perfect safety and surety.

For braking purposes it is possible to change from high gear back to second at 35 miles an hour, and from second to low when occasion arises. No dexterity, experience or practice is necessary. Anyone can do it the first time—and with the pressure of the little finger on the gear shift lever.

Gone forever is the uncertainty of shifting gears and its attendant dangers on hills and in heavy traffic. Thousands who have been kept from the driver's seat by the perplexities of the old transmission can now become happy motorists.

The Traffic Transmission insures a positive, silent, instantaneous change under every condition because its construction eliminates the fundamental fault of the old transmission—that of trying to mesh two gears that are spinning at different speeds. The gears of the Traffic Transmission are always in mesh. Their teeth, instead of being chipped and shattered by unsuccessful shifts, actually improve with service.

Silence Despite Power

With the revolutionary Traffic Transmission, the improved and practically noiseless Pikes Peak Motor, the long-lived Chandler chassis with its rugged rear axle, its efficient brakes and feather-weight steering, with handsome comfortable bodies and at record prices—the 1924 Chandler offers values without precedent.

Do not fail to see it! Do not fail to drive it!

$250,000 CORNER REALTY DEAL AT OLIVE AND SARAH

Negotiations Reported in Progress for a Number of West and South Side Corner Holdings.

WEISELS SEES BIG INVESTING DEMAND

Nugent Transaction Acts as Stimulant to Real Estate and Building Operations Downtown.

By Berry Moore.

The southeast corner of Olive and Sarah streets was purchased yesterday by M. J. Sjonim for an announced consideration of $250,000 through the Kemplan-Rodemyer Real Estate Co. The seller was the George T. Burdeau Real Estate Co.

The site is occupied by a two-story commercial building, erected about two years ago by the Burdeau Co. It has a frontage on both Olive and Sarah of 153 feet, or a total frontage of 306 feet on the two streets.

The first floor of the building is occupied by the Missouri National Bank, of which Rodemyer is a director, and there is a drug store on the corner. The upper floor is divided for doctors' offices. The annual rentals from the building are $25,000, which is nearly 15 per cent gross on the purchase price.

Corner Operations.

The Burdeau Co. absorbed the loss in a large operation, the building project being a later consideration, but has realized a large profit as a result of the venture, according to Realtors.

With the widening of Olive street provided for under the $88,000,000 bond issue, this thoroughfare is challenging the attention of operators.

This is only one of a long series of profitable operations of the Burdeau Co., which has been conspicuous in the development of upper Locust street and the upbuilding of a number of prominent corners, including the southwest corner of Sixteenth and Chestnut street the southwest corner of Seventeenth and Olive streets and the southeast corner of Olive street and Taylor avenue.

According to Henry R. Weisels of the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., negotiations have been concluded for a large number of holdings of this type. These include several West End and South Side corners developed on a pretentious scale. Announcements are withheld pending final papers.

Weisels, who has just returned to the city from a two months' vacation with his family at Atlantic City is jubilant over the outlook. The demand for investment properties will form the dominant note of the movement the ensuing fall and winter with favorable prices prevailing throughout, he believes. Conditions he declares, are conducive to a record volume of transactions. The demand for business property, indications are, will run well with that for flats and apartments, he says.

Downtown Developments.

Concensus of opinion is that the $6,000,000 department store building to be constructed by the H. Nugent & Bro. Dry Goods Co. on the site of its present store at the southwest corner of Broadway and Washington avenue, and on adjoining property on Broadway and on Fourth street south of St. Charles, will serve as a stimulant to realty and building operations throughout the downtown district.

As a sequel to the successful issue of this project, the Mercantile Trust Co. has closed contracts for several buildings on St. Charles street, which will form an avenue to this store.

The pivot of interest in this district is the southwest corner of Sixth and St. Charles streets, the site of the Columbia Theater which constitutes one of the best locations in the Central business district for a large store for women's apparel. Negotiations have been revived for this corner since the announcement of the Nugent building plans.

Negotiations for other downtown holdings were concluded last Saturday afternoon, but details were not available.

10 Lots Sold in Addition.

The Arseo Co., with offices in the Arcade Building, reports sales of ten lots in Country Club Addition No.

$250,000 CORNER REALTY DEAL AT OLIVE AND SARAH

Negotiations Reported in Progress for a Number of West and South Side Corner Holdings.

WEISELS SEES BIG INVESTING DEMAND

Nugent Transaction Acts as Stimulant to Real Estate and Building Operations Downtown.

Negotiations have been required for this corner since the announcement of the Nugent building plans.

Negotiations for other downtown holdings were concluded late Saturday afternoon, but details were not available.

10 Lots Sold in Addition.

The Arsee Co., with offices in the Arcade Building, reports sales of ten lots in Country Club Addition No. 2 making a total of 60 lots sold in this addition.

A notable demand is observed with the arrival of fall. The addition is on the south side of Natural Bridge Road overlooking Bellerive Country Club, and is attractively situated for a residential park. The lots are being sold on a relatively low basis.

Promoters are drilling for oil on land within 500 feet of this tract, as recently told in the Post-Dispatch, but this fact is not being exploited by the Arsee Co.

Westmoor Sales Brisk.

The Cornet & Zeibig Trust reports a good week at Westmoor Pennsylvania and Clayton road which is being closed out by special sale under direction of this agency. The big subdivision is likely soon to be out of the market, so far as the original owners are concerned. The lots are being offered at the original prices, notwithstanding the fact that the status of the subdivision is very different from what it was a year and a half ago, when first placed on sale.

Shoe Man Buys University City Home

7001 WASHINGTON AVE

CHARLES R. WILLIAMSON of the Ault-Williamson Shoe Co., has purchased the home of Garfield D. Merner at 7001 Washington avenue, through the Cornet & Zeibig Trust.

The house, which is of the colonial style, has 14 rooms, four baths and a garage with a side driveway, and is one of the handsomest in University City.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, who recently removed to St. Louis from Auburn, Me., will take possession of the house about Oct. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Merner are preparing to go to San Mateo, Cal., to reside.

He has been identified with many operations. He entered the business eight years ago after leaving the University of Missouri. He saw service in the World War. John La Barre, formerly with the Mercantile Trust Co., is connected with Lochmoeller.

LIGHTING PLAN FOR DELMAR, WEST OF SKINKER, PROGRESSING

According to Henry R. Weisels, president of the Delmar Boulevard Improvement Association of University City, the plan for the "white way" lighting of Delmar boulevard, west of Skinker, is progressing toward completion. Thirty property owners already have signed the contract, representing a frontage of 3300 out of a total frontage of 4800 feet, and the officers of the association feel confident that within the next 10 days all of the property owners will have subscribed.

The Union Electric Light and Power Co. is to install the latest type Novalux brackets with ruffled globe and canopy, to be placed on the new poles of the United Railways on either side of the street opposite each other every 90 feet, beginning at the west line of Skinker boulevard and running westward to Trinity avenue. Four hundred watt lamps will be used.

The improvement association is trying to have this lighting system in operation by Jan. 1. Sixty-four lights will be installed. Property owners will maintain 48 of these lights and it is expected that the City of University City will maintain 16.

SWOPE SHOE CO. OPENING BRANCH SHOP FOR CHILDREN

The Swope Shoe Co., started in 1867, near the old French Market, is opening a children's branch shop on Maryland at Euclid, leased through the F. H. & C. B. Gerhart Real Estate Co. Meier Swope, president of the company, stated that he planned this branch shop for the convenience of west end families. He has chosen this location because of its accessibility to the west end section and also because of the increasing number of specialty shops in this district.

In addition to shoes for children, Swope's branch shop will have stockings for children and a complete stock of women's hosiery, although no women's shoes will be carried.

The main children's department will be continued in the Swope downtown store.

HOME SUPREME MODEL WILL BE EXHIBITED

Davis Realty Co., to Display Replica of Structure at Its Offices.

A large model of the "Home Supreme," now being erected at Alta-Dena will be placed on exhibition at the offices of the E. Davis Realty & Mortgage Co., Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 24, 25 and 26, between 11 a. m. and 9 p. m.

This model is an exact replica of this wonder home as it will look when complete and illustrates clearly the Flagg System of building beautiful homes economically.

Earnest Flagg, the architect, of the towering Singer Building of New York, the Corcoran Art Gallery at Washington and many other noted structures, designed "The Home Supreme" and is the originator of its system of construction, which is destined to revolutionize home building.

PREDICTS INCREASE IN MANUFACTURING SOON

St. Louis Statistician Prepares Special Report on American Business Conditions.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—An early definite improvement over the present general pause in manufacturing activity throughout the country is forecast by Archer Wall Douglas of St. Louis, chairman of the committee on statistics and standards of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in a special report on business conditions made public today.

Douglas says the decreased manufacturing activity at this time is due in part to a widespread feeling of conservatism that marks buying at present in all its phases. There is a general feeling, especially among consumers, he says, that many of the advances during the spring were entirely without warrant.

"Naturally," he says, "there arises the determination among buyers to trade entirely along the line of the laws of supply and demand, and to purchase only when prices seem reasonable and in accordance with prevailing conditions.

Effect of Reduced Demand.

"Shoe factories in New England seem to feel the effect of reduced demand more than those in the West, and this seems true likewise of the cotton mills in the North, compared with the cotton-growing states. Cotton exports to Europe have fallen off as the natural result of demoralized conditions in so so many nations. Manufacturers of cotton fabrics face a condition which gives them pause and offers no easy solution of their difficulties. High-priced raw cotton is among the certainties of the coming months, despite falling off in demand from Europe, and the possibility of such happening in this country. The under lying problem is as to what price the consumer will pay for cotton goods compared with the prices of raw material, and as yet there is no answer.

"Building material is somewhat cheaper, but apparently not enough so to stay the gradual decline in building and construction which has set in and which evidently will continue. Prices of labor employed in building, and high price of rents, only complicate the task of making construction a matter of more stable nature, instead of one of violent extremes."

Of the agricultural situation, Douglas says:

"Matters are much mixed in the agricultural world, there being a fair degree of content in some localities, while in others the farmers are sore distressed. The entire wheat yield of the country will not exceed 785,000,000 bushels, and is being held by the farmer where he can afford to do so.

Large Surplus Corn Crop.

"Corn will be a large crop in the surplus corn states from Ohio westward to Kansas and Nebraska inclusive, though there is still a measure of uncertainty as to its ultimate volume owing to the large proportion of it that is not yet out of danger from an early frost. The South raised less corn this year than usual, also less grains, owing to the prevailing obsession for planting cotton.

"Prices of livestock are not generally attractive to the farmer, save that hogs have advanced of late, accompanied by high prices for corn. This did much to create more cheerful sentiment among farmers throughout the Central West, and in the West wherever hogs and corn are commodities of importance.

"The cotton crop recently went backwards in practically all States except Texas and Tennessee because of constant rainfall, accompanied by vast hordes of destroying boll weevil, and army and leaf worms. This sudden and unexpected destruction changed conditions in some sections from high hopes to moderate expectations."

ONE OF CZAR'S SLAYERS SOUGHT

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—The political section of the Berlin police has been instructed by the Ministry of the Interiar to apprehend a Russian subject named Jacowleff, who is declared to have been implicated in the slaying of Czar Nicholas and the other members of the royal family of Russia. The police say they have been aware of Jacowleff's presence in Berlin for several months, but have been unable to find him.

The Car as a Come Back

By One of America's Best Known Psychologists

THE story of Stephen Girard is one of the most unique in American biography. The old man lived in miserable quarters on a starvation scale and left his millions to charity. Of course he couldn't take them with him. What we know of him, leads us to believe that the will was there but the ability was lacking.

We are not all Girards, but unconsciously we may be operating on his plan. That is, the hoarding idea, based on the fear that the hoarder or his offspring will suffer—later.

The percentage of men and women who measurably appreciate the sacrifices of a hoarding parent is a negligible one. The great majority of the founders of financial dynasties in New York, for instance, would not have striven so hard to build great fortunes, if they could have had a glimpse into the future and seen how the second generation would dissipate them in the capitals of Europe.

No man's sons should be deprived of the adventure of carving their own destiny with their bare hands or by their brains. They should be given the requisite schooling and the example of hard work. And then as they are getting up steam, the fathers should be enjoying the passing show and renewing youth by investing in a car, as good a car as he can get without jeopardizing the fundamental interests.

In the end these fathers will be just as well off. So will all who are dependent upon them. The flow of vital energy put into the new adventure will flow over into the channels out of which comes a living. They will not merely lift themselves but they will stimulate and energize all and everything related to them.

The hope that medical science will make a discovery which will bring back the spirit of youth is but a dream. There is no guess work about the come back in the new adventure in which a rather commonplace life comes into contact with a good automobile that responds with magic alacrity to the touch of the hand! That's the real thing and worthy of a great effort.

You are capable of understanding a suggestion and are not beyond the renewal of youth, take this thought into your consciousness. You CAN Own Your Own Car. Then take steps to make the thought a reality.

Read carefully the automobile advertising appearing in the Post-Dispatch, and talk terms and prices with the reliable dealers represented there.

A READER.—There is no solution which will absorb smoke as a whole. There are certain substances which will absorb certain constituents of smoke.

FINN.—Watch the advertising section of the newspapers and magazines for the advertisement of a school such as you desire for your boy.

FUTURE TRAFFIC MAN.—There are two railroad traffic magazines published in Chicago, one is the Traffic Bulletin, which comes out once a week, the other is The Traffic World, which is also a weekly publication. The latter deals with transportation and freight.

P. A. C.—Any dealer in coins will be able to tell you whether or not there is any premium on a $10 note of 1865.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

A READER.—Ask the police for protection; they will tell you what to do, under the circumstances.

ANXIOUS.—If the boy's father becomes naturalized before the boy is twenty-one years of age the boy will become a citizen by reason of his father's naturalization. If not, the boy can become naturalized by taking out his first papers as soon as he is 18, and taking out his final papers as soon as he becomes 21 years old. Any boy born in this country, whose father has never become a citizen is an American citizen nevertheless, and a subject of his father's country also.

WORKER. — Write to the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, Washington, D. C., and to the Labor Commissioner, Jefferson City, Mo., regarding a firm which hires child labor.

B. A. P.—We suggest that you write to the Better Business Bureau of your city, Statler Hotel, St. Louis, and ask them to help you get your money back, which you paid for the aluminum and returned.

MRS. E. K. M.—If you carry a stock of goods, you will need a merchant's license. If the orders were filled directly from the factory and you carried no stock of goods, you would not need a license.

BRINGING UP FATHER—The notice in its present form, as described, might be dangerous. We advise you to consult a lawyer, and have him draft the notice in a safe way.

DAN—If you signed a contract to pay for the correspondence course, you will probably have to pay most, if not all, of the price of the full course. You might offer to compromise with the correspondence school and pay one-half.

ANXIOUS—In the absence of any agreement to the contrary, it is customary for the buyer of property, to pay for the certificate of title, if any, that is made. You can examine the certificate and see the state of the title, that is the only protection which is given you. You can have it made by a reputable examiner.

CLIFTON HEIGHTS—The law provides that the administrator shall be entitled to a commission of 5 per cent on the first $1,000 of personal property, money arising from the sale of the real estate.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

A. W.—The symptoms of nephritis are, in mild cases, slowly developing dropsy, with anemia, shortness of breath and general weakness. The diagnosis is confirmed by the result of urinary examinations. More if not all, the other symptoms you mention might well be caused by nephritis. Some forms of this disease, as the acute form are curable, while the chronic is less likely to be cured. However, the subjects of this malady by adhering to a proper diet, good habits, etc., often live their allotted number of years.

M. N. O.—It would be best for you to apply to the Provident Aid Society, the Red Cross or the Salvation Army, as none of the city's charity institutions furnish glasses.

PLEASE—If the quantity of urine is small, your trouble is one of irritability about the organs. It would be best for you to avoid such things as would tend to make the urine acid, and irritating, as tea, coffee, alcoholics, etc. In addition to this, try a 5-grain systogen tablet, dissolved in one-half of a glass of water, three times daily.

A FRIEND.—I think it is likely that your condition is due to your worrying over your deformity. Suppose you see what can be done for your relief at Barnes' Hospital.

X. X. X. — We think that it would be well for you to leave off all treatment for your disease, at this time, since the treatment seems to distress you so much. Take some such tonic as the following, with a nourishing diet, good food, and regular hours, as you can get. Tincture of nux vomica, half an ounce; tincture of gentian, and elixir of lactopeptine of this, shake well, and take a dose of 2 teaspoonfuls in a wine glass of water, three times a day, before or between meals.

H. R. — For the relief of your deformity, you might apply at Barnes' Hospital, where much plastic surgery is done, and where their facilities are the best for such work.

DIXIE — To fumigate the clothes of the tubercular patient, they should be spread out in a room with all doors and windows tightly closed. Then burn a sulphur candle for a couple of hours, after which open the doors and windows and air the room thoroughly.

O. V. L.—Only bland soaps should be used on your hair, plain castile soap is among the best. After washing the hair, apply the following each alternate night: Precipitated sulphur, one teaspoonful; salicylic acid, ten grains; petrolatum, one ounce. Mix this.

DEATHS

ZUPEZ—Entered into rest on Thursday, Sept. 20, 1923, at 9:30 p. m., Joseph Zupez of 4835 Hamburg, beloved husband of Helen Zupez, dear father of John Zupez, aged 60 years. Funeral from Wacker-Heiderle's new chapel, 3634 Gravois avenue, Monday, Sept. 24, at 8:30 a. m., to St. George's Church; thence to SS. Peter and Paul's Cemetery. ADVERTISING WRITER

Preferably with newspaper experience, wanted in the service division of a nationally-known advertising organization located in this city; a large opportunity for ability to complete ideas, fluency in writing, reasoning capacity and judgment in handling accounts are qualifications necessary to success in the work. While the initial salary will be low, pending the demonstration of service rendered, the position holds a bright future for the one who can make good. Unlimited education is desirable, but the broader education backed by a constructive mind in newspaper advertising or selling will be more helpful. For the purpose of eliminating unnecessary interviews and thus save the time of applicants as well as our own, we will appreciate it if replies state fully education, age, religion, salary necessary to a comfortable living, references, as well as include a small picture of applicant. Box J-410, Post-Dispatch.

LIFE STORY OF "THE IRON MOUNTAIN BABY"

The unidentified infant found beside the railroad track near Irondale, Mo., tightly packed in a little telescope grip, in the summer of 1902, grew up gracefully in a humble farm home near the place where he was picked up—Now working his way through college, and if anybody placed a fund in a St. Louis bank to be turned over to him when he attained his majority he says he could make good use of the money now :: :: :: :: ::

SOME days ago a young man, neatly dressed and of modest demeanor, walked into the Post-Dispatch Building and requested permission to examine the files of this newspaper for August, 1902. The bound volume was placed before him. Turning to the issue for Aug. 15, he read a brief news item. In the paper for the next day he perused a longer item, a special dispatch from De Soto, Mo. The first page of the paper for Sunday, Aug. 17, held his attention still longer. It carried a story of several columns by a staff correspondent who had been sent to Irondale, Mo., for data.

These 21-year-old newspaper stories were of more intimate interest to the young man who thus read them than to any other person on earth. Yet he betrayed no excitement. His keen gray eyes read swiftly. The brain behind them—if that be the seat of human thought—registered certain impressions. The face of the reader remained impassive. It was a serious young face, wearing an expression more settled and matured than does the face of the average youth of his years.

After he finished the Sunday story he turned the pages for several weeks following. He scanned each column of news matter. Then he closed the big book, but lingered in the fileroom.

"Find what you wanted?" inquired the attendant.

"Well, not exactly. May I see somebody in the editorial department?"

The visitor was directed to the desk of a member of the Sunday Magazine staff. He drew from his pocket a letter written on the flamboyant stationery of a private detective in an Indiana town. It was addressed to William Helms, Irondale, Mo., and was dated a few weeks later than the middle of August, 1902. It purported to give a possible clew to the identity of a tiny male infant, known only as "the Iron Mountain baby," that had been picked up by an old farmer, alongside the tracks of the Iron Mountain Railroad near Irondale, late in the afternoon of Thursday, Aug. 14, 1902. After reading this old letter the staff writer looked up inquiringly.

"I'm the Iron Mountain baby," said the young man.

"Indeed! And who is the Iron Mountain baby?"

"Just who I am nobody ever has discovered. I don't know, myself, and I don't care to know. If I knew my own people and should meet them on the street, I shouldn't care to recognize them. Would you?"

He spoke calmly, almost casually. After the writer had read the record in the files he was inclined to answer that "Would you?" with a positive negative. If your own people had tried to murder you when you were only a few days old, would you care to meet them when you grew up?

And that's the story.

"The Iron Mountain baby" dates himself from the day he was found by the farmer. By that reckoning, therefore, he attained his majority on the fourteenth day of the August just passed. According to an informal committee of women who guessed at his age 21 years ago, he was about five days old when Farmer William Helms, already past his three score and ten, saved his fast-ebbing life by releasing him from a small telescope valise in which the six-pound infant had been packed, and taking him to the women folks at home, who did the rest.

"I have always understood," said the Iron Mountain baby, who uses perfect English, "that a small sum of money contributed through one of the St. Louis newspapers, either the Republic or the Post-Dispatch, shortly after Mr. Helms found me, had been placed to my credit in one of the banks or trust companies here, to be turned over to me, with the accrued interest, when I reached the age of 21. I have examined the files of the old Republic, in the Public Library, and the Post-Dispatch files here, but can find nothing about the fund, which was said to be about $85. I am attending Draughon's Business College at Springfield, Mo., and I wish to enter the law school of Washington University. I am working my way through college, and I need the money."

Merely a business proposition, that's all. The Iron Mountain baby is a businesslike youth, as further revelations in this article will indicate. There is nothing flighty about William Moses Gould Helms, now 21 plus, who has shortened his name to William Helms, the original William Helms having died six years ago.

The unexpected visit of the Iron Mountain baby to this office resulted in trips to Irondale, Hopewell and Herculaneum, Mo., by the present chronicler. At Herculaneum was found Mrs. Sarah Jane Helms, now 72, widow of William. She lives with her daughter, Mrs. Sherman Evans, whose husband is Postmaster in that lead-smelting town on the bank of the Mississippi, about 30 miles below St. Louis. The present William Helms, whom she calls "Willie," calls her "grandmother," though she and her husband adopted the boy as their son, legally speaking, when he was 6 years old. Up to that time he was known as William Moses Gould. Railroad men who dubbed him the Iron Mountain baby also conferred the name Gould, in honor of the late Jay Gould, who used to own the Iron Mountain Railroad. Dr. J. L. Eaton, then of Irondale, now of Bismarck, the next town south, suggested the Moses, from the Biblical character who was found in the bulrushes. The venerable Mr. Helms insisted upon prefixing the Moses Gould with his own name, William. Then, when adoption papers were filed, the boy got legal right to his benefactor's surname.

William Helms, "the Iron Mountain Baby," at 21.

"The Iron Mountain Baby" when about six months old, with the little telescope grip in which he was found when about five days old.

"As to there being money in a St. Louis trust company or bank for Willie," said Mrs. Helms at Herculaneum, "all I know is that a young man named Nichols, who worked for a St. Louis paper, wrote us that $85 had been placed to the boy's credit. We had some other correspondence about the boy, but it was lost when our house burned down, many years ago."

The "Nichols," as investigation shows, was H. G. Nicholas, who in 1902 was a reporter for the St. Louis Republic. He left St. Louis many years ago. Collins Thompson, who was manager of the Republic for several years, up to the time when that newspaper ceased publication, states that the books showed no record of any such fund.

"When we learned that the Republic had gone dead," said Mrs. Helms, "we almost forgot about that money, and I hardly thought Willie remembered it. But he's a very careful boy about money matters. If he owes you a nickel he won't rest till he pays it; and if somebody owes him a nickel, why, he wants it paid. Once when he was a small boy we sent him to the store at Hopewell to buy something that cost a fraction of a dollar. We had only a $10 bill in the house, and he took that. When he came home he turned over to me $11.30.

"'Why, look here, Willie,' I said: 'where did you get all this extra money?'

"'The Postmaster gave it to me in change for the $10 bill,' he said. The Postmaster, you see, was also the storekeeper.

"'Well, he made a mistake, then,' I said. 'Supper's ready, so come and sit down and eat.'

"'I won't eat,' said Willie. 'I can't eat, nor rest, till I go back and give the Postmaster this money he gave me by mistake.'

"So off the boy traipsed, in the dark, to the Post-office. He came back with the $11.30. The Postmaster, he said, declared he had make no mistake. He refused to accept the money. Maybe he was ashamed to admit he'd been so careless—I don't know.

"Now, as to the Post-Dispatch raising money for Willie. There was some money contributed by readers of that paper, but the paper sent it down to us right away, and we bought a cow and calf for Willie."

Which information receives corroboration by Capt. William Evans of Hopewell, a Civil War veteran 84 years old, now the sole survivor of the company of 87 Hopewell neighborhood young men who enlisted for the Union cause in 1861.

"The Helms family," said Capt. Evans, "didn't own a cow when the Iron Mountain baby suddenly became a member of their household. My wife, now dead, sent them milk and cream for the baby until they got some money from St. Louis, through a newspaper, I understood, and bought the boy a cow."

Capt. Evans said also that little Willie Helms learned early the happy habit of thrift. He had a bank account at Potosi, the county seat, where he deposited such small sums as he earned or as were sent to him now and then from the wide world outside.

"That boy," added the Captain, "was a great one for school. He started going to the country school here at Hopewell as soon as he was big enough, and he never missed a day. It seems to me he's been going to school all his life."

"Yes, and he was a bright student," volunteered a young grandson of Capt. Evans. "He always knew his lessons well."

Mrs. Helms proudly corroborated this testimony. "Why," she said, "we still have here a lot of books that Willie bought. He was always a great reader. We are all very proud of him, and we expect him to make his mark in the world. We were not rich folks by any means, but we never regretted that we took him in and brought him up. We feel sure that he won't disappoint us."

Then Mrs. Helms brought in from another room a relic of importance in the history of the Iron Mountain baby. It was a little old grip, or valise, of the telescope variety, pasteboard covered with gray canvas, bound with light leather straps. Let us quote here a stanza from the remarkable folk ballad printed herewith, written by a country preacher of the Hopewell neighborhood. It might have popped up out of the pages of "Percy's Reliques," had it been the work of some ancient balladist:

The valise was fourteen inches long
In which this child was found;
Six inches wide, five inches deep,
And was very closely bound.

The rest of this story will be largely an effort to reproduce in plain prose the story told with such fidelity to detail by the Rev. Mr. Barton, a copy of his ballad, printed on pale pink paper having been preserved by Mrs. Helms all these years. There will be some additional details, and some further data dealing with the boy's bringing up; but the rural poetry man really told the tale up to the date of his writing, with several stanzas of moralizing added.

The train was running at full speed,
The northbound Number Four,
And as she crossed Big River Bridge
They cast it from the door.

No. 4 was and still is the designation of the fast passenger train that comes north through Irondale, 70 miles south of St. Louis, about midafternoon, its destination being St. Louis. About a mile north of Irondale the Iron Mountain Railroad, now a part of the Missouri Pacific system, crosses Big River by bridge. Just north of the bridge is a deep cut, hewn into the limestone rock. Running north on down grade there, No. 4 always goes swiftly as it crosses the river. It was running more swiftly than usual on the afternoon of Aug. 14, 1902, because it stopped at Irondale to take sidetrack for No. 1 from St. Louis, and was late. William Helms, 72-year-old Civil War veteran, lived with his wife and two daughters in a log house of the two-room-and-attic type near the railroad bridge. Mr. Helms was building a log barn on his rented place. He needed a certain piece of timber which he knew he could find down by the bridge. He walked down that way.

About five minutes earlier he had heard No. 4 thunder past. As he paused near the cut to wait for a neighbor who apparently wished to speak with him, the old farmer heard a feeble sound, like the cry of a field mouse or a small bird. He glanced up to see if there was a bird in one of the trees. Then he glanced down, and lying close to the jagged rock wall in the railroad cut he saw a telescope grip. The squeaky sound seemed to come from that. He climbed down into the cut and picked up the telescope.

"Weren't you afraid to pick it up, Mr. Helms?" asked some timid person, later.

"Afraid? Why should I, who have seen hundreds of men die in battle, be afraid of a small satchel with a little wee sound coming from it? Humph!"

At one end of the satchel was a ragged hole. Mr. Helms lost no time in undoing the straps. Inside, occupying about all the space there was, he found a baby boy, "black in the face," as he described it. The child was clothed neatly, and packed in with it were some extra garments and a spool of black thread.

Mr. Helms quickly extracted the infant from its close and suffocating quarters. With the baby in one arm and the telescope under the other, he made fast tracks for his humble home. He said he was afraid the child might die before he got there.

Mrs. Helms received the baby with open arms. Annie, 14-year-old daughter of the Helmses, felt that it was a glorious gift, sent direct from heaven. She now is Mrs. James Armstrong, living on a farm near Hopewell, and she still feels that way about the Iron Mountain baby. But for the motherly Mrs. Helms the little Moses of the railroad cut was a matter of much worry and anxious care for months. Modestly she disclaims credit for keeping it alive.

"It was Mrs. Henry Ashbaugh, a neighbor and friend," she says, "that brought the boy around. He had been hurt when thrown from that train. The telescope had hit against the rock wall, it seemed, from the way the end was torn open; and the baby's head and one arm and a leg were injured. There was a dent in the head, and a swelling, at first. Mrs. Ashbaugh came in and helped. She bathed him in camphor, and finally he came around and began to pick up. But it was four months or so before he was really out of danger of dying from the way he had been handled before he got to us."

After a day or so Dr. Eaton of Irondale was called in. He rendered professional aid in saving the child. At the time it was believed that the man or woman who tossed the baby from the train must have got aboard at Irondale when No. 4 was sidetracked. The theory was that the infant could not have lived more than half an hour in the almost airtight grip. But Mrs. Helms said the other day:

"Dr. Eaton gave it as his opinion that the child might have been brought in that little telescope as far as 500 miles. He said it had been drugged."

This professional opinion gives opening for the "clew" of that Indiana detective, whose letter young William Helms still carries. The detective wrote to Farmer Helms that he believed the baby had been thrown from train No. 1, southbound from St. Louis. He had happened to be at Union Station, he stated, and had seen a young woman board that train on the date involved. She appeared to be in deep distress, he wrote, and she carried a little valise similar to the one described in the newspaper accounts. However, Mrs. Helms and Annie, who had been to Irondale, had crossed the railroad bridge and walked through the cut a few minutes after No. 1 went south, and they had neither seen nor heard any sign of the Iron Mountain baby's presence there.

The version still current at Irondale and in the Hopewell neighborhood is that the person who threw the child from the train got aboard either at Irondale or at Bismarck, six miles south, and that the purpose was to drop the telescope into Big River. As the train was going at high speed, the momentum carried the container with its precious contents some feet up into the railroad cut.

There is also a legend, fast fading into the murk of things that were, to the effect that a young woman, daughter of a merchant who in 1902 was living in a small town near Hopewell, disappeared from her home about that time and that her people moved away shortly afterward. In local gossip the name of that girl was coupled with that of a professional man in another town.

There is another remembered incident, hardly less thin as to ingredient for solution of the mystery. In the few days following the finding of the child, many women of Irondale and the countryside called at the Helms farm home to see the baby. One of these, so the tale runs, was a stranger to all the rest. She was young and was dressed in mourning, including a black veil. She took the baby in her arms, kissed it, wept, and went away.

When the boy was about 4 years old the Helms family received a letter from a Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, an elderly couple living in St. Louis. The Thompsons requested that Willie Helms be brought to this city. They said they had read about him and had taken an interest in his career. Members of the family brought the boy to St. Louis to be inspected.

THE IRON MOUNTAIN BABY

By the Rev. J. T. Barton

(Written in 1902)

I have a song I would like to sing.
It's awful but it's true,
About a babe thrown from a train
By its mother, I know not who.

This little babe, but a few days old
Was in a satchel lain,
Its little clothes around it folded
And thrown out from the train.

The train was running at full speed
The northbound Number Four,
And as she crossed Big River bridge
They cast it from the door.

A mother unkind, a father untrue;
But this I'm bound to say:
It must have grieved that mother's heart
To cast her babe away.

They bruised its head and hurt its arm,
The fall upon the ground.
A kind old man who lived on a farm,
This poor little baby found.

The valise was fourteen inches long
In which this child was found;
Six inches wide, five inches deep,
And was very closely bound.

It was Bill Helms who found this child;
He heard its helpless cry
And he took it to his loving wife—
She would not let it die.

They washed and bathed its little head,
And soon they hushed its cry.
May God bless them while they live,
God bless them when they die!

This little baby, bless its heart!
I cannot tell its name—
Has a mother to take its part,
A father just the same.

They call him William Moses Gould
Because he has no name;
But if he lives to be a man
He will wear it just the same.

Come one, come all, attention give,
[illegible] for all of you:
Teach your children how to live
And tell them what to do.

This wicked world is full of sin.
God help us all to pray
And be prepared to enter in [illegible] Judgment Day.

The Judgment Day will come to all,
The rich as well as poor,
Then God will take His children home,
For Jesus is the door.

This ends my song, my story told,
I'll say to all good-by
Until we meet around the fold
In that bright world on high.

How a Set of Whiskers Fooled a Whol

Mountain Park didn't think much of rocky Mount Radzminski and was quite willing to let Anton Soukup, "that crazy Bohemian," buy it up piecemeal as pasture for his goats—He got it at cheap farm-land prices, and the whole community laughed at him from 1915 until the other day, when he wired to Omaha for the man behind his money — Now the Commercial Club secretary says the goat farm is worth millions, being built entirely of a superior quality of granite, and the last laugh is on the Oklahoma village—And, incidentally, Anton has had his face trimmed :: :: ::

"Those big rocks I must have for goat pasture." Mr. Capps leaned back in his swivel chair and laughed.

Anton Soukup after his shave. Frank Svoboda.

ANTON SOUKUP got a clean shave the other day, with the exception of his upper lip. The shave was preceded by a subfacial haircut so that the barber's razor wouldn't get entangled in the underbrush. For about eight years Anton had been the beardedest man in Oklahoma, which is some distinction. When he first appeared at Mountain Park, a small town in the Wichita Mountains region of Kiowa County, along back in 1915, his whiskers already were a foot long. Though Southwestern Oklahoma is a measurably wild and woolly section, nobody down there had ground for boasting of or apologizing for such a hirsute wilderness.

Mountain Park people poked fun at Anton's whiskers. "The last of the Kansas Populists, I reckon," commented the town barber, who took an interest in ancient political history.

"Where you from, Mr. Soukup?" inquired the town's walking newspaper.

"I be Bohemian," replied Mr. Soukup.

"Looking for a job?"

"Yes, I not looking for a job; I looking maybe for some land; I be goat farmer."

"Yah! hah! haw!" yelled Mountain Park, all in chorus.

"You laugh out your other side of mouth, next," quoth Mr. Soukup, chewing meditatively a wisp of his whiskers.

If Anton had been a scholar he might have quoted "He laughs best who laughs last." That, in effect, was what he meant. As things have turned out, the laugh is on Mountain Park. Within those Soukup whiskers resided, all unknown to the little mountain village, the strength of a financial Samson.

Mountain Park is not to be censured unqualifiedly. Anton surely did look unpromising. His clothes were years out of date, and they were crumpled as if he had worn them since they really were in style. His hat suggested that he had robbed a cornfield scarecrow. His shoes resembled mudscows. His big hands were horny from honest toil.

Mountain Park had, and still has, a commercial club. W. G. Capps, president of the Planters State Bank, was secretary of the Commercial Club. Mr. Capps was an enthusiastic home-town booster, too. Though the place had less than 500 inhabitants, he knew it was a mighty fine town, and he was eager to do what he could toward making it grow and prosper.

Anton Soukup moseyed into the bank one day. President Capps looked up from his desk and beheld those whiskers and the worn old clothes. The Capps eyes twinkled, but the Soukup eyes twinkled back.

"I been looking around some," said Anton, "and I maybe like to buy me a little farm close to here."

Both President Capps and Secretary Capps were interested. Somebody has figured it out that every new citizen is worth at least $1000 to any community, if he is honest and industrious.

"Well, have you picked out any particular place?" asked Mr. Capps.

"That little farm at the end of Mount Radzminski," said Anton. "It takes in part of the mountain, yes?"

"Yes, it does, I believe," assented the banker. "But what in the world do you expect to raise there? We have plenty of farms you might buy, that would raise far better crops than you possibly could produce on that rocky place."

"I raise goats; I be goat farmer," said Anton. "Those big rocks I must have for goat pasture."

Mr. Capps leaned back in his swivel chair and laughed. Goats! Billygoats, nannygoats. What the mischief could any man do by way of making a living off goats? Still, this foreigner—you never could tell.

Mr. Capps insisted on showing Mr. Soukup several fine farms, though he really doubted the newcomer's ability to make first payment on any tract. The Bohemian goat farmer passed up all the fertile land and selected the 160 acres he had described to the banker. This quarter section adjoined the town on the northwest. It was almost untillable. Nobody had cared to cultivate it, save a few patches here and there. A sorry little house had been built on the land and was vacant. The "farm" included a considerable section of Mount Radzminski, a long, rock-built hill named in honor of a noted soldier and explorer of olden times, Lieut. Radzminski.

Anton planked down spot cash for the place, in full payment. This made the banker open his eyes wider.

"Why, he didn't look like he had 30 cents," remarked Mr. Capps, telling the incident to a bank customer who dropped in a little later.

"Oh, these foreigners; you know, they save money when a native American would be going into debt, and they carry all their wealth in their pockets," suggested the other.

"He said his wife thought she had consumption," added the banker, "and he thought maybe the mountain air might do her good. Well, let's hope so."

Presently Anton moved into his new-bought home. He brought along about a dozen goats of assorted sizes and both sexes. There was one old billygoat that had whiskers a'most as long as Anton's. They were by no means so thick, however. The goat farmer turned his animals loose on the farm, and straightway they scaled the most perilous of the granite peaks and began picking cactus for provender. Throughout Mountain Park's breadth and length the news of the goats' arrival spread speedily, and up went a guffaw that is said to have echoed back from Mount Scott, many miles to the northeast. At the barber shop, the bank, the postoffice, the general merchandise store, goat farming was the subject of many a quip and jest.

Along with his goats Mr. Soukup brought his "consumptive" wife and their daughter. The latter was Mountain Park laughed a lot more that Anton had added to his estate goat herd. A few baby goats had c brought from some mysterious point goats when he bought the second 16 to let that extra cactus go to waste.

"Oh, that crazy Bohemian!" cried "Must have goats on the brain!"

of Mount Radzminski. That crazy Bohemian! Buying up a mountain of solid rock, a big bunch of boulders, a long ridge of stone where you couldn't grow a new species of cactus without supplying special soil! Anton Soukup had become a standing joke. People of Mountain Park got to pointing him out when visitors came, saying:

"Just lookee there, will you? Our crazy Bohemian, one Anton Soukup, goat farmer. Gradually buying up a whole mountain of almost solid stone, that there long ridge you see yonder. Turns goats loose on it. Says he needs more land for his goats to pasture on. Every time he gets enough cash—and he seems to get some every season—he buys another quarter section. Owns the whole blamed mountain now, 'cept 20 acres or so at one end. Reckon he'll buy that next. Now just whadda ye think of such a crank, hey?"

"Yes," said Anton when somebody asked him if he didn't want to annex the remaining 20 acres; "I want this rest of mountain for goat runway."

It may be that he really meant "goat runaway," but maybe not. Anyhow, Mr. Soukup was about through with his goats. They had served their purpose, the mysterious purpose underlying all the Soukup operations at Mountain Park. The crazy Bohemian went after that 20 acres, offering an extra price when the owner insisted he needed it himself—to grow cactus for his family table.

And this year of our Lord, in fact, only a few weeks ago, Anton did buy the rest of Mount Radzminski. Every foot of the mountain area was deeded over to him and his allegedly consumptive wife, and with it a lot of level land at the foot of the ridge of rock. Anton's goats now had pasture a-plenty, and he quit buying more. Instead, he went to the Frisco Railroad station, locally known as "the deepo," and handed through the window to the telegraph operator a message to be wired to one Frank Svoboda, Omaha, Neb.

"Come to Mountain Park at once," succinctly read the telegram.

Svoboda came as fast as railroad cars could carry him. He dropped off the train, from the Pullman coach, one day not long ago and was met by a man who seemed to be a total stranger to Mountain Park.

"Hello, Anton!" sang Frank Svoboda, grasping the hand of the apparent stranger.

"Howdy, Mr. Svoboda," responded Anton; "right this way to hotel. My house little enough for you. Sorry too small."

"Oh, that's all right, Anton. How's the wife and girl?"

"Well as ever was, Mr. Svoboda. This climate healthy, maybe."

"And your goats? Are they fat and sassy, Anton?"

"I forgot about goats," replied Anton. "I turned them out and they lost themselves. They got wild, maybe."

All this time Mountain Park, gathered to see the day's train pass through, stood open-mouthed. Was it possible that this well-dressed stranger who greeted that other well-dressed stranger was none other than Anton Soukup, that crazy Bohemian goat farmer? Yes, it was impossible that he was anybody else.

Mr. Soukup had been to the barber! His chin and cheeks were virgin-smooth. The flesh looked tender, like a baby's. The barber had put on some sweet, smelly stuff and some talcum powder that enhanced the pleasant perfume. He had trimmed the upper lip's covering so that Mr. Soukup had a respectable mustache. The crazy Bohemian was transformed. Even Billy, herd head, hardly would have recognized his master had the latter scaled Mount Radzminski and disputed with the billygoat the monarchy of that high domain. But Billy, no longer useful to Mr. Soukup, was gamboling at his own more or less sweet will, his way being the wind's way, leaping where he listeth, or words to that effect. Anyhow, Anton Soukup had no more use for goats, having through their use put the laugh on Mountain Park.

"You laugh out your other side of mouth, next." Mountain Park recalled that remark, made eight years ago. The recollection was driven home with the force of a hammer hitting a tenpenny nail when Messrs. Soukup and Svoboda walked, arm in arm, from the hotel to the Planters State Bank and went inside for a private conference with President Capps, still serving as secretary of the Commercial Club. The talk lasted quite a spell. When the two men emerged, Mr. Capps sat silent and thoughtful at his desk. To the first man who entered, the same being as a matter of course the town's walking newspaper, Mr. Capps expressed himself thus:

"Several years ago a man who owned most of Mount Radzminski was in severe financial straits. He was mighty hard up for money. He came right into this bank one day and offered to give me a deed to the property if I would pay the taxes, which amounted to about $700. I regarded the offer as so ridiculous that it was almost an insult, and I ordered the fellow out of my office. He went, and he never came back. Today that same worthless property, that long ridge of rock, is worth several million dollars!"

"Wh-what?" cried the walking newspaper.

"Exactly that; and that crazy Bohemian goat beautiful girl, undeniably nontuberculous. Mrs. Soukup likewise showed no sign that she was consumptive. A sturdy matron she seemed to be. Still, as Mountain Park figured, you can't always sometimes tell about such matters, and a person who looks healthy may not be so after all.

The community liked Mrs. Soukup and her daughter, and if Father Anton had patronized the barber they would have invited him to all the local social functions on terms of equality. But with those whiskers! Why, every time Anton came around, somebody got off the old gag about the wind blowing through 'em; and that, of course, militated against Mr. Soukup's being a welcome guest at dignified affairs such as church ice-cream festivals and high-noon weddings.

Mr. Soukup didn't worry. He rather liked to be alone with his goats. Bearded Billy, head of the herd, was a champion climber. Sometimes he climbed to the tiptop of Mount Radzminski, 750 feet above the common level of Kiowa County, and at that altitude let the free wind toy at will with his whiskers. At this apex was a huge bowlder, looking like a giant potato, it being round and smooth, but he could stand beside it and through comparison show how big the boulder was. If it was gold it would be worth untold millions, but even if it was only granite it would be worth at least $1000.

Anton Soukup did some farming on the few acres that were tillable. He raised but little produce, though he didn't worry. There was enough to fodder his goats, piecing out the cactus diet. Now and then he exchanged some of his surplus turnips and spuds for canned goods and fresh meats in town. The family didn't need a cow, since goat's milk was abundant.

The following year Mr. Soukup bought another quarter-section, adjoining his first purchase. This included some more of Mount Radzminski. Again he paid cash.

"Wonder where the mischief he gets all his mazuma?" mused the town's walking newspaper. "Funny, how these here foreigners can pick up money where a 100-per-cent American would starve to death!"

Mountain Park laughed a lot more when it learned that Anton had added to his estate and also to his goat herd. A few baby goats had come, but Anton brought from some mysterious point a bunch of adult goats when he bought the second 160 acres. No use to let that extra cactus go to waste.

"Oh, that crazy Bohemian!" cried Mountain Park. "Must have goats on the brain!"

Anton had something on the brain that began with a "g," but it wasn't goats. It was something that required seven letters to spell, instead of only five; and it was a much harder proposition than goats. He bought some more land every year. He always bought adjoining land, and it included some more

The Ghost Portrait on the Wall

Head and face of Dean Liddell, famous Oxford cleric and scholar, plainly outlined under his own memorial window at Christ Church Cathedral —Bears a striking resemblance to his photograph — Spiritualists regard it as of occult origin—Subject of this mysterious likeness, who died 25 years ago, was the father of the Alice of "Alice in Wonderland"

IF THE Alice of "Alice in Wonderland" could return from the still more mysterious wonderland to which she went when she died some years ago, she would find, a few yards from her own home in England, something quite as wonderful as anything she is supposed to have seen when, in her father's garden, adjoining the old Christ Church Cathedral at Oxford, she stepped into a rabbit's burrow and went down, down, down into the land of wonder so vividly described in the book.

Alice would find on the outside east wall of the cathedral a "ghost picture" of her own father! Alice would be utterly unable to explain that. The things she saw and experienced in the book were taken for granted by the little girl, but this thing is different. It is a weird thing, an uncanny thing, a thing to make any little girl, or for that matter any big girl, shrink from passing close by that church wall at night.

The Alice for whom and about whom the famous book was written was a daughter of the Right Rev. Henry George Liddell, who for many years was dean of Christ Church Cathedral. It was in the dean's garden—and Alice's—that the clerical gentleman who wrote under the name of Lewis Carroll dreamed out his world-renowned "Alice" books. He, too, would be mightily mystified if he could come back to life and take a peek at that ghost picture. The staid old university town is mystified. The London press shares in the mystification. Everybody is mystified. The only thing actually known and settled beyond a doubt is that an outline likeness of the late Dean Liddell, who died in 1898, at the venerable age of 87, has appeared recently and remains on the outer wall of his beloved old cathedral.

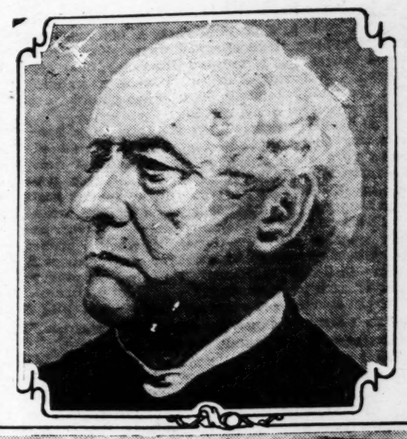
And that's not all—not by a jugful, as Alice might have expressed it. Near at hand stands a sculptured statue of the dean. Oxford professors, fellows, undergraduates, dignified dons, all and several, have studied the ghost picture and then gone a few steps and studied the statue. All and several have they admitted that the likeness is most striking.

But, what's still more wonderful, the family of the late Dean has supplied a lifelike photograph of the learned and beloved cleric and classical scholar; and with the photograph in hand, many persons have stood before the wall and been startled. They declare that the ghost picture and the photographed head and face show undeniably that the tracing on the wall is a lifelike picture of the dean.

A number of American tourists have made this comparison, reaching the same conclusion. London newspaper writers have visited Oxford and gone home to write spooky stories about the mystery. Eminent editors have done editorial "leaders" on the topic. So, as we see, this is no cheap ghost story, but apparently quite the real thing.

Under caption of "The Face on the Wall" the London Daily Express says editorially:

"The remarkable story from Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford, published in yesterday's Daily Express, is strikingly confirmed by the photographs which appear today. The skeptic will say at once that there must be a simple, practical and scientific explanation of the appearance in outline on the east wall of the face of Dean Liddell, who died more than 25 years ago. The psychic or mystic will certainly attribute to the supernatural so strange a phenomenon. One thing is new and clear in this 'appearance.' The resemblance between the actual face of Dean Liddell and the outline which now stands up just above the tablet to his wife's memory is so exact that there is here no question of a story created by imagination and embroidered by phantasy. This is really the face of the dean on the east wall. Its origin and explanation are another matter."



At top is a likeness of Dean Liddell from a photograph taken shortly before his death in 1898. Below is the "ghost face" of the Dean, reproduced from photograph of likeness that is gradually appearing on wall of Christ Church Cathedral at Oxford.

No light is thrown upon the mystery by the editor of the London periodical called Light, who heads his comment "The 'Ghost Portrait' on the Wall," and writes:

"The appearance of what is thought to be a delineation of the face of Dean Liddell on the east wall of Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford, may be due to pure coincidence. On the other hand, it may be so perfect a picture that such an explanation is ruled out. Only close investigation can settle the question.

"At present I can offer no theory. It is not the first time, however, that such a phenomenon has been reported. I recall a case in America several years ago, where some excitement was produced by stains of damp and fungus on a tombstone forming themselves into the face of the man whose body was buried there. The photograph showed a very distinct countenance.

"There have, indeed, been several such cases, but they were so much out of the line of ordinary psychical investigations that official research did not concern itself with them.

"These cases link up rather curiously with the subject of so-called spirit photography, in which the photographic chemicals seem to be used as the material for psychic action. An impression of some sort is made; we know not how. I have known a number of keen scientific men and practical photographers who are convinced of the reality of the phenomenon, although they may not always admit spirit agency.

"Now and again it happens that a face on these spirit photographs, instead of being separate and distinct, appears curiously blended with the background—cloth, foliage, flowers, and so on. In one case I examined the face of a dead soldier was seen in a wreath placed on the tomb of his little daughter, who died later and was buried near him. His relatives and friends were positive that it was his face.

"In such a case as the Dean Liddell image it seems necessary to ascertain that the 'portrait' is too definite to be produced by chance —I was about to say 'natural causes'; but spirit agency may be more natural than is generally supposed. If there were more of these cases it would be easier to generalize.

"It may seem a little remote, but I have sometimes speculated on the laws of form in nature. Such, for instance, as the frost pictures of ferns and trees on the window panes and the curiously human shapes taken by mandrake roots. Just how far these formative laws come into play in supposed psychic cases it is impossible to say. But this would hardly touch the Liddell case, where we have to choose between coincidence and deliberate action on the part of unseen agencies."

A special correspondent of the Daily Express thus tells, in brief, the tale of the spookish picture:

"The face of Dean Liddell, who died more than 25 years ago, is gradually appearing on the east wall of Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

"The mortar and cement in the wall are drying up with age in such a way as to leave a white patch of cement the size of a man's head, standing out from the darker color of the wall.

"This patch has now assumed the exact face and features of the famous dean. The face appears in profile. The chin, nose and head of the dean, with the bald crown of the head and the curly white hair below it, are clearly formed on the wall. It is expected that as the mortar and cement continue to dry up the face will disappear.

"The phenomenon becomes all the more strange because it has appeared just below the memorial window which was set up to the dean. The head in the wall is facing toward his wife's tablet, which is engraved in Latin, 'Farewell, sweetest and dearest, farewell.'

"Mr. W. Francis, the dean's verger at Christ Church Cathedral, is keenly interested. 'One does not like to put this down to anything occult,' he said to me today, 'but the appearance of the dean's face by his wife's memorial tablet is certainly an extraordinary matter. It has been gradually appearing for the last two years.' "

Spiritualists have begun to "investigate" the phenomenon. A conference of psychical experts was held in Oxford the other day. The ghost picture was inspected with a view to discovering whether there is anything supernormal in its construction and appearance. The official report of this inspection is awaited with interest by the public.

According to Charles H. Liddell, an English artist related to the late dean, there may be some connection between the phenomenon and the fact that Dean Liddell himself was an artist and was a friend of many painters and sculptors.

"Coincidence is impossible in this case," said Mr. Liddell. "The face is complete, even to an indentation on the temple, significant to phrenologists. It would be interesting to know if any reader can offer

The manufacturer paid a $5000 bonus and got the dyestuff for $30,000, or more than 60 times as much as he would have paid for it before the World War.

New Type of Bootlegging a Colorful Industry

Vast and involved system of blockade running and smuggling has become a feature of the dye business—Obtaining the German product by devious means—When a barrel of dyestuff, normally worth $1000 under the tariff, costs a manufacturer $30,000—How the exorbitant toll is reflected in the prices of articles of everyday use :: ::

WHAT has bootlegging to do with the color of the curtains on your front window?

At first glance this would seem to be an irrelevant question. But it isn't. There is a new form of bootlegging which is more colorful and at least as adventurous as the illicit traffic in intoxicants.

The housewife shopping at one of the big stores decides that she will buy a pair of cretonne curtains. With no technical knowledge to guide her in the exact designation of tints she tells the clerk she wants "something approaching cream color, but a little more yellow." That would seem to be an easy order to fill, and in truth the clerk loses no time in displaying a variety of cretonnes ranging from the rejected cream through buffs, canary and oriole yellows to gamboge, or even to shades approaching the yellowish brown warmth of burnt sienna.

The shopper is undecided, but it is evident that her choice will be a selection between two curtains with little perceptible difference in coloring. Both are yellow, though one has a slightly warmer tone. There is no difference in their texture. In fact, the goods for both came from the same bolt.

But when she prices them the shopper finds there a great difference. The lighter ones are $10 and the very slightly darker ones are $30.

"I can't understand it," she says.

"Neither can I," replies the clerk. And that's the truth. He is only a salesman and his employers have not taken him into their confidence as to their commercial reasons for putting prices so different on two curtains which to outward observation are just alike except for a minute variation in color.

The shopper and the clerk do not know that one of these curtains—the more costly one, of course, owes its hue to bootleg dye surreptitiously brought into the United States in defiance of the tariffs and the law against smuggling.

Here was a side of the picture they did not see. Within the last few weeks an American manufacturer found himself in need of a particular German dyestuff. He made cautious inquiries, just as a man might do if he wanted to replete his stock of contraband liquor. After many guarded inquiries he was told where he might obtain a barrel of the dyestuff if he was willing to pay well for it. The price demanded was $25,000. Before the war its price would have been $450. Under present tariff, its price, if it might have been imported in the regular way, would have been $1000. Smuggled goods are proverbially high. The manufacturer agreed to pay the $25,000 demanded.

The incident might have been considered closed, but a few minutes later the manufacturer's telephone bell rang. The man who had offered him the barrel of dyestuffs was on the wire.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but while I was talking to you my partner sold that barrel to another fellow. If you want to offer a bonus I may be able to get it for you yet." The manufacturer paid a $5000 bonus and got the dyestuff for $30,000, or more than 60 times as much as he would have paid for it before the World War.

It is easy to see how the use of this expensive dye would add to the cost of the curtains preferred by the shopper and raise their price far above that of an outwardly similar pair colored with American dyes which were not smuggled and were not purchased at bootleg prices.

This was not an isolated case. Similar deals are being made every day, despite the tremendous increase in the output of American dyestuffs since the war. For, although America now produces 90 to 95 per cent of all the dyestuffs used here, she has not wrested from the German chemists all of their secrets and there are still some German dyes which Americans need in their business and for which they are paying exorbitant prices.

Three years ago there were in common use about 500 varieties of dyestuffs that America could not manufacture. Now there are fewer than 50. Money has been spent lavishly in experimenting. Chemists have worked incessantly and manufacturers have spent large sums in support of these laboratory efforts. One textile man is said to have paid $400,000 to learn the secret of making a certain dye.

But why the bootlegging? The war is over. The traffic in dyes has not been interdicted by law as has the traffic in intoxicants. There is a regularly established tariff which contemplates the legal importation of dyestuffs from Germany or any other country which has them to sell. The answer is that peculiar after-the-war conditions have raised effectual barriers against the importation of dyestuffs.

Under the terms of the Versailles treaty the Germans were required to make regular deliveries of dyestuffs to the allies as part of the reparations payment. The United States Government received its share, which was turned over to the Textile Alliance and distributed to American manufacturers.

Even after making these reparations surrenders, Germany still had an excess of dyestuffs for regular export and shipments to other countries in the regular trade channels were under way when two things happened to interfere with this traffic. One was the passage of the Fordney-McCumber tariff, which put a heavy duty on German dyes, including those which did not compete with the American products. The other was the occupation of the Ruhr district by the French and the consequent stopping of the exportation of German dyes, most of which are made in the Ruhr district.

Still another barrier was raised when the United States decided that it was not entitled to reparations payments in dyestuffs and refused to accept them. This shut off the supply of those dyes without which many American manufacturers could not keep up certain of their established lines of merchandise.

What, then, is the source of supply of the smuggled goods which are finding their way into American markets? Who furnishes the cargoes for the "dye runners" which scrape sides with the "rum runners" just outside the three-mile limit?

Every country which received reparation dyes from Germany signed a protocol pledging itself not to resell the goods. But American gold is an irresistible lure and adventurous profiteers across the seas have braved the wrath of their own Governments and devised devious methods for getting a portion of this reparation dyestuff into the hands of Americans who are willing to pay well for it.

Much of the bootlegging dye comes from Italy and some from Belgium and France. It is the genuine German goods. That which comes from Italy is said to be part of the reparation surrender, while that which comes from Northern Europe has been smuggled out of the Rhineland through the French lines. Some of the cargoes are brought into American ports in the regular way and pay the tariff duty. Their owners travel with them and dispose of the goods at enormous profits. In many other instances the tariff duty is evaded and the landing of the cargo is made with all the surreptitious caution and cunning which attaches to that hazardous occupation known as smuggling.

Naturally, the secrecy which must surround either the selling of reparation dyes in allied countries or the smuggling out of dyestuffs from the occupied section of Germany make it impossible for the American manufacturer to order dyes for import in the usual open and aboveboard commercial way. Manifestly, they could not publicly put themselves in the position of being parties to the sale of reparations dyes in contravention of solemn treaty protocols and they could not openly connive at the running of the French blockade in the Ruhr.

This sort of situation is meat for the trafficker in contraband goods. He does not wait for orders. He takes his goods to the market which promises the greatest profit. Once there he makes known his presence and that of his cargo. Commercial necessity does the rest. The manufacturer who would not connive at the bringing in of dyestuffs will not hesitate to buy them after they are brought in. He demands only safety and secrecy in their delivery, and for this he pays a high price.

The building up of the first real dye industry which America ever had began when the United States, as a war measure, seized all German dye patents held in this country and laid open the secrets of manufacture which Germany had so jealously guarded.

Now German chemists are coming to America as their new field of endeavor in the dye business. They are bringing with them a great store of technical knowledge in the practical application of formulas and they are expected to be a great help in the development of the dye business in this country. This business, practically nonexistent at the outbreak of the war, has already shown a remarkable growth.

Approximately 65,000,000 pounds of dyestuffs were made in American in 1922—25,000,000 more than in 1921. The increased output has caused a drop in price on all dyes made in America.

Yet there are still some secrets locked up in the German laboratories. Certain dyes made there cannot be matched in America. The colors may be duplicated here, but other qualities are lacking. A small percentage of the dyes needed in textile manufacture must come from Germany.

And that's why one pair of cretonne curtains may be priced at $10, while another pair "just like them" may cost $30. Bootleg products come high.

"Mercy They look just alike. Why is one so much dearer than the other?"

NOW THAT THE SUN'S FIRES ARE B

Meteorologists and astronomers busy with the announcement of scientist at Smithsonian Institution that the heat radiation from the sun has diminished between three and four per cent in 15 months—Did this cause the extraordinary weather in various parts of the world, including excessive heat and cold, record falls of rain and snow, tempests on land and sea? — Prediction of a "great danger period" to reach climax in 1926-1927 :: ::

Rainfalls which broke all previous records in southwestern Australia.

Drouth for many weeks in the U. S., then thunderstorms and cloudbursts.

IN THE world of science the most interesting announcement, for a long time—and, at first thought, equally disquieting—is the statement that the radiation of heat from the sun to the earth has dropped between three and four per cent in the last 15 months.

Disquieting, indeed! If this drop should continue for the next 20 years, at the same rate, one would not have to go very far north of the equator, in 1943, to find Arctic weather.

However, there are more immediate things to worry about than when the sun will cease to warm this globe of ours. Astronomers can continue to speculate how far in the future this catastrophe is to be placed. It is a fact, however, that with the drop in solar radiation has come a period of abnormal weather all over the world which is worth recounting and then considering what connection there can be between those two striking phenomena.

Dr. Charles G. Abbot, director of the astro-physical observatory at the Smithsonian Institution, was the first to point out this peculiar behavior of the solar constant, or unit measure of the sun's heat reaching the earth under stated conditions.

About 10 minutes sufficed for Dr. Abbot to read his paper at the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences at Washington, but the matter has since been engaging the attention of many scientists.

Merely a brief survey of the world's weather during that 15-month period shows that there has been a strange aberration of the seasons, and extraordinary storms, in various parts of the world. The latest theory ascribes them to the earth's decreased supply of sun heat.

Everybody is interested in the weather, because everybody is affected by it, both directly and indirectly, in countless ways. The question of the sun's influence upon our weather has been a hotly disputed point among scientists for many years, mainly with regard to sun spots and their periodicity, or regularity of occurrence.

But still more arresting than Dr. Abbot's disclosure of the smallest heat radiation from the sun of which there is any known record, and coupled with it, is the prediction by another investigator that earth's "great danger period" will culminate in the years 1926-1927.

Even should the solar constant remain at its present low level, without slipping down any farther, there are other factors which, in the opinion of certain meteorological students, will lower our temperature to such a point that the earth might see a crop failure almost unparalleled in history.

These other factors, by the way, are the same ones which helped to create weather conditions in the famous year without a summer—1816.

Of course, the fact that our supply of heat from the sun has diminished almost 4 per cent in 15 months does not imply that another 4 per cent will be lost in the next 15 months, or that a dozen years hence the human race must huddle in the equatorial regions to avoid freezing to death.

For a long time astronomy has taught that the sun is cooling and that eventually it will become a dead star—a great, burnt-out cinder. Long before that dark morning arrives, life will have perished from the earth. Without sunlight, there can be no vegetation such as grows on the earth today, and hence no food to sustain either animal or human life.

It is assumed that long before the sun joins the other dead stars in the sky, an insignificantly small member of that vast multitude, all the internal fires of earth will have become extinguished. The water will freeze. Dark and cold, swept by bitter winds from the icy void through which it travels, earth will go down the ages untenanted except for the bones of creatures which once dwelt there.

But even that end to all sentient life on earth, although vouched for by the theory of evolution, is put by evolution at an almost inconceivably distant point in the future. Science believes that the heat from the sun will continue to maintain life on our planet for millions of years to come.

And even if it be true, as some theorists affirm, that earth has passed through not one but several "ice ages," and will pass through still more of them, the time is distant by so many milleniums that it really doesn't matter.

These facts, however, do not bar out from the possibilities such temporary disturbances in the weather as might seriously affect human life, in the form of death-dealing storms and also in conditions unfavorable to growing the world's food supply.

It is just that kind of a disturbance which has been predicted for the climax of earth's "great danger period," in 1926-1927, and which is believed by many to have molded 1816, the year without a summer.

After stating that the decline in the amount of solar heat reaching earth was the greatest since his observatory was established in 1905, and the greatest of which there is any scientific record, Dr. Abbot said to his Washington audience:

"All this being so, has anything unusual occurred in weather conditions which may have been connected with solar changes? We are not looking for anything so simple as a general drop of temperature all over the world.

"Oceans, deserts, mountains, clouds and winds make up too complex a system for such simple reactions. Profound departures of some sort from normal conditions, however, we might expect."

Before setting down some of the weather phenomena which have been mentioned as qualifying for "profound departures from normal conditions," and thus strengthening the theory of solar influence, it should be noted that some experts of the U. S. Weather Bureau hesitate to admit that the phenomena are abnormalities in the sense intended.

Their view is that average temperatures, for example, are the product of higher and of lower than average temperatures, and that the average temperature of a season at any stated locality remains the same over an extended period, such as 50 years, for example. Thus, although a certain summer may be warmer or wetter than the usual summer in that place, yet the figures will find their place among the figures for other summers, and will not affect the long-time average, say the Weather Bureau experts.

Indeed, Dr. Charles F. Marvin, chief of the bureau, has been quoted as denying that there is any variation in the solar constant or any validity in Dr. Abbot's deductions. In Dr. Marvin's opinion, the alleged variations are in fact atmospheric and not solar.

Be that as it may, and Dr. Abbot stands high as a scientist and has a goodly following, the world's weather would appear to have been mightily upset during the period of diminishing heat radiation from the sun. Seasons which paid no attention to the calendar, seasons of the natural kind but exaggerated to an extreme degree, thunderstorms, tempests and an extraordinary precipitation of rain and snow over wide areas have marked the weather record.

Moreover, it is stated that the sun's radiation of heat has decreased still further, since the 15-

Seasons which paid no attention to the calendar, seasons of the natural kind but exaggerated to an extreme degree, thunderstorms, tempests and an extraordinary precipitation of rain and snow over wide areas have marked the weather record.

Moreover, it is stated that the sun's radiation of heat has decreased still further, since the 15-month period elapsed, and that there are indications it may continue downward. One might almost say that the old world is suffering with chills and fever, and that our neglectful sun is to blame.

The extraordinary snowfall in upper New York State and New England will be remembered for years to come, unless the approaching winter should bring a still greater amount of it. The snowfall exceeded all records of the last 50 years in a region where winters are expected to be bleak and to bring plenty of snow.

In the language of meteorology, numerous "lows" came down across our northern boundary which were too weak to precipitate snow in the West and in the Great Lakes region, but which developed such vitality as they approached the eastern seaboard that they spread thick, white blankets as they passed. This happened not once, but repeatedly.

The same storms, moving in a general eastward direction from the land, swept the North Atlantic in an almost continuous series of terrific gales, making it the stormiest winter at sea which ever has been recorded. Great liners limped into port several days overdue, and with reports of the roughest passage which veteran seamen could remember.

The transatlantic passengers had reason for bragging at the pier of the dangers through which they had come unscathed. And some of them probably spoke simple truth when, following an old custom of travelers by sea, they quoted the captain of the ship as stating that it was the worst storm in all his experience.

An interesting aftermath of these gales, and one which added to the hazards of navigation, was the tremendous quantity of ice forced southward. Now and then the storms curved upward into Arctic regions, causing strong counter currents in northern waters which broke up the ice fields of Davis Strait and Baffin's Bay. These currents brought down the greatest amount of ice which had been noted off the coasts of Newfoundland in many years, and also an enormous flow of icy Arctic water.

Partly to these events in North America is attributed the cold spring which lingered in the British Isles and Western Europe until July 1, the Arctic water moving eastward with the Gulf stream and bearing its low temperature along with it. There were black frosts in the southern part of England in the last week of the calendar's spring, while the weather map at or about the same time showed snowstorms in Italy, in the Austrian Tyrol and in two departments of France. And freezing temperatures were reported throughout the same wide-flung area of earth—the lowest figures recorded in June for more than 200 years. Czecho-Slovakia experienced the coldest spring in 150 years.

Particularly notable among weather abnormalities was the severity of the winter in Argentina and Chile. The cold was rigorous and long-continued, storms frequent and snowfall excessive.

This data from South America is particularly interesting from the statement of persons believing in solar influence upon earth's weather that, in Argentina, there is a more direct and immediate response to changes in the solar constant than is exhibited in the northern countries.

The meteorological service of Argentina receives daily reports of the solar constant and uses them in forecasting both temperature and rainfall for that country and for Brazil. The periods thus covered are much longer than those in the American weather forecasts. The service in Argentina is said to have been a pronounced success.

Furthermore, reports from Argentina are used as one of the basic data in making long-range forecasts of the monsoon rains in India, which are said to be given with great accuracy months before the rains actually occur.

Just to emphasize how general was the disturbance in earth's weather, let it be noted that there were rainfalls, so heavy as to be absolutely unprecedented, in Southwestern Australia, extreme heat during midsummer in Western Europe and conditions which threatened the rice crop of all Japan.

In the United States, during many weeks of the summer, there was a widespread condition of drouth, and crops were saved only by a series of thunderstorms unsurpassed as a whole for their

A FLUTTER in FINANCE

by Arthur Somers Roche

ACROSS the breakfast table, Mrs. Jonathan Cornwallis looked furtively at her husband. The trim maid—the Cornwallises refused to employ men servants—had left the room, in accordance with her custom. The Cornwallises liked to have the last few moments of the morning meal to themselves.

"I wanted," said Mrs. Cornwallis, timidly, "to talk about Mary."

Her timidity was entirely assumed, as was the furtiveness of her glance. It was a well-established fiction between them that Jonathan was gruff and grumpy and must be approached delicately, circuitously.

"Well, now, what is it this time?" demanded the husband. "It seems to me that ever since Mary married her worthless professor I've done nothing but contribute to their support."

"Jonathan Cornwallis; you ought to be ashamed of yourself," his wife rebuked him. "You know that you're prouder of Mary for having married Tom Curtiss than if she'd married the President. The most distinguished explorer in America?"

"And what does the distinguished gentleman's wife want now?" demanded Jonathan.

"Well, the university can't send out the expedition to the south this year. Mary thought"——

"Oh, she thought, did she?" Jonathan's sarcasm was unconvincing.

"And I think," went on his wife, ignoring the interruption, "that it would be a very fine thing if you presented the university with half a million in order that the expedition should not be delayed."

"Humph! Haw!" grunted Jonathan. "It's a lot of money."

"Can't you spare it?" asked his wife.

"Permit me, madam, to finish my sentences. As I was about to say, it's a lot of money, but not enough. By tomorrow morning I expect that a certain matter, the details of which would bore you, will be settled. The first thing that I shall do will be to write a check, payable to the university for $1,000,000."

His wife rose, went around the table and kissed him. "Make it two million if you'll kiss me again like that," he said.

"You get sillier every minute," declared Mrs. Cornwallis.

"You get prettier," he countered gracefully.

"For a silly man you have amazing judgment," she told him.

"I wish you'd be more respectful, Mrs. Cornwallis," he said, sternly.

"Good morning, Mr. Cornwallis; it's time you went to your office and I attended to my day's labors," said his wife.

But she accompanied him to the front door, patted him on the shoulder as she helped him into his coat, and gave him, gratis, a million-dollar kiss before he left. So that he was smiling, greatly contented with the world and his place therein, as he entered his waiting limousine.

Today, although his wife did not know it—it was a surprise which he held in reserve for her—he expected to retire from the active management of his business affairs. For months he had been negotiating for the sale of his interest in the Federated Motor Patents Co. A combination of that concern with several other similar companies was almost effected. Once the final papers were signed, he would retire. It was a matter that involved the payment to him of some $15,000,000 in bonds of the new holding company, and it had taken months to get affairs in shape. Now they were in order. He planned to take his wife aboard a certain huge yacht and set sail for the South Seas. Dreams, that devotion to business had made it impossible to realize, were coming true at last.

So he smiled, his eyes half closed; and so he was unaware of the sudden threat toward his life that the carelessness of two chauffeurs created.

Seeing an opening between a taxicab and a truck in front of him, Cornwallis' chauffeur made for it. He blew his horn thrice as he did so, but instead of turning in toward the curb, the driver of the truck turned outward, to the left. And the driver of the taxicab, glancing back over his shoulder, seemed to lose his head completely. He applied the brakes to his car, and it came almost to a stop. Not even the quick braking by Cornwallis' chauffeur could prevent the limousine from being jammed between the two other machines.

Even so, the slow rate of speed at which the three vehicles were moving seemed to have precluded the possibility of accident. The policeman at the next street intersection was amazed when Cornwallis' chauffeur, who had leaped from his seat and opened the door of the car, and leaned inside, emerged and wildly waved his hands.

The policeman ran to assist. He waved the taxi and truck to the curb, and noting that, beyond a crushed fender and some scraped paint, the limousine had suffered no damage, he looked inside the body of Cornwallis' car.

"Shock, I guess," said the chauffeur.

The officer looked at the financier, whose form had slumped to the floor of the car, and whose face was white. He saw that the eyes were closed.

"Better rush him home," he advised.

He returned to the chauffeur, but that person was in the middle of the street, holding both hands high in the air, stopping an approaching ambulance. A white-jacketed man swung down from the interior and ran to the limousine. He laid a finger on the wrist of the unconscious financier; his face grew grave; he leaned farther inside, loosened Cornwallis' collar and placed his ear over the victim's heart. "Lucky I came along when I did," he said. He spoke to the chauffeur. "Help me carry him into the ambulance. I'll rush him to the hospital."

"Serious?" asked the policeman.

The ambulance physician shrugged. "He's an elderly man, and you never can tell what shock will do."

The officer produced a notebook. "Who is he?"

"Jonathan Cornwallis," replied the chauffeur.

The policeman whistled. "Well, it wasn't anybody's fault, really, but I think I'll have to arrest all three of you chauffeurs."

The ambulance was driven away, bearing the still unconscious financier, and the early afternoon newspapers proclaimed to an interested public that Jonathan Cornwallis lay in the private hospital of Dr. Morgan Leclerc, and that his condition was serious.

The stock market responds instantly to certain news. The exchange closed in the middle of a furious bear drive upon Federated Motor Patents stock. When the closing hour came to the rescue of the bulls, who, in view of the prospective amalgamation, had been active in the stock, they had suffered a loss of five points. In a $30,000,000 corporation this amounted to a million and a half. For all the world knew that, in the event of Cornwallis' death, the proposed amalgamation would be indefinitely postponed, and his stock would not be worth nearly so much as its recent quotations.

Not merely as a financier, but as a philanthropist, Cornwallis was of interest to the public. It read every bulletin issued by Dr. Leclerc and Dr. Madison, the private physician of the millionaire, who agreed with Leclerc that it would be fatal for Cornwallis to be moved from the hospital, and who even refused admittance, to the sick chamber, to Mrs. Cornwallis and her daughters.

Next morning Cornwallis' associates in the amalgamation rallied to the defense of their stock, but shortly before closing hour a drive of sales depressed

The Tale of a Strange Accident---and Clever Detectives

"One of those carpenters tripped on a stair; his lunch box fell and the lid flew open. Do you know what kind of sandwiches those workmen eat? Yellow ones!"

the price badly. It closed two points worse than the day before. On the next day the stock rallied in the early hours, but after luncheon it reached a new low level.

During all this time Drs. Madison and Leclerc issued bulletins, and the world learned that Jonathan Cornwallis seemed to be losing steadily in his battle for life. He had not recovered consciousness. His wife had finally been admitted to the sickroom, but was permitted to remain only a moment; her own condition was near to collapse.

On Saturday, at closing time, Federated Motors had dropped 25 points, representing a loss of over $7,000,000. Those men interested in keeping up the price visited the physicians in charge of the unconscious financier and pleaded with them to issue more favorable bulletins, or to cease issuing any reports whatsoever concerning the condition of Cornwallis. The doctors indignantly refused, justly replying that Jonathan Cornwallis was a national figure, and that the right of the public to receive information concerning him was superior to the rights of a clique of stock traders. Even the representation made to them by Cornwallis' attorneys—that they were costing their patient millions—failed to move them.

"The most ethical bunch of throat-cutters I ever ran into," declared ex-Senator Devine of Devine, Bellows, Devine & Devine, attorneys for Cornwallis.

He was speaking to his nephew, the junior member of the firm, Anthony Devine. They were dining at their club.

The young man grinned. "If I weren't a practicing lawyer, and didn't know better, I'd say there 'ought to be a law.' Certainly doctors ought not to be permitted to ruin their patients."

His uncle smiled wryly. "Not financially, anyway."

He called to an immaculately dressed gentleman, with graying hair, keen eyes, and a thin, sensitive nose.

"Hello, there, Pelham," he cried. "Why not show a friendly spirit?"

Smilingly, Jimmy Pelham, the silent partner in the Tryon Detective Agency, approached and dropped into a chair at the table of the two Devines.

"I dislike to offer advice to a distinguished member of the bar, but if I were you I'd gag the loquacious physicians of your client, Jonathan Cornwallis. I hear talk to the effect that their garrulity has cost their patient, and your client, millions already."

"You hear truth," declared the senior Devine. "If the accident to the old gentleman had been foreseen, and his doctors bribed, it couldn't have worked more strongly to his disadvantage."

"Who's behind the bear raid?" Pelham asked.

Devine shrugged. "Simmons & Leidy are the brokers handling practically all of the selling in Federated Motors. Why?"

Pelham's forehead wrinkled. "What sort of a firm are they? Seems to me that I've heard rumors about them."

"Well," replied the elder Devine, cautiously, "I respect the libel laws highly. But I will say that if they hadn't had excellent counsel they'd have been suspended last winter."

"Who are their clients in that attack on Federated Motors?" asked Pelham.

Young Devine laughed grimly. "If we could answer that, don't you think we'd have been to see them?"

"Why, we'd have arranged some sort of compromise," ejaculated the elder lawyer.

Young Devine vented some of the anger within him. "You'd think that Simmons & Leidy knew the exact moment when old Cornwallis was going to have his accident. They'd been selling quietly from the moment the exchange opened, and the minute that news of the mishap reached the exchange their floormen began unloading with both hands. It couldn't have been timed prettier."

Pelham's brow came closer together. "Unless this accident, which prevented the closing of the amalgamation, had occurred, the stock would have gone 'way up, wouldn't it?"

"Bound to," assented Tony Devine.

"No sane trader, then, would have tried to bear the market on Federated Motors?" asked Pelham.

"No sane one," answered the elder Devine emphatically.

"And it didn't look like a spontaneous movement, this selling? It looked like an organized plan, eh?"

The two lawyers exchanged glances. "What are you driving at?" demanded the older man.

Pelham ignored the question. "Since they were so close to bankruptcy and suspension last winter, have Simmons & Leidy numbered any big operators among their clientele?"

The Devines shook their heads. Tony answered: "They've barely kept above water."

"It wouldn't be possible to find out whom they're acting for?" inquired Pelham.

"We've tried," said the elder Devine, "but there are no leaks in that office."

"Suppose I try?" suggested Pelham.

"What are you driving at?" asked the senior lawyer again.

"I made a suggestion; do you wish to retain me?" fenced Pelham.

"You're retained," said the former Senator.

The more Jimmy Pelham thought about the bear raid on Federated Motors the more he became convinced that design, not coincidence, had timed the beginning of the selling operation. If Pelham could find out who had learned of the accident at about the moment of its occurrence, he would be near to knowing who was behind the bear raid.

Of course, some stock speculator, passing in his own motor, could have seen the collision between Cornwallis' limousine and the other cars. But, even had he recognized the old man, and seen that he was unconscious, he would hardly have assumed that his accident was serious. No sensible man would have risked hundreds of thousands on such a chance. And yet, according to further information given him by the Devines, thousands of shares of Federated Motors had been offered for sale the minute the exchange opened, a good two hours before news of the accident had become public.

The accident had occurred at 9:30. The old man must have been in Dr. Leclerc's hospital by 9:45. Between that time and 10 o'clock information as to the financier's condition must have reached the client of Simmons & Leidy. Who had given that information?

By Tuesday morning he had definitely learned that only one telephone call had been recorded in the central office as having been made from the hospital between the hours of 9:30 and 10:45. That call had been put in at 9:55 and was to Mrs. Cornwallis. And the Cornwallis telephone had not been used, for an outgoing call, until after 11 o'clock.

Clearly, then, the information as to the injury to the financier had come from neither the hospital nor his home.

Senator Devine, by Tuesday, was close to nervous prostration. For the attacks on Federated Motors seemed to have gathered new vigor over the week-end. The stock slumped badly on Monday, and sank even lower on Tuesday. At first almost jesting in his retaining of Pelham's services, the lawyer, catching at a straw, was frantic in his appeals to the detective to "do something."

Pelham went to the police station to which Cornwallis' chauffeur, and the drivers of the taxicab and truck, had been taken on the morning of the accident. Here he learned that, in view of Cornwallis' condition, the three chauffeurs had been held on heavy bail. Ten thousand dollars in each case.

Downtown he found out the name of the lawyer who had represented the drivers. And now his pulse began to quicken, for the same lawyer had represented all three men. Pelham called upon him and plumped a question at him:

"Who retained you to act for the chauffeurs involved in the accident to Jonathan Cornwallis?"

The criminal lawyer lost his smile. "That's funny," he said. "I've been puzzled myself. I wondered why the same man was interested in all three. However, he had a fairly plausible reason. Said that he was representing a new insurance company. Said that these three men all had policies protecting them, guaranteeing them lawyers in case of trouble that arose from accidents that occurred in the line of their employment. He paid me a fee, and put up $30,000 in cash as bail."

"I don't see anything in that to puzzle you. Casualty insurance isn't anything new," Pelham asserted.

The lawyer grinned. "That's what I thought, until, quite by accident, I learned that the Chauffeurs' Interstate Casualty Co. has no existence."

Pelham uttered an exclamation of dismay. He left the lawyer's office and raced uptown in a taxi, inwardly moaning because he had not got to work on this case—if it really proved to be a case—days earlier.

That there had been clews he was certain after an interview with the housekeeper at the home of Mrs. Cornwallis. The financier's wife was unable to receive him, but the elderly maid who attended to the domestic management informed him that Gaffney, Cornwallis' chauffeur, had not been around the premises since the accident. A visit to the rooming house where Gaffney had been living revealed the fact that the chauffeur had not been seen there since the morning of his employer's last ride.

Another visit to the police station gave Pelham the numbers of the taxicab and truck which had figured in the collision. He telephoned Jerry Tryon and suggested that Jerry put men to work running down the owners of those cars, and also finding, if possible, their chauffeurs. Then he went to the bank where Simmons & Leidy kept their account.

Bankers are very reluctant to divulge information concerning their patrons, but in these days the name of Pelham had a magical effect. He told what he wanted, addressing himself to no less a person than the president of the bank.

"Simmons & Leidy? A week ago Saturday they deposited $300,000."

"Was that unusual?" asked Pelham.

"Well, even the amount would be a bit unusual for them; they had been carrying a small balance since their difficulties with the exchange authorities last winter. But a deposit of $300,000 in cash is rather unusual at any time."

Dr. Leclerc alighted from a taxicab before the shabby house on Twenty-third street.

Pelham pursed his lips. "That's funny," he conceded.

"The rest is funnier still," declared the banker. "As you know, they have been doing all the selling of Federated Motors. They've made a profit of close to ten millions. And most of that amount has been withdrawn."

Pelham leaned eagerly forward. "That's exactly what I want to hear. To whom have their checks been payable?"

"To cash," replied the banker.

"But that's incredible!" cried Pelham.

"Nevertheless, it's true. They've deposited, in one afternoon, checks from 50 brokerage houses. On the next day they have come to the bank, one or the other of the partners, accompanied by bodyguards, and have withdrawn as much as a million dollars in cash."

Pelham stared at him. "Why?" he demanded.

The banker smiled. "You're the one to answer that, not I."

Pelham sat up late that night, going over the matter with Tryon.

"The only thing," said Jerry, toward the end of their talk, "that seems to shed any light on the situation is the mention by Carey, the banker, of the Gray Ghost."

"I don't see where he comes in," objected Pelham.

"That's exactly the point," retorted Tryon. "When you don't see his hand, you can sort of figure that it's there, somewhere."

Pelham chuckled. "Jerry, you're an old woman."

"Maybe so." Jerry was stubborn. "You and I certainly do differ on the Gray Ghost. One day you see him everywhere, and he don't even creep into a corner of my eye. Next day I spot him in something, and you're colorblind so far as he's concerned."

Pelham laughed again. But long after Jerry had left the apartment Pelham sat staring into the flames in his fireplace. He admitted to himself that he had suspicions that something crooked lay behind the bear raids on Federated Motors. The speculation of the Gray Ghost would be such only in name; in reality it would be an operation conducted with the certainty of an engineer repeating a proved problem.

The Gray Ghost would pick his stock; he would make its fluctuation, its rise or fall, absolutely certain. He would pick a stock of which great things were expected along a certain line and cause opposite things to happen.

But why not be specific in his dreamy theorizing? The Gray Ghost picked Federated Motors; he arranged for an accident; he planned to capitalize that accident. • • •

Pelham arose from his chair, laughing at his own absurdity; this was a little too far-fetched.

Next morning he ordered Slim Dickenson, the Maine guide whom he had brought from the woods as his personal attendant—and friend—to go to the offices of Simmons & Leidy and open an account.

"I want to find out who is the client that is raiding Federated Motors," he told Slim, "and why Simmons & Leidy make such tremendous cash withdrawals from their bank."

He himself sought the scene of the accident and made himself known to the policeman on duty in the neighborhood, who was properly impressed at meeting the Gray Ghost's great opponent.

"A private matter, officer," Pelham explained. "We've been trying to trace the drivers of the truck and taxi. It seems that they either had false numbers or you didn't read them correctly."

Tryon's operatives had reported that the numbers given by the policeman were registered as belonging to owners of private cars up-State.

The officer shook his head. "I got those numbers right," he declared. "Catch me making a mistake when a person like Mr. Cornwallis is injured. Say," he added, "that ambulance surgeon dropped something out of his pocket. So long as you are working for Mr. Cornwallis or his wife, you probably will see the doctor before I'll find time to get around to his place. Would you give him this?"

He handed Pelham a small leather case. Pelham took it and thrust it carelessly into his pocket.

"Of course I will," he promised.

"I'd say that old boy, Cornwallis, must have a terrible case of heart trouble, to be unconscious this long," declared the policeman. "He wasn't even touched."

"Well, he's an old man," said Pelham.

Dickenson returned to Pelham's apartment that afternoon with a report of his experiences.

"There's a bunch of workmen in the offices of Simmons & Leidy. Makin' alterations. Busy there all the time, tearing down partitions and building new ones. Well, I took a look around. They have a couple of safes, but, believe me, I wouldn't trust a nickel of mine in one of them. Old-fashioned affairs that any yegg could blow.

"And yet Simmons & Leidy are bringing about a million dollars a day in cash to their offices.

"But they don't trust those safes." He paused, dramatically.

Pelham paid him the compliment of excitement. "Go on, Slim!"

"The workmen all quit at noon; they all had lunch boxes with them. You'd have thought they'd eat in the hall or on the stairs. Well, sir, they all went downstairs, carrying their lunch boxes. I followed them; sort of thought I might mix in and get acquainted."

"Did you?" asked Pelham.

"I did not," answered Slim with emphasis. "Why? Listen. One of those carpenters tripped on a stair; his lunch box fell and the lid flew open. Do you know what kind of sandwiches those workmen eat? Yellow ones!"

"Go to it, Slim," ordered Pelham.

"Big yellow bills! The lunch box was jammed with money. That's where the cash goes! Well, I telephoned Mr. Tryon; he rushed a couple of men right over. They followed the workmen into a cheap restaurant, just a coffee place. They all ordered coffee, and the waiters there, when they brought them coffee, managed to get the money out of their boxes and substitute food. Oh, according to Mr. Tryon's men, every last one of them was a sleight-of-hand artist."

"Pickpockets are," commented Pelham.

"You're getting it," cried Slim. "Well, I watched the waiters. Leastwise, I watched a couple of them. The operatives tipped me off as they came out. They were carrying suit cases, and they took them, riding in a taxi, to a house on Twenty-third street. One of those houses set 'way back from the street, with a yard and fence. They went in, and they're there yet, so far as I know."

For a long time after Slim had finished, Pelham was silent. How could the Gray Ghost have foreseen, with certainty, that the financier would be immediately rendered unconscious by the accident, and that he would remain so for the better part of two weeks?

He jammed his hands into his pockets; the fingers of one hand touched something. And he knew!

He could not act without further evidence; but that came to him at 9 o'clock that night. For at that hour Dr. Leclerc alighted from a taxicab before the shabby house on Twenty-third street, looked furtively about him, and swiftly went through the gate and up the walk. As he was admitted to the house whither the waiters of the lunchroom had carried the money, Tryon and Pelham, leading a score of the bravest of their operatives, smashed down the door, and entered the building. • • •

"When," asked Jerry Tryon late that night, "did you begin to agree with me that the Gray Ghost was in this matter?"

"When I discovered this," said Pelham. He held out the little leather case that had been given him by the policeman. "Know what it is?"

Jerry wrinkled his forehead. "It might hold a fountain pen," he said.

Pelham laughed grimly. "It might, but it didn't. It held a hypodermic needle. The policeman said that Dr. Leclerc dropped it. But if Leclerc hadn't dropped it, and if the chauffeur of Cornwallis had dropped it, it explained everything."

"Of course," cried Jerry. "The missing link in the plot. The chauffeur leaned through the limousine door and jabbed the old man"——

"Exactly," said Pelham. "I had to find a connection between Leclerc and the speculators. And when Leclerc showed up—well, we know the rest. He's confessed and so has Madison, to being bribed to keep Cornwallis drugged. But if we could only find the man who bribed them"——

"Who is the Gray Ghost," declared Tryon.

"Or an agent of his," amended Pelham. He sighed. "If only he'd bring suit to recover the millions in cash we found in that Twenty-third street house!"

"Well," said Jerry, "this is one time the Gray Ghost loses."

Pelham's face grew grave. "Think of the times he's won" he said, soberly. "Also, think of Cornwallis, drugged for a fortnight; of his wife—Jerry, the Gray Ghost owes more than he can ever pay."

"He'll settle his debts some day," declared Tryon savagely.

"Perhaps," said Pelham.

any explanation of the consummate grace and spiritual effect with which some painters invest their subjects. How is it that some put soul into their likenesses and manifest so much psychic force which deeply inspires us?"

Lady Liddell, wife of Sir Frederick Liddell, son of the dean, is quoted as saying that she and other near relatives adhere to the theory of natural coincidence. Said Lady Liddell:

"The psychic theory of the materialization of thought faces is untenable, since, so far as we know, no friends of my father-in-law are alive today. Until the markings become so plain as to overstep the bounds of coincidence we must accept the commonplace. My nephew, recently an undergraduate of Christ Church, agrees that the markings have become more noticeable lately, but we ascribe it to increasing damp."

London newspapers cite a ghost picture similar to that of Dean Liddell. There appeared in 1890, on a stuccoed wall of the Town Hall at Cardiff, Wales, the features of Alderman William Sanders, a former Mayor, who was dead; they were clearly visible and were seen by thousands of persons. The picture appeared months after Sanders died, faintly at first, then more distinctly. The building has been demolished, and we do not learn whether the Alderman's ghost likeness faded out or remained until the demolition.

Spiritualists who live in Oxford are said to be convinced that the Liddell likeness has an occult origin. A newspaper correspondent who talked with several of them stated that they declared the picture was planted there by "thought impressions," either the thought impressions of somebody who has "passed over" or those of a medium who knew the dean in life and has been in the habit of attending services in the cathedral.

An official of the Psychical Research Society told the correspondent:

"It seems to me, as the portrait has taken time to develop, that it is caused by damp stains, and that the likeness to the dean is simply a coincidence. If the portrait disappeared suddenly and reappeared, I should say that there was evidence of the supernormal."

"The idea that the ghost picture has been faked cannot be entertained by any reasonable person who inspects it carefully, as I have done, and who talks with the staid and elderly servitors of the cathedral," concludes the writer mentioned above.

Other markings on the cathedral wall are said to resemble dead officers of the church. One, according to report, reproduces the face of a chorister and another the face of a verger. A marble tomb erected in the reign of Charles II carries the impression of a bearded face.

Dean Liddell, born in 1811, was graduated from Christ Church with highest honors in 1833. From 1846 to 1855 he was headmaster of Westminster School. In 1862 he became chaplain extraordinary to Queen Victoria. He was made dean of Christ Church Cathedral in 1855, and from 1870 to 1874 he was vice chancellor. In 1855 he wrote a "History of Rome From the Earliest Times to the Establishment of the Empire," but he is known best as the author, together with Dean Scott, of the standard "Greek Lexicon." Every English schoolboy for 80 years past, who has studied Greek, has known Dean Liddell through this work.

Thus, as it happens, the ghost picture is that of a dead man whose name is familiar to millions of living men.

Life Story of the Iron Mountain Baby

The Thompsons requested that Willie be left with them for a few days, but the Helmses had grown so fond of him that they declined the proposition. Later, clothes and money were sent to the boy by the St. Louis couple.

"We don't know just what to think as to the Thompsons," said Mrs. Helms the other day. "We learned some years ago that both of them had died. Where they lived in St. Louis we don't recall, as the correspondence was burned."

So it's still a mystery. If the parents of the Iron Mountain baby, or either of them, survives and sees this page, it may be of interest for them to know that the little one, who, according to Irondale and Hopewell tradition, was saved through a miracle, is a bright and ambitious young man, studious, religious, and of proved honesty. He finished the rural school at Hopewell, which is four miles north of Irondale, six years ago. Then, after the death of Mr. Helms, he worked for a year or so in a sawmill to help provide for Grandmother Helms, who had only her widow's pension. Three years ago Mrs. Helms and William went to Salem, Mo., where the boy entered the high school. He worked his way through by setting type and kicking job presses in the office of the Salem News, a weekly paper.

"I am studying stenography now," he said to this writer, "so that I can work at it while going through college. It will help me when I become a lawyer, too. I intend to get the best education possible."

Bald Men Grow Hair

Surprising reports are coming from men who were bald or losing hair and who acquired a new, vigorous growth by using Kotalko that awakens life in dormant hair roots.

"Four inches of hair have grown over what was a bald spot," is the report of G. W. Mitchell. "I had a large bald spot and real, healthy hair has developed all over my head" writes C. F. Heiser. Imagine the enthusiasm of Albert H. Flary when he reported: "My head was as bare as the bottom of my feet and now I have a good growth of hair." Geo. M. Schwank reports that even with a second application of Kotalko his hair stopped falling; then a new growth started.

Anyone who is losing hair, or is bald may obtain a full size box of Kotalko at a huge druggist, or a proof box of Kotalko free and postpaid merely by writing to Kotalko Offices. BO-95, Station L, New York.

How a Set of Whiskers Fooled a Whole Town

farmer has bought up every foot of it for that wealthy granite works man from Omaha. Well, if our foresight equaled our hindsight, things might be different."

It required some little time for President Capps of the bank to get back his bearings, but in the end Secretary Capps of the Commercial Club brought him around.

Mr. Svoboda is head of the Svoboda Granite Corporation. Mount Radzminski is built of solid granite. Nobody knows how many tons it contains, all above ground and easy to handle. Mr. Capps and Mr. J. H. Ferguson, another enthusiastic town booster, declare that there's enough granite in sight to keep 500 men working for 50 years to blast and ship it out, and nobody knows how far down into the bowels of the earth the valuable stone extends. The granite is said to be in various colors. There is one hue prized particularly by sculptors. It is of a flesh tint. Already, it is said, artists who carve human figures in granite have examined specimens of this flesh-tint stone and gone into raptures.

"And all these years," says Mountain Park in doleful chorus, "we've just stood around with our eyes shut and our mouths open, and let this Bohemian detective, that we thought was crazy, buy up this mountain at cheap farm-land prices and get away with it. Huh!"

However, both as banker and as Commercial Club executive, Mr. Capps sees the silver lining. Mr. Svoboda already has opened up 10 granite quarries on the mountain and expects to open up many more. He has spent about $200,000 on the project and says he has as much more which he expects to spend in development. He promises to build houses for his hands.

"And won't that," asks Mr. Capps, in his dual capacity, "be the finest thing that could happen to Mountain Park? Why, we'll have five times our present population in a short time, and look at the money that's being spent and is going to be put in circulation here! It's an ill wind that blows nobody good, even from a goat pasture."

Mountain Park now recalls that about eight years ago John M. Hazel, a townsman, split a big granite boulder that lay near the railroad tracks. It had rolled down from the mountain of granite. He sold it to some monument manufacturers. One block reached the granite finishing works owned by Frank Svoboda, in Omaha. Svoboda, having learned where it came from, went at once to Mountain Park and inspected Mount Radzminski thoroughly, with an eye to future conquest.

It was right after that visit that Anton Soukup, foreman for the Svoboda works in Omaha, began to let his whiskers grow. They grew and they grew and they grew. When they had reached the length of a dozen inches, Mr. Soukup put on his oldest suit of clothes, his batteredest hat, his heaviest working shoes, and turned up in Mountain Park as aforesaid. You know the rest, already.

Anton Soukup speaks better English now. Mrs. Soukup has recovered altogether from any suspicion of tuberculosis. That mountain air certainly did her a world of good. Miss Soukup is a reigning belle in Kiowa County by her own right of beauty and charm.

"And now," suggests Mr. Capps, "I really think we shou'd hire some famous sculptor to come down to Mountain Park and sculp out of that flesh-tinted granite, a heroic statue of our leading citizen. Mr. Anton Soukup, the great detective who has put this town on the map."

And the town wag—there's always a town wag in a place the size of Mountain Park—supplements that suggestion with this:

"Yes, and let him sculp another figger out of this here black granite, the heroic figger of Billy the goat, whiskers and all."

Laughter as an Aid to Digestion

"LAUGH and grow fat," declares an old adage. And there is truth in it, according to Dr. J. H. Kellogg, who explains the scientific basis for the ancient advice as follows:

"The moving of the food from place to place along the alimentary canal is done chiefly by the intestine itself, but in part the work is done by the diaphragm. The stomach lies just underneath the diaphragm, which is simply a thin, muscular partition, with the heart on one side and the stomach on the other.

"In action, the diaphragm moves up and down upon the stomach. As we breathe out and in, the diaphragm moves the stomach up and down, so that the contents of the stomach are churned by the process. If one breathes deeply, this churning movement is quite vigorous. If one breathes very slowly and superficially, then the action of the diaphragm upon the stomach will be very little.

"This is the reason why, when people go to sleep directly after eating, food remains a long time in the stomach. The breathing is repressed to such a degree when we are asleep that the food remains in the stomach nearly twice as long as when we are awake.

"The effect of laughing is to increase the action of the diaphragm. A hearty laugh thus renders valuable assistance to digestion, not simply because there is a pleasant state of mind, which makes the condition favorable for all the functions of the body, but because of actual mechanical assistance."

Now That the Sun's Fires Are Slackening!

number and severity, along with floods and cloudbursts which were quite local in character. Proponents of the solar theory, it may be mentioned at this point, say it is quite unfair to figure a five-inch rainfall as the same whether it has come from a sudden, localized cloudburst or from a steady, continuous downpour. The method may be accurate as a mathematical proposition, but not as a meteorological record, they say, in reply to conservative scientists who cling fast to their annual averages.

A spectacular incident in the topsy-turvy weather during the time of the sun's diminishing radiation was the behavior of the "Azores high," and deductions which may be made from it. Due to Dr. Abbot's statement about our lessened supply of solar heat, the lines of low and high pressure on the weather map have been studied with unusual care, and some interesting conditions have been noted.

The case of the "Azores high" excited much comment. This "high" always forms over the cold water of the Atlantic, and ordinarily is found east of the Azores Islands, often stretching as far as Italy. Since areas of high pressure invariably have a clockwise motion, the "Azores high" served to hold back from Europe the extreme heat of the Sahara Desert, by constantly pushing it back.

For two months during the past summer the "Azores high" was out of its usual place and far to the southwest of the Azores. During that same two months' period, temperatures in Western Europe broke all records for heat. The heat, it was contended, came from Sahara and was permitted to reach Europe by the displacement of the "Azores high."

Certainly it is significant that on the same day when the weather map showed the "Azores high" as back in its normal position, press reports told of the great heat wave in Europe being broken with severe electrical storms.

Valuable as is the record of past weather, the average person feels much more concern about the weather which is yet to come. Harold J. Browne of Washington, D. C., is the author of the forecast that earth's "great danger period" will culminate in the years 1926-1927.

Browne has been studying meteorology for years, not for strictly scientific ends but as a very important element in business economics. He argues that the three primary essentials of human life are food, clothing and shelter, of which two depend entirely on weather conditions, while the third is strongly influenced by those conditions. As a consequence, Browne has paid special attention to the subject of long-range forecasting.

In the discussion of Dr. Abbot's statement about diminishing solar radiation, Browne emphatically expressed his belief in its validity and importance. He also stated his belief that such work as Dr. Abbot's is the very cornerstone of meteorology, and that until the varying changes of the solar constant, and their effect upon weather and climate, have been studied, forecasting will be empirical and unscientific.

The fact should be noted that, in January, Browne predicted the numerous cold waves which extended into June, the thunderstorms which have figured so conspicuously on weather maps since May and the drouth conditions over large sections where crops had their only chance of existence from those thunderstorms. Among his other long-range forecasts was that the gulf states would receive the excessive rains which have damaged the cotton crops.

According to Browne, if the solar constant remains at its present low level, a period of not less than three years and of not more than 10 will be required for a stabilization of the weather under the new conditions of heat radiation. He foresees occasional warm months in winter, cold springs, with alternations of heat, drouths relieved by thunderstorms and cloudbursts, late frosts in spring and early frosts in autumn. Decidedly, not an encouraging prospect for truck gardeners and fruit growers.

The sun spots come into the problem, too, and make the possibilities worse. During the period of minima of sun spots, as at present, more solar heat reaches the earth than during the period of maxima, it is believed by many scientists. The sun actually throws off more heat during the great convulsions of activity there which accompany the sun spots, but at the same time flings so huge a quantity of dust into its own atmosphere that part of the heat radiation is intercepted and does not reach the earth.

Thus, according to Browne and numerous scientists, the period of sun-spot maxima will bring a further decrease in our supply of heat from the sun. The periodicity of sun spots has been well established—one cycle of 11.11 years and greater cycles of 55.6 years and of 222 years. There is some fluctuation on either side of these figures. But Browne and those who hold with him point out that the years 1926--1927 mark the second great 55.6-year cycle from 1816, when there was no summer.

If the solar constant remains at its present low level, and if to this situation is added a further loss of sun heat by reason of the period of sun-spot maxima, then the earth probably will suffer a crop failure of almost unexampled extent.

As if this were not enough, another peril is added to the list of possibilities in earth's "great danger period"—a recurrence of numerous volcanic explosions. In the opinion of some scientists, a connection has been established between the periodicity of sun-spot maxima and volcanic activity on the earth. Other scientists deny it.

But such eruptions accompanied the 1812-1816 cycle, such as the savage eruption of Tomboro in the East Indies, in 1815. This volcano hurled into the upper atmosphere a stupendous cloud of dust, which, it is estimated, reduced the amount of sun's heat reaching the earth by not less than three degrees.

Is the recent demolition of Tokio and Yokohama, and the staggering loss of life in those and other Japanese cities laid low by one of the greatest earthquakes in history, due in any way to the drop in solar radiation? The close relationship between earthquakes and volcanic action is indubitable. Although they sometimes occur separately, yet one sometimes immediately precedes the other, or they have been known to appear simultaneously.

The general cause is the same: weak spots, "faults" or cracks in the earth's crust, and a resulting seepage of water or a strain which the earth remedies by volcanic explosions or the shifting of great masses beneath the crust, during which the latter is shaken and sometimes shattered.

The attraction of other celestial bodies probably sometimes plays a part in producing the strain which earth relieves with these convulsions, and the electrical disturbances which accompany the period of sun-spot maxima may well be a factor, too. The connection between the "magnetic storms" upon earth and the sun spots is well established.

This long-range forecasting of weather conditions may be just speculation, and quite unwarranted by science, as some of the conservatives hold, and earth's "great danger period" of three or four years hence may be just a possibility among countless others in the future. But Browne of Washington and those who hold with him make out an interesting case. And it may turn out to be true.

I Have Found Out How to Get Rid of Superfluous Hair At Once

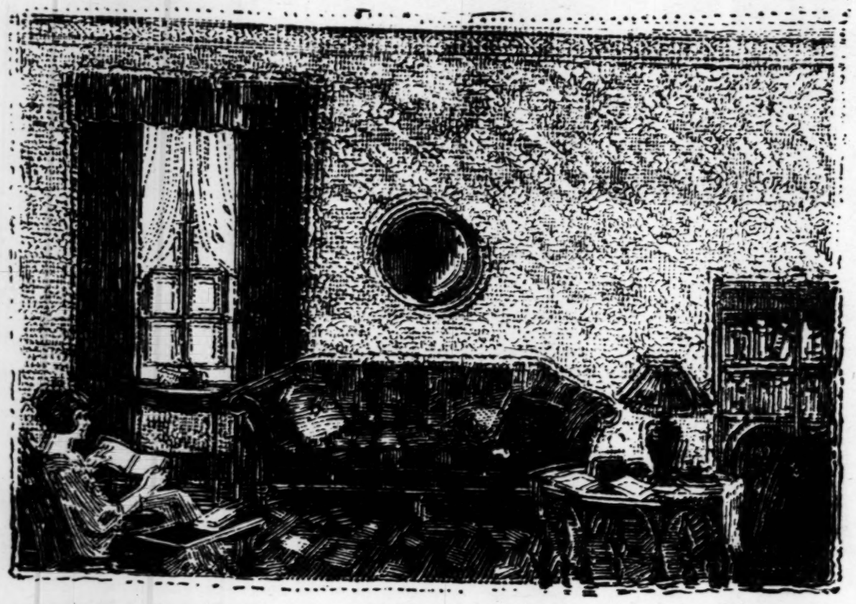
Here's the Secret

I had become utterly discouraged with a heavy growth of hair on my face and lip. I had tried every sort of depilatory and electrolysis and even a razor. But I couldn't get rid of it.

Then I made a wonderful discovery. I found a simple method by which I removed the hair at once and most wonderful to relate, it keeps the hair removed. My face is now as smooth as a baby's, not only free from superfluous hair but from pimples and blemishes. I have explained this discovery to thousands of women who have had the same experience with it that I had and I will explain it to you if you also have superfluous hair. It isn't like anything you have ever used. It is not a powder, paste, wax or liquid, not a razor, not electricity. It causes no itching or burning and leaves no scars. As easy to use as your comb or brush.

Send for Free Book

A book that tells just how this wonderful method gets rid of superfluous hair is free upon request. Don't send a penny—just a letter or post card. Address Annette Lanzette, Dept. 671 Care Hygienic Laboratories, 204 S. Peoria Street, Chicago, Ill.



Do You Ever Feel This Way?

Headaches, Nervousness and Irritability Can be Caused by Improper Color Combinations!

THE OLD saying, "There's no place like home," is all right when a home is a home, but some places are anything but homelike.

With few exceptions, practically every home has its "black sheep" — that dreary, cold, cheerless room. Such a room, if people only know, might be made the most attractive in the home. With a little knowledge they could be decorated so attractively as to cause visitors and friends to comment on their charm and cheerfulness.

Lack of harmony at home, atrocious, jangling draperies, nerve-racking color combinations, flat, dull walls—all have a very vital, noticeable effect on us, both mentally and physically. This was very forcibly brought out in a recent interview with Dr. Alvah Horton Sabin, one of America's foremost color scientists, as published in the American Magazine.

In this article a color expert made the statement that he could drive a writer or lawyer to distraction and perhaps to the madhouse, merely by the color he had to live with. He said: "I would put him to work in a small study. I would paint the walls a very warm red in some very intricate design. Gradually this bright red and intricate design would irritate and the walls would seem to crowd in on him constantly. I will not guarantee that he will end in the madhouse, but I'll guarantee that he would rather go to the madhouse than stay in that room."

Another instance was that of a young woman in the early thirties and presumably in the best of health, who became subject to severe headaches. Physicians pronounced her physically sound, and after repeated examinations were unable to determine the cause of her illness. Eventually one physician, whose hobby was color psychology, chanced to visit at her home. He found that the room in which she spent the largest part of her day was painted a dull gray with a wine-colored figure. The hangings and draperies were in a wine color to match, and the whole room gave off a heavy, cheerless, depressing atmosphere. With her permission he decided to experiment with wall paper. He decorated the walls with a light, airy paper, which had dainty pink flowers running thru it, and he changed the draperies to a soft, old rose hue. The change was remarkable, and in a few days his patient's headaches disappeared entirely.

And in your own case, for example, have you ever noticed how you bound out of bed on a clear, sunny morning, feeling full of pep and ready to lick the world? And how a dark, rainy morning has just the opposite effect—how it makes you tired and gloomy and how depressed you feel? It is just that way with a cheerful room and a dark, gloomy one. Do you know that you can do twice as much work in a room that is papered with a light, cheerful paper than you can in a flat, heavily colored room!

Color has a tremendous influence on our lives, as these instances show. Undoubtedly you, in your own home, are experiencing, unconsciously, the happiness or unhappiness that color plays in your life. To give everybody an opportunity to know these wonderful truths we have just published, at a tremendous cost, a book brimful of real information on color harmony and design as applied to you and your home. It not only tells you what colors to use and how to use them, but also contains 32 actual samples of new 1924 Niagara "Blue Ribbon" Wall Papers. These will enable you to make these tests right in your own home.

Remember—You can enjoy next winter's long evenings much better if your home is cheerful, cozy and harmonious.

If you are interested in having a cheerful, cozy home—fill out the coupon and we will send you absolutely free, this wonderful book. Lest you forget, mail coupon today!

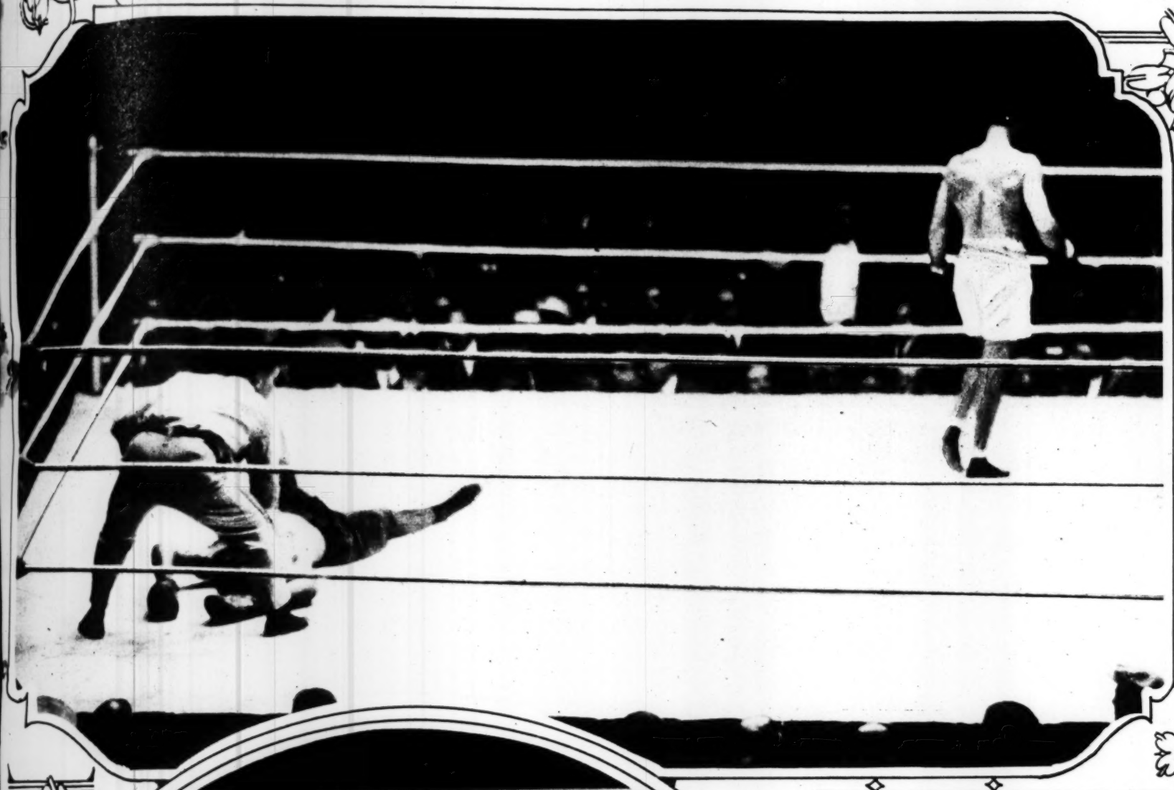
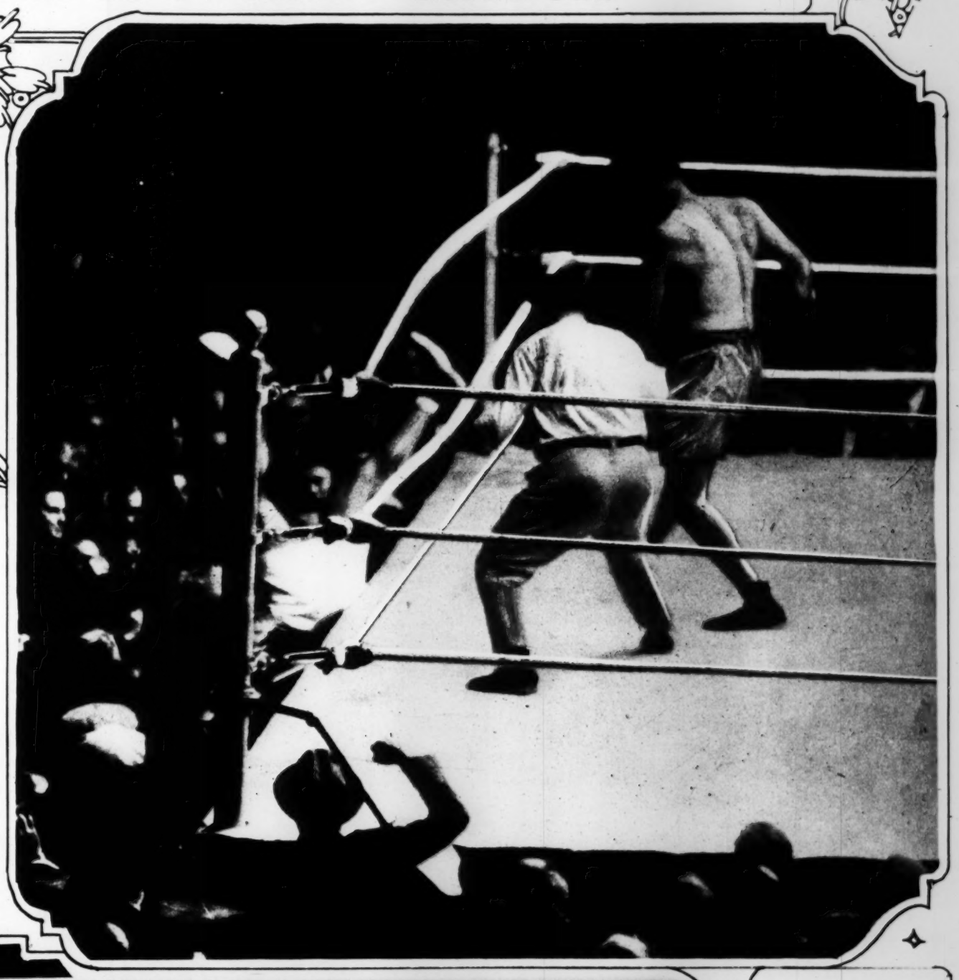
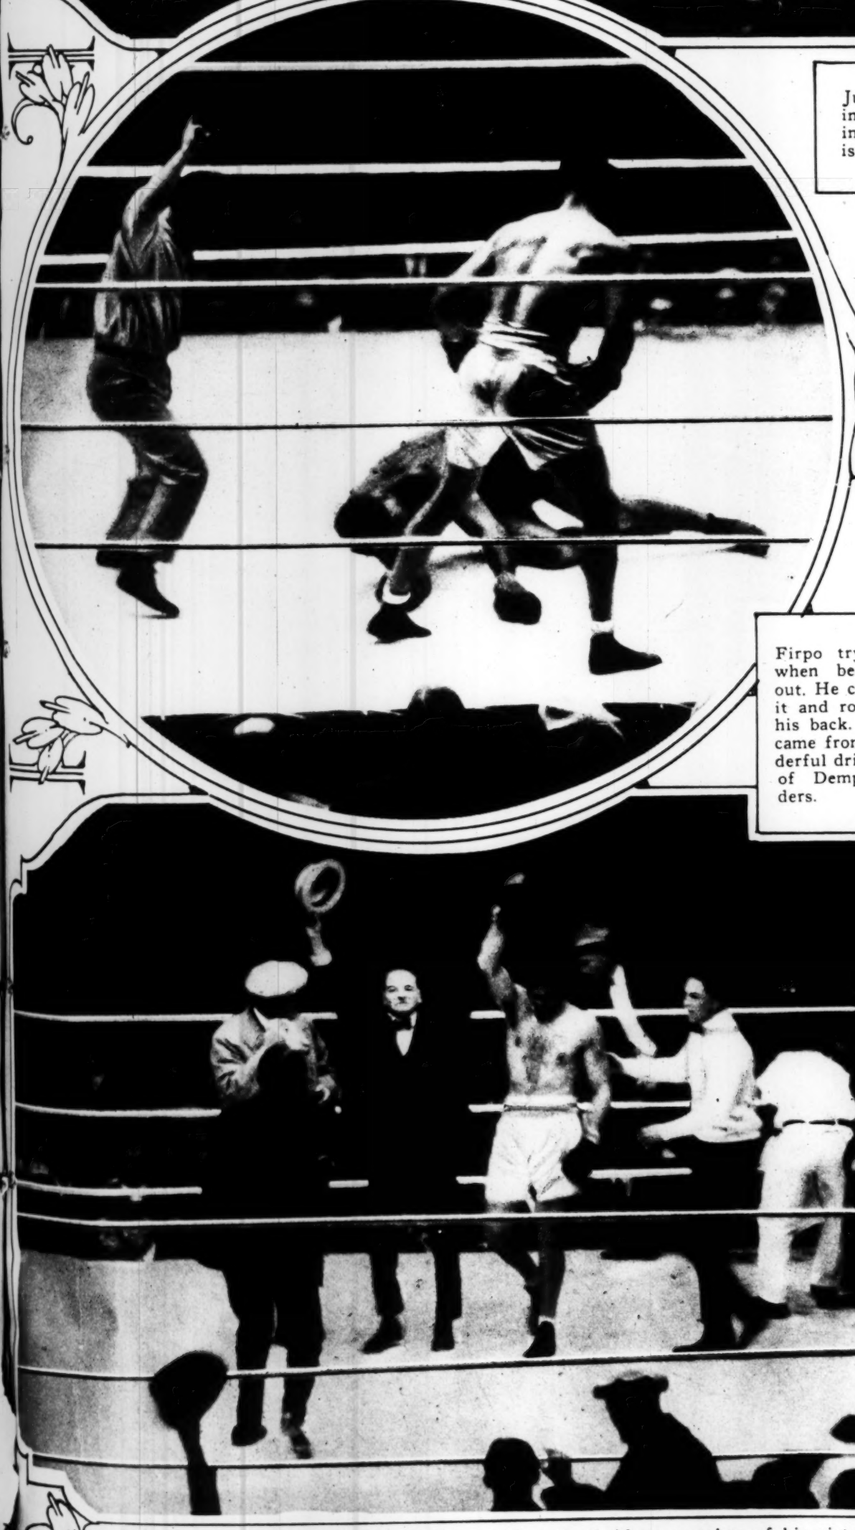
CAMERA RECORD OF THE DEMPSEY-FIRPO MATCH



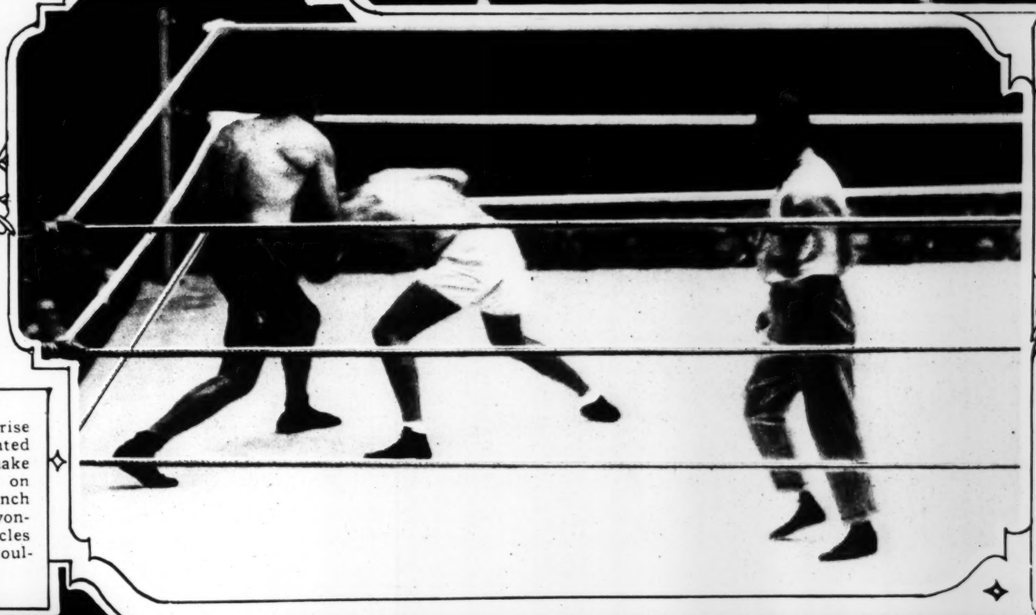
Just after Firpo had been counted out in the second round. Dempsey is walking back to his corner, while the referee is trying to rouse the loser.



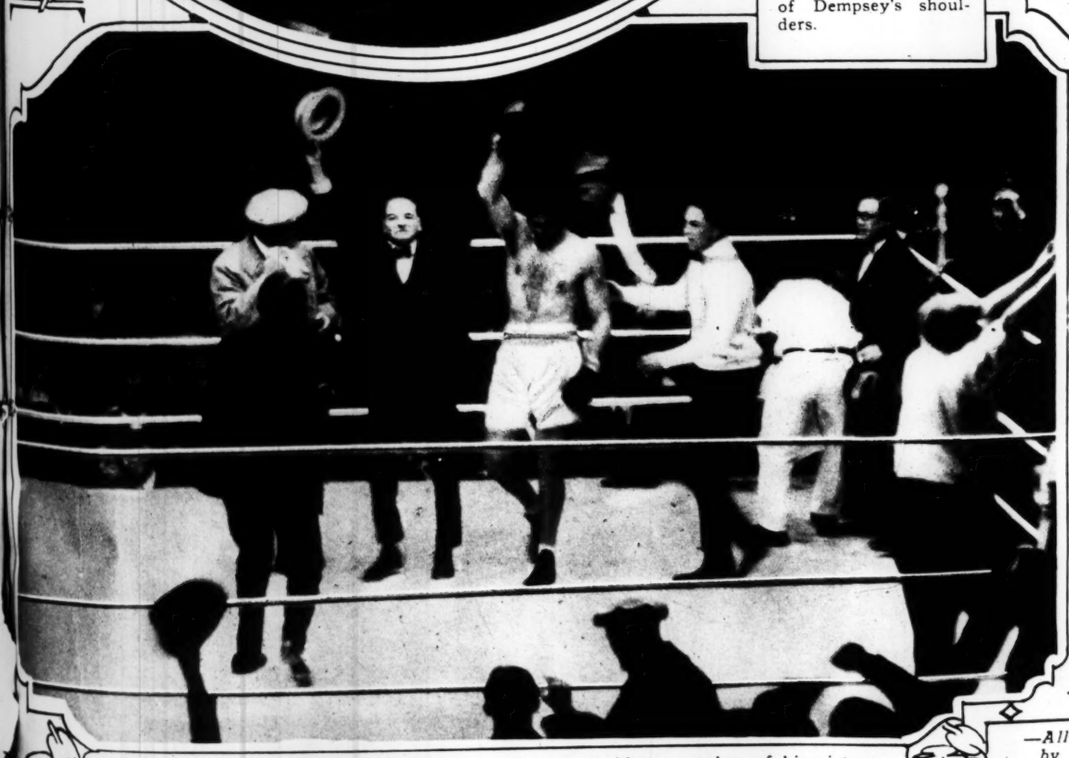
When Dempsey was knocked through the ropes near the end of the first round. He lunged headlong into the press seats, but climbed back into the ring within five seconds.



Firpo trying to rise when being counted out. He couldn't make it and rolled over on his back. The punch came from those wonderful driving muscles of Dempsey's shoulders.



The famous Dempsey crouch. The champion was boring in and getting ready to send in one of those short arm body blows that did so much damage to the challenger.



"The King is still King." Dempsey's hand is being held up in token of his victory. Just at this stage he was too tired to appreciate the homage, but he quickly recovered his poise.

MOST REMARKABLE PHOTOS EVER BROUGHT FROM MONGOLIA

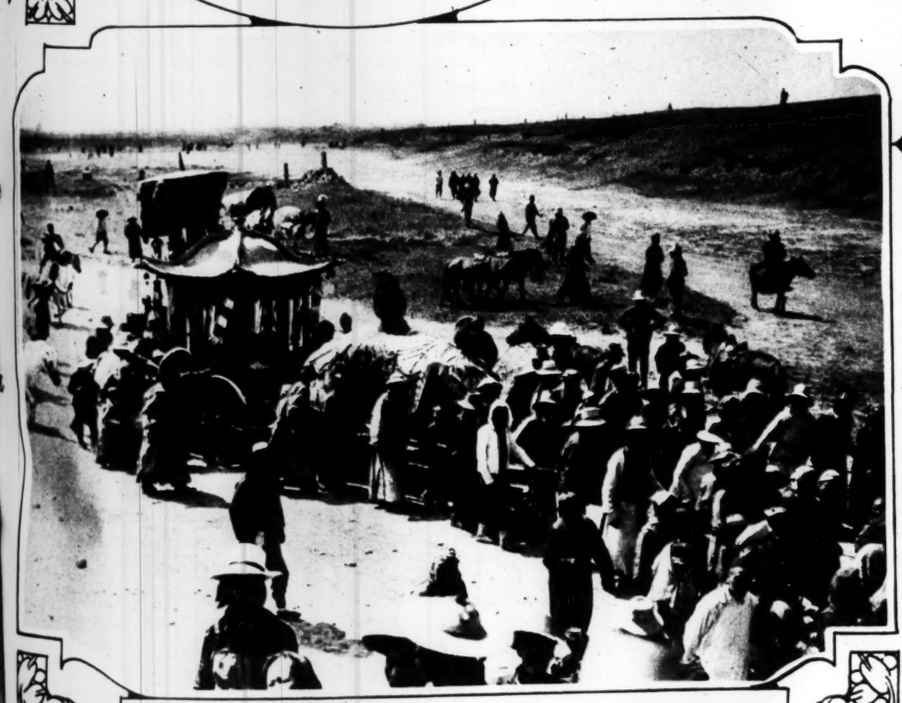
Few white men ever have witnessed the celebration of the Buddhist lenten season in this strange region, so inaccessible to foreigners. Here is a lama, or priest, with his mask of a "devil god" removed.

As the living Buddha approached the temple, lamas in the guise of devils and mythological animals, danced around it to frighten away the evil spirits. The animals in the foreground each contain two men.

Wearing fearful masks, or grotesque headgear, the lamas appear in dances which are supposed to be pantomimes of early Buddhist history, and end with the famous Tibetan "devil god" dance. This picture shows a group of devil dancers at Dolonnor.

Lamas who served as musicians in making the weird music for the dance. The suspicion, resentment, amusement and intent watchfulness on many of the faces in this Mongolian group as they faced the camera is worth studying.

Long Tibetan trumpets, which were used in the celebration, being carried by lamas. Note the extraordinary headdresses.



Pilgrims and Mongolians of the vicinity pulling a golden car, in which the living Buddha of inner Mongolia sits clothed in the most splendid vestments.

Lamas with the "masks of Buddha," standing in a row. In front of them are other lamas, and at the rear a glimpse of the crowd of natives.

She is No Longer Fat

She found a way to reduce her fat. It was a way far more pleasant than dieting, exercising or the application of absurd greases and salves would have been. This new way allowed her to eat foods without danger of becoming fat again.

She found Marmola Prescription Tablets. They aid the digestive system to obtain the full nutriment of food. They help Nature to turn food into muscle, bone and sinew instead of fat.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are made from the famous Marmola prescription. Thousands have found that these handy tablets give complete relief from obesity. And when the accumulation of fat is checked, reduction to normal, healthy weight soon follows.

All good drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar a box. Ask your druggist for them, or order direct and they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid.

CORNS?
Safe relief in one minute

For quick, lasting relief from corns, there is nothing like Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads. They stop the pain in one minute by removing the cause—friction and pressure.

Zino-pads are thin, safe, antiseptic, healing, waterproof and cannot produce infection or any bad after effects. No strong acid or caustic that "burns" out the corn. Three different sizes—one for corns, one for callouses, one for bunions. Fine for blisters and tender spots caused by new shoes.

This special shape eases the pain of bunions

Edwin Bower Hesser

Mae Murray, the most alluring of screen stars says, "I have found that Pond's Two Creams give the complexion a lovely freshness and smoothness."

When oil insists on coming through the powder

This is the method that women use who must keep their skin fresh

You powder with such infinite care and yet a few minutes after you know your nose is shining! Sometimes your whole face has a horrid pasty look.

What do the women do who must keep their faces fresh and charming? — actresses who can never let their faces look anything but exquisitely lovely?

They have had to find a method that would properly remove the excess oil and make-up, that would restore the natural freshness of their skin. This necessity led them to depend on the Pond's Method, two entirely different creams based on the two great essentials for keeping the skin fresh and clear. The kind of cleansing that restores the skin's natural transparency. The kind of protection that not only protects but freshens instantly and holds the powder for hours.

Do this tonight. With a piece of moistened cotton or with the finger tips apply Pond's Cold Cream freely. Its very fine oil softens the skin so that it can penetrate every pore, and takes out dirt and excess fat together. It is so light it wipes entirely off, leaving your skin fresh and dry — never heavy with cream. Do this twice.

Then, before you powder. Smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream very evenly — just enough for your skin to absorb. It has no oil. Now if you wish, rouge — powder. How charming your face is in the mirror — exquisitely fresh. It will stay that way all day.

Florence Nash of "Merton of the Movies" fame says:

"I like Pond's Cold Cream because it leaves my face feeling so refreshed — not heavy and oily. And Pond's Vanishing Cream really keeps my skin wonderfully smooth and fresh all day. It keeps the powder on beautifully."

Give your skin the same perfect care, and you will understand how the women who give their skin the hardest wear are able to have the loveliest complexions. Buy both creams in jars or tubes in any drug or department store. The Pond's Extract Company, 131 Hudson Street, New York.

Zeiss makes another notable improvement in binoculars!

The field of view seen through the new Zeiss wide-angle prism binoculars covers almost twice the area of the view seen through other prism binoculars of equal magnification. It covers over twenty times the area seen through a non-prismatic glass.

This greatly enlarged field of view is a decided advantage in quickly locating distant objects—especially in poor light. You can easily follow swiftly moving objects — racing autos, your favorite on the track, game on the run, etc.

Carl Zeiss Prism Binoculars have great light gathering power and unusually sharp definition, with the result that distant objects stand out clearly defined, in striking stereoscopic relief.

Of strong dust- and moisture-proof construction, Carl Zeiss Prism Binoculars will stand hard service in any climate.

Is Your Skin as Smooth as Rose-petals?

By Mme. Jeannette

YOUR powder puts the little exquisite finish to your skin and gives the look of freshness and youth to cheeks and chin and brow. But you must select a good pure powder.

And then you must elect to use this powder at all times, for it is not advisable to use different kinds during the same season.

Pompeian Beauty Powder adds a velvety quality to your skin and gives it a radiant clearness.

It is delightful in its consistency—and is not so light and fine as to come off easily, nor so heavy that it cakes and makes your powdering obvious.

Use after applying Pompeian Day Cream (a vanishing cream made especially as a foundation for this powder). You will find that your powder goes on more smoothly and adheres longer.

Pompeian Beauty Powder gives you the opportunity to select your own correct shade—it comes in Naturelle, Rachel, Flesh, and White.

After you have generously patted your powder on, and deftly smoothed it off, you should add the suggestion of roses to your cheeks. Pompeian Bloom gives that desired touch of color which adds new beauty to the eyes.

It comes in Light, Medium, and Dark shades, and in the Orange tint, the latter blending most naturally with the Rachel and Naturelle shades of powder.

Now the captivating touch of Pompeian Lip Stick to accent the characteristic lines of the mouth, and to complement the rose tint of your cheeks.

What particular skin problem are you facing?

1. If you are troubled with excessive oiliness — use treatment No. 1 given below.

Have you an oily skin?
Large pores?
Blackheads?
A dull sallow color?

By giving your skin the care that meets its individual needs you can free it from faults that have troubled you for years

3. If your skin has a tendency to blackheads — use treatment No. 3 given below.

2. For blemishes—use treatment No. 2 given below.

BEGIN today, to have a really beautiful skin—

A skin without a flaw—clear, fresh as the morning.

You can have a beautiful skin if you will. You can see people's faces light up with pleasure when they look at you.

You can look better—younger—prettier than you have ever looked before.

It is a matter of will-power, first of all.

You must have faith in your skin. No matter what faults it has—no matter how unattractive it seems to you when you look at it in a strong light—say to yourself that you can and will overcome these faults.

How it can be done

You can do this through the famous Woodbury skin treatments which have been developed expressly to meet women's different skin problems.

These treatments are given in the booklet "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

No matter what your personal skin problem is, you will find the answer to it in this booklet.

Are you troubled with excessive oiliness? Is your complexion dull, sallow,—darkened by ugly little blackheads or disfigured by blemishes? Are the pores too large?

You can't look your best as long as any one of these conditions exists. Begin today to use the special treatment that will rid you of this trouble.

Each day your skin is changing; old skin dies and new takes its place. By giving this new skin the right care you can actually make your complexion over—you can free it from faults that have troubled you for months, or even for years.

This means that your skin is responding

The first time you use a Woodbury treatment it will leave your skin with a slightly drawn, tight feeling. This means that your skin is responding in the right way to a more thorough and stimulating method of cleansing.

After a few treatments this drawn feeling will disappear, and you will begin to notice how much more life and freshness your skin has.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter—begin using it tonight and see how almost immediately your skin will begin to improve.

Day by day it will grow softer, smoother, more brilliant with life and color. You will be proud of your fresh lovely complexion.

A 25-cent cake of Woodbury's lasts a month or six weeks for regular toilet use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments. The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles make it ideal for regular use. Woodbury's also comes in convenient 3-cake boxes.

Three famous Woodbury treatments for common skin troubles—from the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

1. How to overcome excessive oiliness

First cleanse your skin by washing in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and luke-warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp. Now with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. Then rub your face for a few seconds with a piece of ice.

2. How to free your skin from blemishes

Just before you go to bed, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse very carefully, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

3. How to have a clear skin, free from blackheads

Every night before retiring apply hot cloths to your face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough wash cloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

THE ART MUSEUM

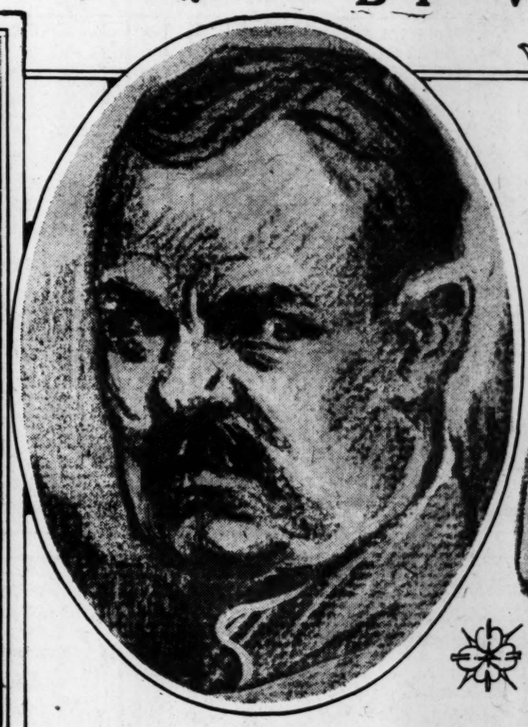
BY W. E. HILL

The Civic Virtue club members—as many as could be enticed away from the home fires—are doing the Art Museum under the tutelage of Miss. Claveridge, who teaches textile designing, the idea being that from now on the club will know what to appreciate in the way of art, and what not to. They have stopped before a Veronese, showing Mars and Venus introduced to each other by Cupid. The young man in the background is not a member. He has joined the party quite on his own invitation.



The attendant watching with suspicion a tired visitor who shows signs of resting on a fifteenth century chest.

Commercial artist, armed with a sketch book, en route to the Persian Miniatures for novel ideas. She is going to decorate one dozen tin candy boxes.

Agnes and Myra are resting on a piece of early Italian furniture that is intended to be sat on only by someone related to a Medici or a Borgia. They have just done the Italian primitives. Agnes admits that her feet hurt her, and Myra owns up to just the tiniest little headache. Whereupon they both decide to go and look at blouses.

Lady with late Victorian tendencies gazing sadly at a piece of modern art. The lady of the V. T.'s is partial to pictures of dogs and pussies all rolling together in a basket. A doggie, wearing spectacles, sitting up in a highchair, rouses her to frantic joy.

Alvin, the art student, is very radical in his views. Everything, between the periods of Giotto and Matisse, should go into the rubbish heap in his verdict. Alvin is trying to get back to the clear unspoiled vision of a child of two.

"No, we haven't any more of the big Venus de Milo prints. We expect some in tomorrow." The young lady who sells post cards and catalogues is always out of one thing or another.

The convention delegate is seeing the sights. He can't find his way out. Three times now he has ended up in the midst of the loan exhibit of modern sculpture. It's nearly time to meet Eddie and Joe at the hotel.

The young man at work copying the old master is the unwilling center of attraction. (The Browns aren't seeing any of the pictures, but they are having a perfectly splendid afternoon, as anyone may see.)

SAYS 90 PCT. OF OKLAHOMA MILITIA ARE IN THE KLAN

Member of Legislature From Tulsa Asserts the "Grand Dragon" Could Terminate Military Rule by Calling Out Klan Members of the Guard.

WALTON DEFIES FOES TO SEEK INJUNCTION

Declares Fight on "Invisible Empire" Is of National Importance and Welcomes Attempt to Halt Plan to Block Impeachment.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK., Sept. 21.—A statement declaring that "90 per cent of the members of the Oklahoma National Guard are members of the Ku Klux Klan" and that "all that would be necessary to stop military rule in Oklahoma would be for N. C. Jewett, 'grand dragon' of the Oklahoma's Realm of the Klan, to call out klan members of the guard," was issued here today by Dr. G. S. Long, representative from Tulsa County in the State Legislature.

The situation today—with only 48 hours remaining before the test of strength between Gov. Walton and members of the House of the State Legislature, who are scheduled to meet Wednesday noon in an effort to unseat him as chief executive, simmered down to a barrage of statements from the opposing sides.

Speaking for the legislators, W. D. McBee, representative from Stephens County, reiterated, "We will meet." Gov. Walton, at his residence, again asserted "They will not."

TO BAR GROUPS OF MOR ETHAN 2 NEAR CAPITOL WEDNESDAY

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK., Sept. 21.—Military orders to be issued before Wednesday will prohibit more than two persons from congregating together in or near the State Capitol, Wednesday, when the House of Representatives of the Oklahoma Legislature will attempt to meet to open a session to impeach Gov. Walton.

The Governor made this clear today in discussing with newspapermen a request that he issue passes to them so they might not be interferred with by the troops and State police. Readily agreeing to issue the passes, the Governor said that the holders must be careful not to gather in groups of more than two. A suggestion that the limit be increased to three brought the response, "No, two is the limit."

Extreme secrecy is being observed by the Governor and members of the Legislature regarding their plans for Wednesday, the Governor refusing to give any information as to the number of troops to be placed on duty or the policy they will pursue, and the legislators refusing to discuss their plans.

It is not improbable, however, that legislators in only sufficient numbers to keep the troops fairly well occupied will go to the capital at the appointed hour, and that a larger body—enough to organize the House—will have private instructions to meet in some other place, hoping to outwit the militia and detectives.

Although refusing to admit this to be the plan, one of the leaders said: "If we can have only 10 minutes, we will have time enough to organize and to issue a warrant or two for state police and militiamen who have interfered with our session.

"The Oklahoma law is very strict in prohibiting interference by anybody with a meeting of the Legislature. Issuance of such warrants would immediately throw the matter into the courts."

"We Will Meet."

A statement issued Saturday was to the effect that there would be no forcible resistance to the militia and State police, and stressed the expected court action. Today, there was no repetition of the promise of peace, but there was a reiteration that the House would meet.

"We are an unpopular minority, all right," Representative W. D. McBee said in a formal statement. "We claim that we are neither a klan mob nor an antiklan mob. We do not champion the cause of either class, but we do champion the great American class of people who are
